INTRODUCTION.

The Borough of St. Giles is a suburb of the City of Durham, lying between the upper and lower portions of the River Wear, which approaches the city from the East and, after encompassing in a loop the hill on which the Castle and Cathedral stand, flows away towards the East again. The street called Gilligate is between the approaching and retiring streams, being a continuation of Claypath in the parish of St. Nicholas, and beginning where Bakehouse Lane on the one side and the narrow Tinkler's Lane on the other separate the two parishes, and where the Leaden Cross, shown in Speed's map of Durham (see Surtees' "History of Durham," Vol. iv, Part ii, p. 31), formerly stood. Thence the street ascends eastward in two successive acclivities to the summit of the hill on which the church stands, the ground sloping steeply down on each side to the river. The church, so situated, catches the eye of visitors to Durham with a pleasing effect, perhaps suggesting the thought to some of "the decent church that tops the neighb'ring hill." Its modest low tower, according so well with the surrounding scene, has happily been left unchanged by modern restoration. East of "the street" (as Gilligate is often called in the old records) the ancient parish extended far into the adjacent country, including a moor, which comprised, at the time of its enclosure in 1817, about 235 acres.

Minds sensible of the fascination of antiquarian research, when on the look-out for antiquities, cannot but long to go back beyond the time at which any definite history of a place begins. Hence, before attempting a sketch of what is historically known for the purpose of elucidating the records now published, it may be interesting to cast a brief glance into the times, so far as can be known or surmised, before there was any suburb of a city, or city at all, in the locality. Of pre-historic occupation of the vicinity there appear, indeed, to be but scanty traces so far discovered, though a stone axe is said to have been found at Sherburn Hospital, and two interments near Sherburn and Sacriston. There is, however, a significant intimation of British occupation in the term Maiden, applied to three places close to Durham, one of which was on Gilesgate Moor. This word, usually now combined with Castle, is believed to be British, and to denote some kind of fortified mound. The designation is not uncommon, being found in various parts. The following description by Leland of a structure so called may be cited in illustration :—"There is a Place an viii Mile plaine West from Bowis (Bowes, on the edge of Stainmoor, in Yorkshire) a Thorough-fare in Richemountshire cawllid Maiden Castel, where is a greate rounde Hepe a 60 Foote in Cumpace of rude Stones, sum smaul, sum bygge, and be set in formam pyramidis ; and yn the Toppe of them al ys set one Stone in conum beying a yard and a halfe in lenghth. So that the hole may be countid an xviii Foote hy, and ys set on a hille in the very Egge of Stanemore. And this is a limes betwixt Richemontshire and Westmerlande" ("Itinerary," Vol. v, p. 122). The common addition of Castle to the old word Maiden cannot be taken as proof that the Romans had used the old fort as a castellum, though no doubt they have done so in some cases.

The three places thus designated near the city of Durham are (1) Maiden Castle, on the hill so-called, which rises abruptly above the Wear between Durham and Shincliffe ; (2) a mound, partly artificial, called Maiden's Bower, among the Red Hills, where the banner of St. Cuthbert is said to have been placed during the battle of Neville's Cross ; and (3) another Maiden's Bower (or Maiden's Arbour, or, as appears from the Grassmen's Books of St. Giles, formerly Maiden Castle), all traces of which have now disappeared, on Gilesgate Moor. The earliest known allusion to the last is in Wharton's continuation of the history attributed to William Chambre, the last of the "Tres Scriptores," where, in reference to a marble cross transferred to Durham Market Place in the time of Bishop Tunstall (d. 1571), it is said, "Crux marmorea, praeclara admodum, quae olim steterat in suprema parte vici de Gilligate, loco vocato Maid Arbor, data erat Gulielmo Wright de Dunelmo mercatori sua petitione per Dominum Armstronge[1] Scotum, dominum de Kepyere, ad constituendum in foro Dunelmi (Surtees Society's Publications, 1839, Vol. ix, p. 156). Surtees thus describes the place, as it was remembered when he wrote :— "Maid's Arbour, or Maiden's Bower. A few years ago a square platform, slightly elevated, was distinctly observable on the flat plot of ground within the angle formed by the roads diverging to Sunderland and Sherburn, at the West end of Gilesgate Moor" ("History of Durham," Vol. iv, Part ii, p. 69). At an earlier date, Cade ("Archaeologia," Vol. vii, p. 78 (1785), refers to it thus. After speaking of the entrenchment at Old Durham, supposed by him to have been Roman, he goes on—"A gentleman with whom I am acquainted has carefully surveyed the old road from this place by Kepyre hospital, and he assures me, that, in a dry season, the piers of a bridge are obvious in the bed of the river, seemingly of Roman construction ; and I have authority to say that coins have been formerly ploughed up here, and lately some of the lower empire have also been discovered within its vicinage. The ground-plot and ramparts of the watch-tower which served for signals to this station are visible and almost entire at the entrance of Gilligate Moor, and exactly correspond in form with those on the Roman Wall in Northumberland." Cade also alleges that there were traces of an "exploratory castrum" on the high ground, further north, near the present Newton Hall. Further, in the Grassmen's Books, published in this Volume, there are frequent allusions to a place on the Moor which is always called the mayden castell till the year 1598, when the designation is changed to maiden bower, though not uniformly so in following years.[2] It is shown by these books to have been an enclosure fenced

[1] Armstronge appears to be a mistake for Ormestone—a Scotchman, to whom Edward VI granted the suppressed Hospital of Kepyer in 1552. So says Surtees, and in the "Mickleton MSS.," No. 32, it is said, "Johannes Colborne, Dominus de Ormeston [non Armstrong, ut in Wh. fo. 783] Scotus."

[2] As to the change of the name from castell to bower see p. 25, note 4.

by a dike with a hedge of whins, which was regularly kept in repair till the year 1629, after which there is no more mention of it. It seems to have been utilized by the parish as an enclosure for milking cows in. For see entry in 1605 :—"For mendinge y^e^ mayden castell, which was broken downe by the milkers of kye."

There is thus nothing beyond its name Maiden to intimate its origin. But the fortification similarly designated on Maiden Castle Hill is said by Canon Greenwell of Durham to be of the general character of such as were pre-Roman. Thus there seems to be enough evidence of some old race before the Romans having occupied the locality before us. Of Roman occupation there are the following traces. In the first place it may be held with confidence that a Roman road crossed Gilesgate Moor, passing the site of the Maiden Castle there. The whole system of Roman roads in the County of Durham is well shown in a paper, with a map, by Mr. W. H. D. Longstaffe, entitled, "Durham before the Conquest," published in the "Proceedings" of the Archaeological Institute, 1852, Newcastle, Vol. i, p. 41. It is there represented that a road from the south forked into two branches where Shincliffe now is, one of which crossed the Wear towards the north-west, passing by the fort on Maiden Castle Hill, while the other, keeping on the eastern bank of the stream, ran northward by Old Durham over Gilesgate Moor, and then crossed the river below Kepyer Hospital towards the important station at Chester-le-Street, which may have been Ptolemy's Epeiakon. Cade mentions, as we have just seen, that the piers of a bridge, apparently Roman, were obvious in a dry season in the bed of the river by Kepyer. Surtees confirms this statement, saying that in the dry summer of 1827 solid masonry was discovered on the north side of the Wear below the Hospital, believed by him to have been the piers of a bridge ("History of Durham," Vol. iv, Part ii, p. 91). Old Durham, of which mention has been made, is on the right bank of the river, opposite Maiden Castle Hill on the left side, where the ground begins to rise to Gilesgate Moor ; and there, on the flat, there are evident traces of an ancient entrenchment, the "Pidding brook" (so called by Hollinshed), which would naturally have entered the Wear near Shincliffe, having apparently been diverted so as to defend the entrenchment. Cade, as has been said, took this to have been a Roman Camp; and, by whomever it was originally constructed, it is likely enough that both it and the fortification on Maiden Castle Hill on the opposite side of the river were in fact occupied by the Romans, whose roads ran by them. If so, the other Maiden Castle on Gilesgate Moor may well have been used by them (as supposed by Cade) as a post for defence and observation on the high ground beyond which their road northward traversed. There is, indeed, a deficiency of distinct relics of Roman occupation in this immediate vicinity. But Cade speaks of Roman coins having been ploughed up at Old Durham, and Surtees of a "fine old Nero found by a woman hoeing turnips on Gilesgate Moor 14 years ago." The latter alleges also that, "a few years ago, in removing a portion of the rampart (i.e., on Maiden Castle Hill between Durham and Shincliffe) several squared stones were found, and one which could scarcely be taken for anything else than a rude and defaced Roman altar" ("History of Durham," Vol. iv, ii, p. 90). Mr. Longstaffe, quoting this passage, adds in a note, "Mr. Raine endorses this statement." Surtees says also (Ibid., p. 69) that "in the Minster yard Stukeley saw a Roman altar set up as a gravestone, and that Dr. Hunter shewed him a Roman head in a garden wall, apparently a portrait of Marcus Aurelius," and alleges that "the head of St. Oswald in the conventual seal was really that of Jupiter Tonans, and an antique gem." The altar last-mentioned, which is now in the Library of the Dean and Chapter, may, it is true, have been brought from elsewhere, and so may the gem; nor do a few coins, found here and there, actually prove Roman occupation. Such indications, therefore, can only be taken as in some degree supporting other better evidence. Among the places noticed in the above survey as indicative of Roman or previous occupation of the locality, Maiden Castle (or Bower), on Gilesgate Moor, was in the parish of St. Giles, and Old Durham, though outside it, was closely connected with it as having belonged to the Rectory of St. Nicholas, appropriated by Bishop Nevill to Kepyer Hospital, and having consequently become afterwards the seat of the lords of the manor.

Between the relinquishment of Britain by the Romans, A.D. 427, and the foundation of Kepyer Hospital by Bishop Flambard, A.D. 1112, which was the origin of the borough and parish of St. Giles, well nigh seven centuries passed away. Meanwhile we find nothing to connect the exact locality with historical events, or invest it with any special interest. The Irish missionaries from Iona and Lindisfarne, under the leadership of St. Aidan, in the seventh century, may no doubt have passed close by, and evangelized to some extent the surrounding country. But such missionary station as they may have had seems more likely to have been in the locality of the present St. Oswald's Church, where relics of crosses indicative of their period have been found, than within the limits of the parish of St. Giles, where none such have been discovered. Then, when the Congregation of St. Cuthbert, A.D. 995, were returning after their wanderings to Chester-le-Street, it was at Dunholm, where the Cathedral now stands, that they stopped, and settled, and built their church ; and the city of Durham, thus originated, had its boroughs of Elvet and Framwellgate before there was any borough of St. Giles. It was in fact, as above intimated, not till the foundation of Kepyer by Bishop Flambard that the existence of the latter began.

KEPYER HOSPITAL.

In the year 1112 Ralph Flambard, Bishop of Durham, founded a church with a hospital attached in honour of God and St. Giles, and for the weal of his own soul, and redemption of the souls of William the Conqueror and Matilda his queen, who had nourished him ; of King William II, who had advanced him to the bishopric ; of King Henry I, who had confirmed him in it ; and of all who had bestowed, or should bestow, gifts or alms on the Church of St. Cuthbert. He himself dedicated it on the 11th of June, 1112, having endowed it with his vill of Caldecotes hard by, and other emoluments, for the maintenance for ever of a clerk to serve therein, and of certain poor persons who were to dwell there. "Caldecotes" no doubt comprised the land near the site of the hospital, afterwards called "Kepyer Grange." Cf., "De manerio de Caldecotes, vocato Kepiyer Grangie" (Feodarium Prioratus Dunelm. in Surtees Society's Publications, Vol. lviii, p. 77). This vill was granted with all its appurtenances and liberties, ecclesiastical and secular, in meadows, pastures, woods, wastes, and waters, with a mill at Milneburn. There were added two sheaves of corn from every carucate of the bishop's demesnes of Newbottle, Houghton, Wearmouth, Ryhope, Easington, Sedgefield, Sherburn, Quarrington, Newton, Chester, Washington, Boldon, Cleadon, Whickham, and Ryton. Finally the customary denunciation of eternal damnation was appended against any who should at any time disturb the Hospital in the enjoyment of its heritage. The Hospital was originally contiguous to the church, both being on the hill where the church now stands. There is no evidence of there having been any church previously, nor does that founded by Flambard seem to have been intended originally to serve any purpose but that of a chapel to the hospital.

It may be here noted that his original Deed of Foundation is no longer extant, having been destroyed, with all other charters of the house, when the Scots under Robert Bruce set fire to its muniment room (A.D. 1306) in the time of Bishop Anthony Bek. But the succeeding bishop, Richard Kellaw (1311–1316), issued a commission for ascertaining the rights and property of the Hospital; and its old charters (of which there may have been copies elsewhere than in the muniment room), having been thus verified, were exemplified upon the Patent Rolls of Richard II in the year 1380, and again in the Close Rolls of Bishop Neville in 1445. Nineteen such charters, as exemplified in the Patent Rolls of Richard II (per inspeximus), are given in Dugdale's "Monasticon," Vol. ii, Part ii. In Appendix A to this volume the same are given as they appear, with preliminary and subsequent matter, in the Close Rolls of Bishop Neville now preserved in the Public Record Office. It will thence be seen what Commissioners had been appointed by Kellaw, and how they had been directed to proceed, and also how subsequent bishops, Hatfield and Fordham, had confirmed to the Hospital all its rights and possessions as thus established, and finally how Bishop Neville had done the same, excepting only its right to tithes from the episcopal demesne lands, in lieu of which he appropriated to the Hospital the Rectory of St. Nicholas in Durham.

Though Flambard was the original founder of the Hospital, it was to Bishop Pudsey that it owed its subsequent constitution, as well as the privileges and a great part of the emoluments which it afterwards enjoyed. Meanwhile its buildings had been destroyed by fire during the usurpation of the See of Durham by William Cumyn after the death of Bishop Galfrid Rufus (the successor of Flambard), A.D. 1141. A short summary of certain events during that usurpation, so far as they affected the Church and Hospital of St. Giles, may here be in place. William de St. Barbara having at length been elected bishop, and consecrated at Winchester on the Sunday before St. John Baptist's day A.D. 1143, Roger de Conyers, who had been the leading opponent of the usurper from the first, and had already fortified his house at Bishopton, where he had been besieged by Cumyn without success, thought the time opportune, in concert with a few barons, for inviting the new bishop thither, and thence escorting him, with an armed retinue, to the city of Durham. He hoped, we are told, that Cumyn would by this time repent, or at any rate be deserted by his supporters. "But they were much deceived in their opinion. Not only did he not seek peace by repenting of his evil deeds, but he would not even endure the messengers of peace who were sent to him. Some he would not admit; some he drove away; others he vexed with threats and insults. Lastly, sending out the soldiers which he had with him, he attacked the adherents of the bishop who approached the walls. Consequently those who were with the bishop betook themselves to St. Giles, a church so called at a little distance from the walls, and there abode that night with the bishop"

(Sym. Hist. Dunelm., Continuatio prima). We read further in the Historia Regum, continuata per Joh. Hagust., Vol. ii, p. 314, that "the bishop, having come with a great multitude to Durham, endeavoured to surround the church of St. Giles with a rampart, so as to have that place for their defence," and further, that "the monks who were shut up" (i.e., in the Cathedral convent) "had prepared a secret access by which they had proposed to introduce the bishop with his adherents." Thus we see before us the two neighbouring eminences occupied as two hostile camps; that on which the Castle stands by William Cumyn, and that of St. Giles by Roger de Conyers with the bishop William of St. Barbara; while, close to the Castle, the monks, shut up in their convent, were scheming to get the true bishop clandestinely into his cathedral. But the usurper remained for the time triumphant. "Next morning, surrounded by a band of his satellites, he broke through the doors of the church (i.e., of the cathedral, not of St. Giles, as Surtees seems to have supposed), and burst into it with armed men. And there were to be seen soldiers clad in mail with naked swords running to and fro among the altars; archers, some mingled among the weeping and praying monks, others standing over them and threatening them; and all the church filled with clamour and tumult. And indeed their hands hardly abstained from hurting the monks, one of whom they had nearly killed by a thrown stone. Nevertheless, leaving a guard of soldiers and archers in the church, they fortified it like a castle; and, as though dancing for joy at having done contumely to Divinity in a place of peace, the violators lighted fires, scenting the place with the smell of cooked flesh instead of the odour of incense; and for the voices of singers caused cries of guards and sounds of horns to be heard abroad. Meanwhile, sallying forth also frequently against the bishop's people, they did not suffer them to approach the walls" (Sym. Continuatio).

After this unsuccessful attempt to obtain entrance into Durham, Conyers, with the bishop, returned to Bishopton, relinquishing their temporary occupation of St. Giles; whereupon Cumyn is said to have ravaged the country and perpetrated atrocious cruelties. The contest went on, various places, including churches, being fortified and besieged by the opposing parties, and the whole diocese being in a state of civil war. It was in the earlier part of the year 1144 that the Hospital of Kepyer was burnt. On the approach at that time of Henry, Prince of Scotland and Earl of Northumberland, with the bishop St. Barbara to Durham, we read that "meanwhile the companions of William (i.e., Cumyn) set fire to the hospital close by (apud) the church of St. Giles, and burnt the whole vill appertaining to it. They also committed to the flames the part of the burgh which belonged to the monks; and the soldiers following on the track of the Earl consumed with fire what remained of the burgh" (Sym., ibid.). It is evident from this account that the Hospital was then on the hill adjacent to the church, and not in its subsequent position on the bank of the river. It appears also that there was already a considerable number of inhabited tenements in the same locality, some of which belonged to the Convent of Durham, being the origin of the borough of St. Giles.

The eventual submission of William Cumyn and the entrance of William of St. Barbara into the See was on St. Luke's Day (October 18th), 1144. But nothing appears to have been done for the restoration of the destroyed hospital during his episcopacy. It was (as has been already said) to Hugo de Puteaco, commonly known as Hugh Pudsey, who suceeeded St. Barbara in 1153, that its second foundation was due. He rebuilt the Hospital, removing it (perhaps for the sake of shelter and seclusion, as well as proximity to the river) to its subsequent lower position on the right bank of the Wear as it flows away to the east. The church he left on the hill, and probably added the chancel to Flambard's nave. The architectural features of the two parts of the church point to this conclusion.[1]

[1] An interesting association with Flambard's nave (the northern wall of which, with its original windows, happily escaped demolition when the church was restored not many years ago) is that of the noted hermit, St. Godric, who in early life, before retiring to his Finchale hermitage, spent some time at Durham, and, while there, used to frequent the then recently founded church of St. Giles for nocturnal devotion, and served there as aedituus and bell-ringer. "Ibi ecclesiam Sancti Aegidii, secus urbem

One peculiar feature observable in Pudsey's chancel is the large size of its side-door, which is on the north side. This may have been designed for the convenience of the brethren of the now separated Hospital when entering the church in procession from the north. Pudsey's ordinance for the reconstitution of the Hospital (which is given in Appendix A) provided, among other things, that there should be in it thirteen brethren (conversi), under the usual monastic vows, of whom six should be chaplains to officiate in the chapel and pray for the souls of Pudsey and Flambard; the rest having special secular duties assigned them, to be fulfilled by them severally according to the discretion of the Master with the assent of the Prior and brethren. Provision is also made for an infirmary, for a common dormitory, and a common hall, in which all the brethren, not being sick, should have their common table, "unless the Master, for the accommodation of guests, or other honest cause, should at any time order otherwise." Also for an annual supply of decent clothing to all the brethren, with boots (botis) twice a year to the chaplains, and to the other conversi, who had more work to do, of foot-gear of a more serviceable kind (socularibus cum coreis ligatis) as often as might be required.

The endowments of the Hospital by the same Bishop Pudsey, with others in his own time or afterwards, till the destruction of the muniments in 1306, as shown by the Charters verified by Bishop Kellaw's Commission, may be summarized as below. They are here arranged in their conjectured chronological order, the Roman numerals showing the order in which they appear in the Patent Rolls of Richard II, and the Close Rolls of Bishop Nevill.

1. (I) Flambard's original Deed of Foundation.

2. (II) A Charter of Bishop Pudsey confirming all the donations of Flambard, adding a toft (for convenience, no doubt, of storing the corn) on all the demesne lands of the positam, diutissime frequentavit; et quantum literaturae novit libentissime devotus exercuit; in qua nocturnas Domino vigilias celebrando, ipse ecclesiae minister et aedituus effectus est, et pulsandi ad horam divini officii ministerium adeptus est" (Libellus de Vita et Miraculis S. Godrici, Heremitae de Finchale, Auctore Reginaldo Monacho Dunelmensi, p. 59. Surtees Society's Publications).

See from which they already had tithes, and also granting free burgage in the street of St. Giles (liberum burgagium in vico S. Egidii), exempt from in-toll and out-toll, and from all aids and services, customs, vexations, and exactions, for ever. This was the origin of the Manor of St. Giles.

3. (III) Another Charter of the same granting to the Hospital the vill of Clifton,[1] a thrave of corn from every carucate in the demesne lands of the bishopric, with tithes of all his lands recently brought into cultivation (de omnibus novalibus nostris) ; and exempting the church of St. Giles for ever from "synodals and other customs which are wont to be exacted by the archdeacon or the dean or any of their officers."

4. (VII) Another Charter of the same, addressed to the Prior and Convent, confirms endowments of the Hospital in Weardale, comprising Whiteleys and Swyneleys (the boundaries being accurately defined) ; a mine of lead for covering the church of St. Mary and All Saints and also the Infirmary of the Hospital ; a mine of iron in Rokehope for making ploughs ; a toft designated as De Laundene ; the tithes of Bradewode et Besunkedis usque ad Wycheles ; the tithes of all novalia (i.e., newly reclaimed lands) ; a thrave of corn from every caruca in Werdale ; and also pasture for all the cattle of the house, with the peculiar privilege—significant of the prevalent cruel custom, as well as of the wild state of the surrounding country—that the feet of the dogs were not to be maimed, but that the shepherds were to lead them bound for the protection of the flocks against wolves.

5. (XVI) A Composition was made, with the approval of Bishop Pudsey, dated 1197, between the Prior (Germanus) and Convent of Durham on the one part and Adam as Proctor for the Master and brethren of the Hospital on the other, whereby the latter were released from all future claims on them for the tithes of Clifton (see III), formerly payable to the church of St. Oswald in Durham, on condition of their offering yearly on St. Oswald's Day at the altar of that church one bezant and two shillings, and also releasing to the church of St. Oswald the two sheaves from the demesne lands of Newton which had been included in their original endowment by Bishop Flambard.

[1] The Composition, which appears below [5. (XVI)], with regard to the tithes of Clifton payable to the church of St. Oswald, and to the sheaves of corn from the demesne land of Newton for which the same church had been liable, confirms the probability that Clifton and Newton were in the same locality, viz., on the opposite side of the river to Kepyer, in the old parish of St. Oswald.

[The two following benefactions, though not by Bishop Pudsey himself, appear to have been in his time, and supplementary to his.]

6. (XIII) Gilbert the Chamberlain (Gilbertus camerarius), who appears to have had land in his possession near the new site of the Hospital, granted the Master and brethren leave to make their mill-dam and mill-pool thereon. The language of his deed of gift shows him to have been contemporary with Pudsey, having been probably his own chamberlain. For he makes his grant "pro salute domini mei Hugonis Dunelm. episcopi, et pro salute animae Theobaldi fratris, et pro salute animae meae et uxoris meae Julianae Papedy, et haeredum meorum" (Referred to in Hutchinson's "History of Durham," ii, 301 n.). The same Gilbert, in a return made by the bishop to Henry II, in 1166, of the military service within his jurisdiction, with view to an aid for the marriage of the King's daughter, Maud, appears as follows:—"Gilebertus Camerarius [tenet] quintam partem 1 mil. & ex alia parte x partem unius" (Lib. Niger Scaccarii, p. 306).

7. (V) Gilbert Hansard, one of Bishop Pudsey's feudatories, gave his whole vill of Aymundeston (Amerston, in the parish of Elwick) and fifty oxgangs in Hurtheworth (Hurworth) for the support of a chaplain to celebrate for ever in the chapel of the Hospital for the souls of himself, his father and mother, and all his kin.

[This donation is what probably led eventually to the foundation of the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen, with regard to which, and the negociations relating thereto, see below under "Magdalen Hospital," and documents in Appendix B.]

8. (XIX) "Stephanus Capellanus" gave to the Hospital all his land at Southcrofte in Gilligate.

[This donation, if not in the time of Pudsey, cannot have been later than the early part of the thirteenth century. For in a Composition between the Hospital and the Convent of Durham, apparently of that period, the Hospital is found to have been already in the possession of this Southcrofte. See Appendix B, I.]

Subsequent endowments, after the time of Pudsey, were as follows :—

9. (XV) Quenilda, wife of Richard de Lokes (or, properly, cum lokes, meaning "with the locks"), gave 12 acres of land in Medomsley, with common of pasture for 200 sheep, 40 cattle, and 40 swine. This gift may be assigned to the episcopate of Pudsey's successor, Philip de Pictavia (1195–1208) : for a deed of gift by the same Richard de Lokes, with the assent of Quenilda his wife and William his heir, of land in Medomsley to the Convent of Durham, is attested, among others, by "Americo archidiacono" ; and Aimerick de Talboys was a nephew of Bishop Philip de Pictavia, and appears as archdeacon in 1198 and 1214 (Hutchinson, ii, p. 280) ; Cf., "Mickleton MSS.," No. 32, p. 44 :— "Americus [Homericus, Harmaricus] Archidiaconus Dunelm. et Carleol. tempore Bertrami [primi] Prioris. Vide in carta dicti Philippi Pictaviensis.—Fuit dictus Americus nepos ejusdem Philippi episcopi."

10. (VI) During the episcopate of Nicholas de Farnham (1241–1258) one Walter de Witton, Knight, granted to the Hospital all his land at Frosterley, to be held of the bishop on the accustomed service. Who this Walter de Witton was has not been discovered. The mention in his charter of "Nicholaus quondam episcopus Dunelmensis" as having confirmed it shows the donation to have been in De Farnham's time.

11. (VIII) Under the same bishop (described by the donor as "patris et domini mei"), John de Romesey, the bishop's seneschal, granted to the Hospital a rent of 65s., which Leoninus, son of William de Heriz, and William de Leventhorp, had formerly paid to Walter de Monasteriis, together with the homage, services, ward, and relief, of half the vill of Claxton, to be held by the Hospital of Walter de Monasteriis by a yearly payment of 12*d.* The purpose of this donation was to aid in support of the poor resorting to the Hospital, and its condition was that at every mass said in the chapel thereof the Bishop de Farnham, and his predecessor, Richard Poor, should be commemorated. It thus appears that the family of Heriz, known as early possessors of Claxton, and who took its name, had succeeded an earlier family of De Monasteriis (or De Musters), and that Bishop Farnham's seneschal had acquired rights in half the vill, which he transferred to the Hospital.

12. (XIV) It might be about the same time that William de Heriz gave two oxgangs in his vill of Claxton to the Hospital. But there seems to be nothing to fix the date with certainty.

13. (IX) Also in the thirteenth century, Robert Corbeth and his daughter Sibilla, "for the love and brotherhood of the house," and on account of ten marks given by the Master, De Argentaneo, and the brethren, granted their whole vill of Hunstanworth, with all its liberties, which had been granted by a charter of Bishop Pudsey, to be held of the bishop for the twelfth part of a knight's service. The mention of De Argentaneo (or De Argentino) as Master of Kepyer intimates the approximate date. Hunstanworth is thus referred to in the Boldon Book :—"Robertus Corbette tenet Hunstanworth pro servicio suo in forest. sicut in carta sua continetur. . . . Hospitale S^ti^ Egidii tenet ibi juxta divisam Walteri de Bolbec quandam assartam et pasturam ad nutrimenta pecorum et animalium ad opus pauperum quae Dominus Episcopus eis in elemosunam dedit."

The assart and pasture enjoyed there by the Hospital previously to Corbett's donation would be included in Pudsey's Charters. See above, 3 (III), and 4 (VII).

14. (X) The same Robert Corbeth further releases to the Hospital his claim to a parcel of land between Knock-deneburn (Newkton) and the Derwent. By these last two donations the possessions of the Hospital in the upper part and to the North of Weardale became further extended.

15. (IV) Also in the thirteenth century, Ralph de Epplyndone (Epplyngdon, Epplynden, &c.; hodie Eppleton) granted to the Hospital in fee farm a carucate of land in Epplynden (whereof an oxgang contained fifteen acres),[1] with the privilege of grinding at his mill next to himself and his heirs, on the terms, "dabunt multuram ad vicesimum vasculum"; and, further, 20 acres in Barnes and Estwell, 2 crofts specified, and common pasture for 240 sheep and 20 swine; the reserved rent for all being 4*s.*

"Ralph, fil. Rogeri de Epplyngdene vixit tempore Hen. III" (Surtees, I, p. 217; Pedigree of Epplyngden). In the following century this possession was exchanged for a perpetual rent-charge on the whole Eppleton estate. For in a charter of Bishop Richard Kellaw, dated 24th December, 1311, the Master (Hugo de Monte Alto) and the brethren of Kepyer are allowed to grant to Robert de Epplynden, the then lord, a messuage and two carucates of land there, to be held by him and his heirs of the bishop in capite, they paying to the Hospital for ever after an annual rent of 113*s.* 4*d.* out of the said lands and the whole manor of Epplynden, with power to the Master and brethren to distrain ("Registrum Palatinum Dunelm.," Vol. ii, p. 1145).[2]

16. (XI) In the latter half of the thirteenth century the Hospital also acquired possessions in the parishes of Ryton and Lanchester, by the grant of Robert, Bishop of Durham, who must have been either Robert de Stichill (1260–1274) or Robert de Insula (1274–1283). He granted to the Hospital his whole tenement of Crawcrook (parish of

[1] The oxgang, being as much land as an ox was supposed to be able to plough in the year, varied in different localities according to the nature of the ground.

[2] Surtees ("History of Durham," i, p. 217, under Eppleton) states that Ralph of Eppleton's original deed of grant was, in his time, in the possession of Francis Mascall, Esq., the rent-charge having been purchased from the Tempests; and that it bears the old seal of Kepyer Hospital, a female figure supposed to represent the Blessed Virgin, whereas the later seal of the house was St. Giles and his "goat." Surtees should have said "his hind."

Ryton-on-Tyne), with mill and mill-service of the whole vill, the land which Adam de Ryton held, the millstream and fishery of the Tyne, &c., and also the whole vill of Yvestone (parish of Lanchester), which he had of the grant of James Latoun. The moiety of the vill of Crawcrook, comprised in this donation, was called after the Dissolution Little Kepyer.

17. (XVII) In the time also of Robert, Bishop of Durham (whether Stichill or De Insula), Henry Lyhtfot granted to the Hospital land at Dernecrok, with various privileges. Dernecrook is in the parish of Gateshead-on-Tyne.

The following charters are included, the dates of which the present Editor has not discovered :—

(XII). In Elwick Ralph de Amundevill granted a thrave of corn from every carucate in his vill of Stotfold.

(XVIII). The people of Bedlingtonshire commuted the thrave of corn due to the Hospital from every carucate of the bishop's demesne lands for 9*s.* a year, payable at Michaelmas, "for the support of the poor and strangers constantly resorting thither." The difficulty attending the carriage of the corn might be the reason of the commutation.

In addition to the benefactions above specified it appears from other evidence that (probably early in the thirteenth century) one Wido de Hotona (Henry-Hutton) had given lands to Kepyer Hospital, and that subsequently the Hospital had granted the same lands to the Priory of Finchale (see "Priory of Finchale," Surtees Society, 1837, p. 100). But this land having been parted with before the fire of 1306, the Charter referring to it is not among those afterwards verified.

Subsequent to the endowments and benefactions so far specified as having been verified by Bishop Kellaw's commission after the fire of 1306 we may notice the following :—

1. The same Bishop Kellaw, having in the first year of his episcopate (1311), probably for the convenience of the Hospital in its depressed state after the invasion of the Scots, allowed (as above seen, p. xxiv) commutation of its possessions at Eppleton for a rent-charge on the estate, granted in his second year (1312) the tithes of all recently reclaimed lands (novalium et novi assarti) near Gatesheved (Gateshead), and Brounsyde in the parish of Auckland, until he should order otherwise concerning them; which tithes had been held and received by his predecessor, Anthony Bek. The purpose of this subvention is alleged to be to relieve the depressed state of the Hospital, and enable it to continue and multiply its charitable works, and specially to provide two chaplains for daily divine service in addition to those already ministering ("Registrum Palatinum," Vol. ii, p. 1164).

2. Further, in his fifth year (1315), he assigned all such tithes of lands brought into cultivation since the eighteenth year of Bishop Bek and during his own episcopate in various places about Auckland and elsewhere, all definitely specified, to the foundation of "the Prebend of Kypier" in the Collegiate Church of Auckland, to be called the fourteenth Prebend, and to be appropriated in perpetuity to the Master of Kepyer for the time being, who was to have a stall in the choir, and all rights of a Prebendary. The conditions annexed were, that the Masters of Kepyer should provide one sub-deacon, with a stipend of 30s. a year, for the Collegiate Church of Auckland; that there should be two additional chaplains maintained in Kepyer Hospital (making eight priests there always, inclusive of the Master) celebrating there for the bishop himself, his predecessors and successors; that ten additional poor people should be relieved at the Hospital in the daily evening distributions; that on the bishop's anniversary, which was always to be kept, thirteen poor should receive each, and be content with, one loaf of the weight of sixty solidi, pottage (potagium), drink, and three red herrings (allecibus, which may denote any kind of salted fish), each of the eight priests celebrating at that time on eight successive days for the donor's soul. In consideration of the burden thus laid on him beyond that of other prebendaries, the Master was to be exempt from attending synods, chapters, visitations, and the like; but he must always reside in the Hospital, unless at any time he should be in personal attendance on the bishop himself. For failure in the fulfilment of these conditions power was further reserved to the bishop for the time being to declare both Mastership and Prebend vacant, and to collate anew. ("Registrum Palatinum," ii, p. 1272).

At the same date, a mandate was issued to the Archdeacon, or his official, to induct Hugh de Monte Alto to the prebend personally or by his proctor, he having already been invested personally per nostrum annulum (Ibid., p. 1277).

In the same year (2nd June, 1315) we find also a fresh and more formal assignment to the Master of the tithes of the new assarts[1] about Gateshead, this time with the assent specified of the Chapter of the Convent of Durham, and with the names of witnesses appended. The preamble to this Deed refers, as before, to the depressed state of the Hospital at the time, with especial mention of its spoliation and burning by the Scotch (Ibid.).

3. The same Bishop Kellaw granted licence to William Wilde to bestow in perpetuity on the Hospital a messuage and 42 acres of land at Plauseworth, to be held of the bishop in chief for the accustomed services (Ibid., p. 1281).

4. Bishop Hatfield, in the same century (A.D. 1351), in consideration of the plague, known as the "Black Death," among the tenants of the Hospital, failure of crops, and murrain among cattle, granted an indulgence of 300 days to all who should contribute to its relief (See Appendix A, XIII).

5. In the same century the advowson of the living of Hunstanworth, where the Hospital already had possessions (see above, Charter IX), together with some other land there, was transferred from the Convent to the Hospital. As early as 1331 Bishop Beaumont had granted his licence for the transference in return for a rent-charge on the Hospital's manors at Caldecot and Clifton. But it was not till 1352, under Bishop Hatfield, that the negotiation was concluded, the question of an adequate equivalent to the Convent for the grant having, as it seems, arisen meanwhile. In 1335 Bishop Bury, who intervened between Beaumont and Hatfield, had granted licences, with this view, for the transference from the Hospital to the Convent of tithes at Pittington and Sherburn (See Appendix A, V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, XI). It would seem that the bargain, however concluded, did not turn out altogether satisfactory to the Hospital. For we find them obtaining leave from Bishop Hatfield to defer the appointment of a Rector to the living, there being no one found, as they alleged, to accept it, in view of its reduced revenues and the dilapidated state of its buildings (See Appendix A, X).

[1] In 1321 the tithes of the new assarts about Gateshead and of all the bishop's demesne lands there were commuted for a payment by the Rector of Gateshead to the Hospital of four marks at Pentecost and Martinmas. See Charter of Bishop Beaumont (Durham Treasury, Reg. ii, fo. 81).

6. Lastly, Bishop Nevill, in 1445, appropriated the Rectory of St. Nicholas in Durham, with its glebe at Old Durham, to the Hospital (See Appendix A, I).

Such, and so acquired, having been the possessions of the Hospital of Kepyer before the Dissolution, a brief notice only is called for here of their history after that event, a sufficient account being given in Surtees' "History of Durham," or elsewhere. It may, then, be enough to note that on the 14th of January, 1545, they were surrendered by the last Master, William Frankleyn, to the Crown ; that Henry VIII thereupon granted them to Sir William Paget and Richard Cock ; that, having reverted to the Crown after the attainder and disgrace of Paget, they were granted by Edward VI (23rd May, 1552) to John Cockburne, Lord of Ormeston, a Scot, who sold them, after holding them seventeen years, to a Londoner, John Heath, Esq., Warder of the Fleet, from whom, through the marriage of Elizabeth, heiress of the Heaths, in 1642 to John Tempest, Esq., son of Sir Thomas Tempest, Attorney-General of Ireland, the lordship of the manor of St. Giles, with other possessions of the dissolved Hospital, has been inherited by the present Marquess of Londonderry.

Portions of the property had, however, been previously parted with by the Heath family, Kepyer itself having been sold to Ralph Cole, of Gateshead, in 1630, and the Tempests being consequently described as of Old Durham, not of Kepyer. With regard to Old Durham, it is to be observed that it was glebe of the Rectory of St. Nicholas in Durham, which Rectory, as has been already shown, was appropriated to the Hospital by Bishop Neville A.D. 1445. It was leased by Ralph Booth (Master of Kepyer) in 1479 to his relative Richard Booth and his descendants, on a lease of 99 years, and was consequently in the possession of the Booth family till 1578, when it would revert to the first John Heath as the then impropriator.

A list, with notices, of the successive Masters, or Wardens, of Kepyer will be found in Appendix D. They appear to have been usually men of mark, and to have been employed by the bishops in other honourable functions. The Hospital itself, being a well-endowed ecclesiastical corporation, was evidently regarded as an important foundation, the headship of which was a position of dignity.

MAGDALEN HOSPITAL.

A little to the north of the higher part of the street of St. Giles there still stands a chapel in ruins, which was formerly that of the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen, and also a rectorial parish church, the land around it (about 23 acres) having constituted a separate parish. No distinct record of the origin of this Hospital and attached rectory has been found. Surtees ("History of Durham," Vol. iv, Part 2, p. 67) says vaguely that it "originated in some exchange of lands betwixt the Prior and the House of Kepyer; but the Master and brethren of St. Giles objected to any part of their estate being converted to a purpose not contemplated by their founder. The Prior therefore satisfied the scruple by building and endowing the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen." Where he got this story he does not say. If he gathered it from the "Compositio inter Priorem et conventum et domum de Kypyare," preserved in the Durham Treasury (See Appendix B, I), he must have read it very cursorily, though probably right in connecting that "Composition" with the origin of the Hospital. Its purport may be summarized as follows :—

The Hospital of Kepyer had lands at Amerston and Hurworth, which had been given by Gilbert Hansard for the support of a chaplain to celebrate for himself and his family (See Appendix A, I, Charter V). The Convent of Durham had property at Chyrton in Northumberland, which had been given by John de Hameldun for the support of three priests to celebrate for himself and his family on condition of his two brothers, Henry and Walter, being the firmarii feodarii, paying nine marks a year to the Convent. An exchange of these properties between the Hospital and the Convent had been proposed, but, after some contention, had fallen through, owing, apparently, to the Convent's unwillingness to maintain the three priests on the terms proposed in the exchange. Eventually, however, through the action of G. Hansard and Walter de Hameldun (the representatives of the two families whose souls were to be benefited), a composition was agreed to, one part of the conditions of which was that the Hospital should cede to the Convent certain land at Hurworth, together with twelve acres of "Southcroft" near the city of Durham, producing altogether an annual revenue of three marks, which were to be devoted by the said Convent to pious uses through the hands of its almoner in a certain place for the benefit of the souls of the said John de Hameldun and of all the departed. Now land and tenements at "Southcroft," described as being in Gilligate, had been given to Kepyer Hospital by "Stephanus Capellanus" (See Appendix A, I, Charter XIX), and, inasmuch as the "Composition" which has been summarized is headed "Hospitale S. Mariae Magd. juxta Kipyer," and as the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen is known to have been ever under the almoner of the Convent, there can be little doubt either that "Southcroft" was the land surrounding it and held with other land for its benefit, or that to the "Composition" before us its origin is to be traced.

Other documents, also in the Durham Treasury, appear to refer to negotiations between the Convent and the Hospital on the same subject (See Appendix B, II, III, IV). Such transactions are interesting as showing how religious houses bartered with each other properties given them by benefactors for the repose of their souls, and were glad to transfer to each other the onus of providing masses for them.

Thus we may with probability assign the origin of Magdalen Hospital to John de Hameldun's donation to the Convent for procuring masses for himself and his family, and the date of its consequent foundation to about the middle of the thirteenth century.

There is, however, also in the Dean and Chapter Treasury a curious document (first published by the Rev. Francis Thompson in the "Transactions of the Durham and Northumberland Architectural Society, 1869–1875"), which may appear at first sight, though not really, to assert a different origin. It is in the form of a complaint (Querela), apparently circa temp. Edw. II (1307–1327), addressed to the Prior of Durham, of alleged wrong done to the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen by an almoner of the Convent, and in its preamble it is alleged as certain that a knight, by name John le Fitz Alisaundre, had founded and endowed the Hospital for a chaplain and thirteen brothers and sisters of the same, who were to be needy persons of good character who had seen better days; and that his endowment consisted of lands lying near the Hospital and before the gate at Schirburn, and that for the sustenance for the chaplain and brethren he assigned to the Almonry of the Convent the vill of Rylley and the mill, &c., of the vill of Chilton. Now this document, being endorsed as "not containing truth for the most part," cannot, of course, be trusted as in all respects correct; but it seems at any rate possible that the "Sir John le Fitz Alisaundre" to whom the foundation is attributed was the same as "John de Hameldun," who, according to the "Composition," had given property at Chyrton to the Convent, Chyrton and Chilton being supposed to denote the same place. If so, the account given in the Querela is not inconsistent with the inference from the "Composition," since, according to the latter, it was the donation of this John that originated the negotiations which resulted in the foundation of the Hospital, and it was for his soul especially that masses were to be said there. (See Appendix B, V, for a copy and translation of the Querela). The Hospital was further enriched by benefactions of individuals (referred to by Surtees, IV, ii, p. 67), including tenements in Maudlingate; and, in 1391, Bishop Walter Skirlaw granted an indulgence in its favour (See Appendix B, VI). In 1449 the church, being in a ruinous condition because of the watery ground (terra aquosa) on which it had been built, was removed to a site further west under a licence from Bishop Robert Neville to the Prior and Convent. He granted also an indulgence of forty days to all contributors to the new chapel, the ruins of which remain. It was consecrated by a bishop, described as Episcopus Holen., under a licence from Bishop Nevill dated 6th May, 1451 (Appendix B, VII, VIII).

A rent of 3*s*. a year from a house in Crossgate was given to the Hospital by a Vicar of Billingham (Appendix B, IX).

Other benefactions, with a further account of the property and position of the Hospital, are found in the Hunter MSS., No. 37 (Appendix B, X).

In the "Transactions of the Durham and Northumberland Architectural Society, 1869–1875," above referred to, will be found interesting references to entries in the Almoner's Rolls, preserved in the Durham Treasury, about the building and furnishing of the new chapel, and previous repairs of the old one, as well as notes about the present remains of the ancient buildings.

After the Dissolution the Hospital shared the fate of other similar foundations; but its revenues, being vested in the Almoner of the Convent, passed to the new Dean and Chapter, who continued to pay a stipend to the clerk officiating in the Parish Church of St. Mary Magdalen, till, some time after the Restoration, the Church having been allowed to fall into ruin, its services were discontinued, and the stipend of £4 annexed to the office of Librarian. It appears that before the Dissolution this Church had been served (wholly or in part) by the master of the school for poor boys who were maintained by the Convent and taught in the Infirmary outside the gates. Among the duties of their teacher was that of saying mass twice a week in the Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen near Kepyer, and once a week at Kimblesworth (Appendix B, X).

THE PARISH CHURCH AND LIVING.

As has been seen above, the Church founded by Bishop Flambard appears to have been intended originally as the Chapel of Kepyer Hospital ; but it came to serve the purpose of a Parish Church also as the population grew up around it. The Brethren of the Hospital, being an ecclesiastical corporation, would have the cure of souls, serving the Church in person, perhaps usually through one of their Chaplains appointed for the purpose. For from the Manor Court books (which commence in 1490) we find that in 1501 Thomas White appeared at an extraordinary visitation of the Archbishop of York as Parochial Chaplain of the Church of St. Giles. After the Dissolution, there having been apparently no separate endowment of a Vicarage, the lay impropriator would be responsible for providing a minister ; but how he did so there seems to be no distinct evidence to show. It may be observed that for some time we find the ministers of the parish designated as Curates or Chaplains only. So, in the Registers of Baptisms and Burials from which extracts are given in this volume, William Murray in 1591, 1592, and 1594, and Sir John Watson in 1604 and 1621, are called Curates ; and in the Register of Marriages, A.D. 1630, the latter is described as "hujus ecclesiae capellanus." But in 1650, for the first time, as far as is known, we find a Vicarage spoken of, viz., in the "Book of Rates for the Co. Pal. of Durham."[1] Further, there is distinct evidence that in 1655 the Incumbents were entitled to tithes from certain lands in the parish. See "A note of lands paying tithe to the Church of St. Giles," preserved in the Parish Register and printed in this volume, p. 152. Then in 1704 William Done, though describing himself in the Registers as "Curate," signs the Churchwardens' Accounts as "Vicar": and subsequently the Incumbents, though designated only as Perpetual Curates, have claimed without dispute tithes of corn, hay, green crops, &c., from certain lands or tenements in the parish. It is observable that William Cam, who was Incumbent next before the above-named Done and died A.D. 1682 (see Register of Burials), signs himself and is designated in the Register as Rector. This, however, is the only instance. How the right to tithes originated, and why the incumbents came to be thus variously designated, is a question that invites enquiry. Certain tithes may have been assigned to the living by one of the lay impropriators. In 1665 an Act of Parliament was passed enabling owners of impropriations to reunite tithes or portions of tithes to a parsonage or vicarage without licence of Mortmain; and though this Act was subsequent to the dates above given, its intention may have been to legalize what had already been commonly done.

It may be observed lastly, in connexion with the subject, that in the Registers (Vol. III, p. 154) we find the following entry:—"A true Register of all the Orchards or yards that pay a modus to ye Rector or his Curate at Easter . . . as they have been paid time out of mind in lieu of the tyth of hay herbs or fruit growing in ye same . . . And received Anno 1693 per Wm. Done, Curate." Here the customary payments in lieu of small tithes are said to have been time out of mind due, not to the Curate,

[1] "The Book of Rates for Co. Pal. of Durham, as it was settled about the year 1650—Alsoe with some Augmentations & Ecclesiastical Revenues added since and with divers others—A.D. 1693," contains the following entry:—"St. Giles' Parish. The Vicarage—Augmentacion £0 2s. 0d."

Further, a valuation of lands in Durham for a subsidy to King Charles II in 1670 contains—"The Vicarage of St. Giles, £2 0s. 0d." (The Late Rev. F. Thompson's papers).

but to the Rector or his Curate. This may be taken to imply that they had been originally due to the Impropriator of the Living, though perhaps usually allowed by him to be received by the clerks whom he deputed to serve the cure. At first after the dissolution of the Hospital, as will appear below, the curates appear to have been only unlicensed stipendiaries of the impropriator, who may have chosen in this way to provide them with a pittance, to which, by prescription, or legal sanction, they eventually acquired a claim; and, when this came to be so, they would suitably be called Vicars. Further, it may have been because of the endowment having been originally rectorial that Cam assumed the title of Rector.

A claim to other endowments was set up by the Rev. Francis Thompson, the Incumbent, when in the year 1851 a suit was instituted against the churchwardens with respect to certain property in the parish known as "the Church Estate." Mr. Thompson contended as follows :—

Though there appeared to have been no original endowment of a Vicarage, there had been from time immemorial a Guild, endowed with certain burgages or tenements in the parish, for the maintenance of a priest in the Church of St. Giles. In the Survey of Colleges and Chantries under Henry VIII in 1546 it is described as a Guild in the parish church of St. Giles, reported to have been founded to find a priest for ever for the maintenance of God's service in the said church; and in the "Valor Ecclesiasticus" of Henry VIII its possessions are defined as consisting of the site of the chamber of Richard Middleton the Incumbent, the chamber there, and 24 burgages in the street of St. Giles. Now there are still in the parish certain burgages or tenements, constituting what is called the Gilligate Church Estate, the rents and profits of which had till 1851 been for long received and applied to various parochial purposes by the churchwardens. In that year a Chancery suit ("The Attorney General v. Salkeld") was instituted against the churchwardens (of whom Salkeld was one) for maladministration of this estate. It was alleged that the Churchwardens had been accustomed to let the burgages or tenements on leases of 21 years corruptly and unprofitably, and in recent times had been content with a "Beefsteak Supper" given them by lessees in lieu of adequate fines for renewal. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Thompson laid claim to the profits of this estate for the living on the ground of it having originally belonged to the ancient guild. His supposition was, that after the dissolution of Kepyer in 1545 Richard Middleton, the incumbent of the Guild, had served the Church in the absence of any Vicar,[1] and that after his death the tenements in question, having belonged to the Guild, had been retained in trust by its four proctors, and from them passed to the Churchwardens, for its essential original purpose of "the maintenance of God's service in the Church of St. Giles," the impropriator being only too glad thus to save his own pocket.[2] It was further contended that, though Guilds and Chantries had by 1 Edw. VI, c. 14, A.D. 1547, been dissolved and their property given to the King, and though lands and tenements which had belonged to this ancient guild were shown by the Ministers' Accounts of the 3rd and 4th years of Edward to have passed into the hands of the Crown, and though some of them, so described, had been demised by the Crown under Elizabeth, yet that copyhold lands, which some of these were, had been especially excepted in the Act of Edward VI, and power had been given to endow therewith Vicarages in Churches where there were Chantries. There was, indeed, no evidence forthcoming of this having been done, or of the claimant's other suppositions as above-said; but probability was alleged, and it was contended that, in the absence of any other known origin of the "Church Estate," the Church had, at any rate, an equitable claim. The circumstance of the lands having been held by the Churchwardens, and not by the minister of the parish, was accounted for by the allegation that Mr. Heath, having succeeded to the full rights of the Hospital, claimed to serve the Church by a stipendiary Curate removable at pleasure, and hence that there was no Incumbent in whom the property could be vested; that the Churchwardens were, in fact, sequestrators for the living.[1]

[1] This supposition is confirmed by the fact that the plate, etc., of the Church, as well as of the Guild, was at first left in the charge of Richard Middleton, to be accounted for by him to the Crown. See Appendix C, p. 249.

[2] These suppositions receive confirmation from the fact that in the "Clavis Ecclesiastica" of Bishop Barnes (1575–77) the Guild, with revenue derived therefrom, is mentioned as still existing ("St. Giles Gilde in St. Giles Churche, vii*l.* iiij*s.* ij*d.*").

The Court, however, held that, in the absence of any proved identification of the property of the Church Estate with that of the ancient Guild, the claim could not be sustained, except with regard to one tenement, described as "Legge's Lease," which is at present occupied as "The Woodman" Inn. This alone, in the scheme sanctioned by the Court, was assigned to "the maintenance of God's service," its net income (estimated at the time as £20, but now, according to the accounts published in January, 1895, amounting to £50) being allowed to go towards the payment of assistant curates in the parish of St. Giles and in the then newly-formed district (now the parish) of Belmont.

The Editor of this Volume desires to express gratefully his obligation to the Rev. Canon Greenwell, Librarian of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, for important aid given him in the search for and transcription of ancient documents in the Durham Treasury; to the Rev. P. A. M. Sullivan, Vicar of St. Giles, for access to his parish books, together with much interesting information; and, last but not least, to the Rev. J. T. Fowler, Vice-Principal of Bishop Hatfield's Hall and Librarian of the University of Durham, for valuable assistance in the deciphering of MSS., interpretation of words and phrases, revision of proofs, and the preparation of the Index. Thanks are also due to Mrs. Thompson, of Warkworth, for her kindness in placing at the disposal of the Editor the valuable papers left in manuscript by the Rev. Francis Thompson, formerly Incumbent of St. Giles.

[1] This view is confirmed by the fact that in the "Clavis Ecclesiastica" of Bishop Barnes (1575–77) St. Giles is among "the Churches and Chappells having none Incumbents, but served by stipendiarye Preestes" (See Surtees Society's Publications, vol. xxii, pp. 5, 6); and that at the visitation held at Durham by Robert Swift, the Chancellor, in 1577, the curate of St. Giles who appeared was unlicensed;—"Robertus Prentize, curatus ibidem. Personaliter. No licence" (Ibid., p. 46).

PARISH OF ST. GILES,
DURHAM.

PREFACE TO GRASSMEN'S ACCOUNTS.

The office of Grassmen, whatever be the derivation of the name—whether from grass, or, as the better opinion seems to be, from gersuma (see p. 9)—was to take charge of the common lands of parishes. In the parish of St. Giles they were two in number, elected annually in Vestry on the Sunday after Ascension Day. They continued to be so appointed, certainly till 1790, to which year the two extant books of their accounts extend, and probably till the enclosure of the moor in 1817. The funds for which they were accountable arose mainly from "stents" (i.e., rights of pasturage) on the moor, as well as in certain "townfields," which were subject to intercommon during the winter months (see p. 40, note 2). They also derived income from rents of certain common lanes which were available for pasturage, from "cavells," or allotments on the moor, from "tenter-rents" (paid for the privilege of bleaching on the common land), and, till the lord of the manor interfered, from the sale of whins. From time to time, also, they were empowered by parish meetings to exact "cesses" for various specific purposes (see pp. 11, 22, 25, &c.). Their expenditure was primarily for maintenance of the moor, its fences, gates, water supply, and the like, including prosecutions for trespass and law-suits respecting rights of commonage, and other expenses connected therewith. They met also out of their funds governmental requirements, as for bridges in the County, the house of correction, apprehension and conveyance of prisoners, maintenance of the parish armour, supply of soldiers for military musters, and provisions for the king's service. In the earlier years of their accounts we find, to a small extent, provision for the poor included, and in one year (1586) a contribution for casting a church bell.

The system of stinting (or stenting) on the common land appears to have been as follows. The right was confined to inhabitants of Gilligate after an initiatory payment. In the earlier years of the accounts the scale of payments seems to have varied ; but in 1701 the following rules were sanctioned for permanent observance:—

(1) All existing "stinters" were to be thenceforth "free of the common."

(2) Other inhabitants, or strangers coming to reside in the "Street," might acquire six "gates" (i.e., free pasture for six animals) on payment of £6, i.e. £1 per "gate," except as below specified.

(3) Such as had served their apprenticeship in the "Street," or were qualified by "birthright," were to be entitled to the same privilege on payment only of 12*s.*, i.e. 2*s.* per "gate."

(4) Strangers coming into possession of a house in the "Street," whether by purchase or inheritance, and residing therein, were to pay £3, i.e. 10*s.* per "gate."

The qualification by "birthright" is shown by subsequent entries of payments to have included children and sons-in-law of existing "stinters" : but an eldest son and heir succeeded to his father's full right for an acknowledgement of 1*s.* only.

Prominent among the expenses in these accounts are those attending "Bounder Day," i.e., the day of the annual perambulation of the boundaries, which took place in this parish always on Ascension Day, and that day only, the new Grassmen, as has been said above, being appointed on the following Sunday. A few words may be in place here for the purpose of drawing attention to the mode of its observance. Though, as is well known, the old Rogation processions were continued after the Reformation for the double purpose of giving thanks to God for the fruits of the earth and of defining boundaries, directions being given for their due religious observance in the Injunctions and in the Advertisements of Queen Elizabeth (see Sparrow's Collection, pp. 73, 125), and four of the authorized Homilies having been composed for delivery on these occasions, and though there is abundant evidence of the general continuance of the observance,[1] yet there is no allusion to it in these books till 1635, i.e., the 10th year of Charles I,

[1] Among such evidences we may note as peculiarly interesting the account given by Walton, in his "Life of Hooker," of the careful observance by that great divine of "the customary time of procession" ("Life of Hooker," p. 184), and the strong commendation of it in Herbert's "Country Parson" (chap. 35). See also "Brand's Popular Antiquities," and especially on pages 202, 206 (Ed. 1873).

when we find, "The 23rd of May, Mr. Smeth and the Churchwardans with others of the parishe in Charges spent that day in goinge about the bounders, 4*s.* 8*d.*" It does not indeed follow from the previous silence that the usage, prevalent elsewhere, had been neglected in this parish. It may have only been that cost attending it had not been included in the Grassmen's accounts. But still the form of the entry, as if the thing required some explanation, unlike subsequent entries in which "Bounder Day" is spoken of as a matter of course, may seem to suggest something then unusual. If so, "Mr. Smeth," who was evidently the leader of the ceremonial, was a likely man to have revived an ancient custom. For he was the same Elias Smith, incumbent from 1632 to 1665 and head-master of the Grammar School, who was noted for having preserved the books and vestments of the Cathedral in the troublous times of the Commonwealth (Cf. p. 62, note 2). He was thus likely to have had a love for old Church usages. After 1635, except during the period of Puritan ascendancy, "Bounder Day" evidently became a regular annual festival, with increasing festivities and increasing expenditure. What religious rites accompanied it, in Mr. Smith's time or afterwards, our books do not show. But the very prominence of "Mr. Smeth" on the first recorded occasion, with the continual mention afterwards of the "parson and clerk," lead us to conclude that there were some. Further, I am informed by Mr. Robert Allison, the present "Grieve" of the manor (who occupies an antiquated house in Gilligate attached to his office, and whose main duty now seems to be that of conducting the now septennial perambulations), that his father, who had been "Grieve" before him, had told him that "Parson Blackett" (a former incumbent) used to read prayers during the procession on "Whinny-hill"—a mound covered with whins between the Rainton and Sherburn roads not far distant from their divergence at the head of the "Street." This was no doubt a remnant of ancient usage.[1]

[1] In the "Injunctions of Queen Elizabeth" (1559) it is ordered that the curate, at convenient places during the processions, should exhort the people to thankfulness, saying Psalm ciii (Benedic, anima mea), with such sentences as "Cursed be he which translateth the bounds or dolles of his neighbour," or such other order of prayers as should be lawfully appointed. In the "Advertisements" (1564), it is further enjoined that "in the Rogation days of Procession they shall sing or say in English the two psalms beginning Benedic, anima mea, with the Letany and Suffrages thereunto, with one Homily of Thanksgiving to God." In Vol. lxiv of the Surtees Society's Publications (Appendix) will be found a very interesting

The following particulars of the observance after 1635, as shown by these Grassmen's books, may here be noted. In 1636, 1637, 1638, 1639, it is briefly noticed thus :— "For going about our bounders," the expenses being moderate, never amounting to more than 5*s*. After this there is no allusion to it till the year of the Restoration, 1660. The breaking out of civil war (of which these accounts show abundant signs) would in the first place account for the interruption, and then the prohibition of all such superstitious vanities under the Commonwealth. It should be observed, however, that for 1640, between 1643 and 1647, and again between 1649 and 1659, no accounts remain. Certainly at once on the return of the merry monarch the observance was revived, and went on year after year with increasing festivity and increasing expenditure. After a time the cost seems to have been complained of; for in 1705 we find an order of Vestry limiting it in future to 16*s*. ; but, as the succeeding accounts show, without any permanent effect. As time went on, we observe as follows. The perambulation, except for the common herd, was on horseback, the parson, and often the clerk too, being mounted at the cost of the parish. Children, both "lads" and "lasses," always accompanied the procession, and were regaled on the route with bread, cheese, and ale.[1]

description of the Rogation Procession with solemn religious rites, which was retained at Ripon till about 1830. In it the vested choir, leaving and returning to the Minster during Matins, perambulated the town, chanting certain prescribed psalms and ending with the Litany, halts being made at three places, where the Gospel for the day was read. Such Gospel reading formed part of the pre-Reformation rite at crosses or trees, the latter being hence called "Gospel trees" or "Gospel oaks." Cf. Brand (p. 199, in Ed. 1873) for notice of such "Gospel trees" at Wolverhampton, where "processioning" with religious rites, as at Ripon, is said to have continued till 1796. My abovesaid informant, Mr. Robert Allison, the present "Grieve," speaks of an old oak on the lane to Pittington from the village of Broomside having marked a boundary in the Gilligate perambulation. This may possibly have been a "Gospel Oak." It will be seen in the account given below of the perambulation in 1895 that "the Oak" in this lane is spoken of as still marking the place where a halt was made, beer was broached, and sports were held. Elsewhere in the County of Durham the custom of perambulation is still continued ; notably so at Blanchland, where it is still, or certainly was very lately, conducted with much parade, lasting for two days, though not apparently at the proper Rogation season. But neither there nor elsewhere does there seem to be any retention of religious observances, though at Blanchland certainly (according to a graphic description, written by the parish clerk of the time, of the ceremonial in 1853) there has been no lack of potations and revelry. The original religious meaning of Rogation Processions has been lost sight of in our enlightened age, but by no means any old custom of eating and drinking.

[1] To the credit of the humanity of the good people of St. Giles there is no allusion in these books to the alleged ancient custom of whipping boys at certain places in order to impress on them a lasting remembrance of the

"Musicioners," a drummer and a fiddler being especially mentioned, were always in attendance, being rewarded both by "drinks" and payments. "Drinks" generally were frequent during the procession, which terminated with a dinner for a large number of persons at the cost of the parish, "the parson's dinner," or the "parson's club," and often the clerk's too, being in most years separately mentioned. "Prunes," or "raisins," are occasionally mentioned as provided, and in 1706, for the first time, "tobacco." The first mention of a horse race is in 1688, a saddle, or saddle and spurs, being for several years provided to be run for; and in 1720 and 1721 plates brought from Newcastle are subscribed for. There were also races for the boys, with a hat, or hat and ribbon, for the prize. In 1698, and regularly afterwards, a "lass" with a "garling" (i.e., garland) appears on the scene. In some years there are two, 1s. being always paid to each "lass with y^e^ garling." There were also competitions in dancing among the girls, the prize being a pair of gloves. See A.D. 1708: "For a pare of glufes to dans for, 1s.," and "Given to the gerell that danst for the glufes and lost her part, 6d." We may thus form for ourselves the picture of a pleasant annual gala-day, in which all the parishioners took part, on a flowery and breezy moor still in its primitive freshness, with rites befitting the merry month of May, in which Ascension Day most usually falls. And if, as might well be the case, the frequent and copious potations spoken of led to some excess, this, too, it may be feared, was characteristic of the manners of the age, and cannot be said to be entirely obsolete. See subjoined account of proceedings in 1895. The custom of riding the boundaries is still continued, but now only occasionally, usually once in seven years, followed by a dinner, which is now provided, not by the parishioners, but by the lord of the manor, his manorial court being held on the same day. The most recent court and perambulation were on Ascension Day, 1895. The following description of the latter, supplied by one responsibly concerned in it, may be of interest, and worth preserving:—

"The following is the route traversed in a perambulation of the Boundaries of the Manor on a Court Day, boundaries, in evidence of which custom Brand cites an entry from the old Churchwardens' books at Chelsea, "Given to the boys that were whipt, 4*s.*" The presence, however, of children, usual at perambulations generally, may be supposed to have had the purpose of keeping up a memory of the boundaries in each rising generation.

the Steward, jury and posse comitatus keeping to the main road, whilst the Grieve and Constables traverse the actual Boundary when over cultivated or enclosed land :— viz., from the Britannia Inn to the corner of the Duck Pond; thence to the Sherburn Road at Giles Bridge; thence over the Old Durham estate, in a south-westerly direction, to a point on the old Wagon Way, about 300 yards west of Sherburn Road ; and thence to West Sherburn ; thence to Sherburn Grange, and thence to a point in Renny's Lane east of East House, and then back along Renny's Lane to Gilesgate Moor Cottage ; thence in a northerly direction to the Durham and Sunderland highway at a point a little east of the site of the old Toll Bar ; thence along the Durham and Sunderland Road, past Carrville to the trough beyond Belmont ; then back by the Durham and Sunderland Road to Belmont Hall, where a penny acknowledgement is paid for not going through from Belmont Hall to the Oak Tree in Pittington Lane ; thence back along the Durham and Sunderland highway to the Grange Inn in Carrville, and thence by the cross road to Pittington Lane ; and so to the Oak Tree in Pittington Lane. Here it is customary to tap the barrel of ale and partake of the refreshments supplied for the jury and friends, the posse comitatus being subsequently regaled, and spice distributed to the children, and prizes given for foot races ; after which the perambulation is resumed back to the Britannia Inn, and thence to a doorway of a house below the Britannia Inn, where 1*d.* is paid as an acknowledgement for not traversing the boundary through the premises; thence to a lane near the chain leading down to Ellis Leazes, and a stone is knocked off the wall at the foot of this lane, thus maintaining the right to traverse the boundary to the river, through the field past the Mayor's Well ; then back to Tinkler's Lane, and down Tinkler's Lane to the river, and along the river to Pelaw Leazes Lane, and thence past the Training School to Gilesgate, and then back to the Britannia Inn."

The following further details of the proceedings in 1895 have been furnished by the present Vicar, the Rev. Ponsonby A. M. Sullivan, and are, with his permission, here inserted, inasmuch as it is always desirable to preserve contemporary records of interesting old observances which might otherwise fade from memory :—

"I attended the Capital Court of the Lord of the Manor and Borough of Gilligate, Lord Londonderry. I heard the Jury solemnly sworn in; also the "affeerers,"[1] who had to amerce the fines, and the special constables. Mr. H. D. Wright, steward of the lord, presided. This was in a large upper room of the Britannia Inn. The Churchwardens were then called upon to produce the Church-plate, according to ancient custom. It was not, however, produced: we gave our testimony to its existence. We then paid through our churchwardens certain out-rents for messuages and land belonging to the Church. It being Church property, we were charged, for one year, 3*s*., instead of 21*s*. for seven years. After this the paying of out-rents by copyholders and others went on for nearly two hours. At 1.30 the procession started. First, two or three men, who had to walk the actual boundaries over hedge and ditch. Then the Steward's carriage and pair, containing himself and his clerk, myself, and Mr. Ralph Salkeld, while on the box by the driver sat the Grieve, old Allison, with his beard trimmed, and a grand new suit of clothes, but his old stick, with which he very emphatically laid down the law, pointing out to the walkers the course they should take. After this carriage came a large brake in which sat the Jury; then various conveyances, and a number of men on horseback, and a very large and boisterous crowd of pedestrians. First of all we drove round the site of the extinct duck-pond; then along the Sherburn road, stopping from time to time to watch the walkers, or to refer to the Steward's map for boundary points. Then it was discovered that it was not exactly the bounds of the parish, but of the manor, that were being perambulated. We drove along, pennies being thrown out at intervals for the boys, as far as the turn down to Sherburn House; then back to Dragon Villa, and then down the "Green Lane" to Ravensflats. Here the Jury had to view two gates on the left, or north, side, thrown out illegally by Farmer Parnaby on to the Lord of the Manor's waste land, i.e., the Green Lane. They were adjudicated illegal, I believe. Here the Jury ordered the beer cask to be tapped, and had begun to drink, but the Steward stopped this premature carouse.[2]

[2] If, however, the Steward had studied the Grassmen's books, he would have known that refreshment at this point had been usual in ancient times. Cf., A.D. 1683, "For drinke in Pittington loninge from Ravensflat

We turned back, and on our way one of the horsemen charged with great violence into our carriage, and did some slight damage. Many of the horsemen were very wild and rowdy—some decidedly drunk. When we reached the Sunderland Road, I left the party and walked home. They went on to Belmont, where the beer was broached—by authority this time—and sports were held, chiefly races of various kinds.[1] The Steward told me that there had not been so large and excited a crowd in his memory. When they returned, I once more joined the Steward and a few on foot in the lower part of Gilligate, going with them down Bakehouse lane, and seeing the stone knocked off the wall to mark the right down to the Mayor's Well ; then down Tinkler's lane, up Leazes lane from the river, and so home."

Other matters of interest in these accounts, including historical allusions, will be pointed out in the notes. It may be observed here, with regard to the occupations of the parishioners, that the frequent occurrence of the designations "tanner" and "roper," shows that the industries thus denoted, which exist still, were of old standing in Gilligate, while changed circumstances have caused the "glovers" and "weavers," of whom there is frequent mention, to disappear. Among the latter the "challan-weavers," i.e., shalloon-weavers, are prominent, shalloon being a kind of woollen stuff.

one the bounder day, 8*d*." "Pittington loninge" in this entry, and in the Grassmen's books generally, seems to denote what is now called the "Green Lane," or "Renny's Lane," leading direct from Gilligate to Pittington, and not that between Broomside and Pittington, as in the account given above of the perambulation in 1895.

[1] See above (page 6) for the place, viz., at "the Oak in Pittington Lane," which, as has been pointed out, was probably in olden times a "Gospel Oak." An oak, possibly about 150 years old, still marks the spot, being on the left side of the lane leading from the Village of Broomside to Old Pittington, outside the hedge of the plantation belonging to Belmont Hall, and 437 paces from the middle of the road bridge which crosses the railway at the end of Broomside Village. In an Ordnance Plan of 1857 the tree on this spot is distinctly marked exactly at the place where the present boundary between the parishes of Pittington and Belmont crosses the road. There is a tradition also of another Boundary Oak formerly existing on the Sunderland Road, some way beyond the "trough beyond Belmont Hall." This trough, in the account of the recent perambulation, given above on page 6, is said to be now the boundary in that direction.

[2] Continual mention will be found afterwards of the Parish Bull, kept for the use of the parish, being pastured on the Moor in Summer and housed in Winter. In 1605 a "Bull-house" was built for him, "house-room for the bull" having been previously paid for.

[3] The dike surrounding the Moor may have been planted for the first time this year with a quickset hedge, the young plants being (as appears below) protected by thorns. The "upholding" of this fence will be found to have required continual attention.

[4] Pittington Lane may be identified with the broad green one, now commonly called "Renny's Lane," which runs eastward in a direct line towards Pittington between the Sherburn and Rainton roads. There is still a gate at its eastern end separating it from the parish of Pittington. It will be seen that this as well as other lanes, being fenced on each side, were often let to individuals in successive years for pasturage.

[5] The parish pinfold remained till recent years in the open space on the South side of Gilligate near the Church. It appears from this entry to have been originally enclosed by a dike and hedge. Subsequently, as will be seen, it was fenced with wooden palings, then with a clay wall, and, in 1753, with stone and brick.

[1] I.e., Pittington gate, above referred to, and Sherburn gate, often afterwards mentioned.

[2] Gillsbridge is where a now insignificant brook crosses the Sherburn road, flowing down to the Wear, which it enters at the West end of Pelaw Wood. It will be seen from many subsequent references that there was a "carr," or pond, there, kept up by damming and "scouring" as a watering-place for cattle, from which a "gutter" flowed, over which a new bridge was made in 1735.

[3] It appears from this and other similar entries that certain widows and other poor people had houses and allotments on the Moor, fenced with dikes at the cost of the parish. Cf. (1582), "to william pavie for mendinge of the poore folkes dycke at the more one daye, v*d.*"; (1583) "For mendinge of the poore folkes dycke of the more, viii*d.*"; (1584) "For mendinge of wedow home dycke of the more ii*d.*"; "Wedowe Wilkinson and wedowe taylor do."; "Wedow Winter and for Malle Colson do."; "Wedowe Smythe and peter Crosbie do."; (1586) "Payd for the poore mens dycke that dwell att the pant"; (1590) "For mendinge of certayn poore folkes dickes on the more"; (1591) "For mendinge certayne porcions of the moire dicke belonginge to some poore about the pant"; (1593) The same; and other similar entries. It may be here noted that there appear also to have been formerly certain parcels of land in the parish called "poor's land," traces of which have now disappeared. Notices found of it are as follows. In the Accounts of the Churchwardens, which begin in 1664, there is in that year the entry, "Recd half a year's rent for the poore's land, £1 12 0"; and in 1683, "For dressing the poors land." In the Parish Register there is a memorandum stating that a legacy of £10 by Ralph Young for the use of the poor, A.D. 1636, was "laid out in a parcel of ground for the use of the poore in Gylligate." In the "Note of lands paying tithe to ye Church of St. Gyles," drawn up by Mr. Elias Smith (the Incumbent), A.D. 1655, there are two parcels designated as Poor's "land," viz., one of three roods, called "Midlan Poor Land," in "Pello Leas," and another of one acre in "Bakehouse Leas," i.e., probably in Ellesleases, near the present Bakehouse Lane.

On Gilligate Moor we find mention of "the great Carr" and "the Lower Carr," both "dressed," or "scoured," and "dammed" from time to time for watering the cattle. One of them seems to have been at "Gilsbrigg," where "the bog," "the car," "the letch," and a "watering place," are elsewhere alluded to. For notices of these carrs, see pp. 12, 13, 14, 16, 18, 26, 45. On pages 14 and 45, "the lower carr" is mentioned in connexion with "gilles brige letche."

[1] "The pant" (meaning a conduit for water) is often mentioned. There appear to have been two; for see below, A.D. 1594, "bannds, &c., for the dowre of the lower pant." One of the fields on the South side of the street of Gilligate, a little above "Causey foot," is marked on old plans as "Pant Close," opposite to which on the North side of the street was, till comparatively recent years, a common well, resorted to by the inhabitants for water. In this locality may have been the "lower pant." The other may be supposed to have been on the Moor itself. Cf. below (A.D. 1591), "porcions of the moire dicke belonginge to some poore about the pant." Also (1593) the same.

[2] Ellesleases (still so called) was the tract of land descending towards the river on the North side of the street. The "Common rydge" (rigg ?) might be a portion of the land there subject to rights of commonage.

[3] The bell thus subscribed to from the Grassmen's Fund may have been subsequently recast; for of the three bells now existing, the only one which is not of pre-Reformation date bears the inscription, "Soli Deo Gloria, 1640, A.E., R.T., R.C., T.D.," being thus shown to have been cast subsequently to this year.

[1] Meaning probably the common armour which parishes were required to have ready for use with a view to military service. Cf. "Pittington Churchwardens' Accounts," Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 85. It will be seen below that such armour had to be inspected by the justices from time to time in various appointed places. See Index (Armour), and the direction of the Lord Lieutenant in 1594, given below, from which it appears that the parish was responsible for the equipment of three soldiers.

[2] The Grassmen's receipts, as well as expenses, begin now to be entered yearly. They were derived principally from "stents," i.e., payments for the privilege of pasturing cattle on the common. For the system of such "stents," and of rights of common generally, see Preface, p. 1.

[1] Mr. Heath's bakehouse; i.e., that of the lord of the manor, at which the tenants were required to bake their bread, as well as grind their corn at his mill. Cf. Copy of Court Roll, A.D. 1600 (given below in this volume), in which Mergaret Smithe, tenant of a burgage in Gilligate, is bound "molere granam suam ad molendinum domini, et pinsere panem suum ad Communem pistrinam domini." In a suit instituted in the year 1726 by John Tempest, then lord of the manor, against certain inhabitants for alleged trespass on the common and other infringements of his manorial rights, he asserted the obligation of freeholders as well as copyholders of the borough to use his bakehouse only, even to the exclusion of their right to bake their bread in their own houses. See below, p. 39. It would seem from the entry before us that the parishioners had to keep the lord's bakehouse in repair, as well as resort to it. In the Manor Court Book is found as follows:—"11 Oct., 13th Car. I.——Pain—That all who bake white bread within the parish shall bring it into the bakehouse between 6 & 7 in the forenoon & their household bread between 10 & 11 upon pain of 3*s*. 4*d*. each offender." The lord's bakehouse may be supposed to have been where a bakehouse existed till within living memory, viz., the last house on the North side of the street, where a lane, still called "Bakehouse Lane," bounds the parish on the West; the adjoining land being also designated as "Bakehouse Leazes"; as in the following extract from the Manor Court Book, 3 Nov., 11 Car. I.:—"Pain—That none shall misuse the Bake-house-Well or Bake-house-Leazes-Well upon pain of every one so offending—6*s*. 8*d*."

[2] This appears to have been a new bakehouse, distinct from Mr. Heath's manorial one, which has been already mentioned. It may be that such inhabitants as were not bound by their copyhold tenures to use the lord's bakehouse only were now resolved to have one of their own, at which they could bake on their own terms. We find subsequently in 1610 (p. 39) a specified rate of charges not to be exceeded by the "backhouse-man."

[1] Cf. (A.D. 1597), "For dressing of the common Armar at the Commandement of Mr Richard Bellasses" ("Houghton-le-Spring Vestry Book," Surtees Society, vol. lxxxiv, p. 272). Richard Bellasis, of Morton House in the parish of Houghton, being a justice of the peace, was also a governor of Kepyer Grammar School in that parish with John Heath of Kepyer, who, together with Bernard Gilpin, Rector of Houghton, had founded it. The original governors were the two founders, Heath and Gilpin, with power to either of them to appoint successors. John Heath had apparently appointed Richard Bellasis after the death of Bernard Gilpin in 1583. Henry Anderson, also a justice of the peace, originally of Newcastle, was the owner of Elemore and of Haswell Grange (the latter being in the parish of Easington), and lessee under the Chapter of Durham of Hallgarth Manor in the parish of Pittington, in succession to Christopher Morland, whose daughter and heiress he had married.

[1] The paved way called the "cawcie" (or "causey"), for which we find stones again led in 1599, was probably from Gillsbrig (See above, p. 10, note 2) on the Sherburn road to the bottom of the upper declivity of Gilligate, still called "Causeyfoot," for keeping which in repair one Margaret Hall in 1622 left 30*s*. in her will (See "Extracts from Registers").

[2] Curious information about the "saltpetre man" will be found in Notes and Queries, 1st Series, VII, 376, 433, 460. It appears that any soil impregnated with animal matter, such as that of stables, cow-houses, and dove-cots, was claimed by the Crown with a view to home production of saltpetre, to be used in making gunpowder; and the Government Official for this purpose was called the Saltpetre man. In a proclamation of Charles I (1625), "for the maintaining and increasing of the saltpetre mines of England for the necessary and important manufacture of gunpowder," it is set forth "that our realm yields sufficient mines of saltpetre without depending on foreign parts. Wherefore for the future no dovehouse shall be paved with stones bricks nor boards, lime sand nor gravel, nor anything whereby the growth and increase of the mine of saltpetre may be hindered or impaired, but the proprietors shall suffer the ground or floors thereof, as also all stables where horses stand, to lie open with good and mellow earth, apt to breed increase of the said mine. And that none deny or hinder any saltpetre man, lawfully deputed thereto, from digging taking or working any ground which by commission may be taken & wrought for saltpetre, &c." Another proclamation in 1627 (with reference to a patent that had been granted to Sir John Brooke and Thomas Russel for making saltpetre by a new invention) gives them power to collect the animal fluids, which were to be preserved by families for this purpose, once in 24 hours in Summer, and once in 48 in Winter. It seems that the saltpetre-men were apt to abuse their powers: for Lord Coke, in a "Speech & Charge with a Discourse of the Abuses & Corruptions of Officers" (8vo, London, N. Rutter, 1607), says, "There is also a Saltpetre man, whose commission is not to break up any man's house or ground without leave; and not to deale with any house but such as is unused for any necessarie employment by the owners, &c., and not to digge in any place without leaving it smooth & level, in such case as he found it. This Saltpetre man under shew of his authoritie will make plaine & simple people beleeve that he will without their leave break up the floore of their dwelling house, unless they will compound with him for the contrary, &c." Further, in 1656 an Act was passed forbidding the saltpetre makers to dig in houses without leave of the

[1] The keeping of a sleuth-hound for hunting culprits, the previous provision for a "watch," and the number of prisoners conveyed to various places about this time, appear significant of a state of insecurity, from social or political causes, at this period of Elizabeth's reign.

[2] In this year (1596) a treaty was concluded between Elizabeth, Henry IV of France, and the States against Philip after the taking of Calais by the latter, which was followed by the expedition to Cadiz (See Lingard, vol. vi, p. 273). This may be the "truce" alluded to.

[1] This is the first allusion in the Grassmen's books to the contagious sickness, usually called "the plague," which was prevalent in the North during the latter years of Elizabeth, as to which, and its fatal effects in and about Durham, see Surtees Society's Publications, vol. iv, pt. 2, p. 7. It first affected the parish of St. Giles in 1589, and, after a cessation, broke out again in 1597, ceasing finally in 1604 (?). (See Register of Burials). But it will be seen below that there was again a suspected case in 1605.

Introduction). But the older designation is resumed next year, and continued till 1623, in which year and in 1624 it is again called bower; but in 1625 once more castle; then bower till 1629, after which it ceases to be mentioned. It would thus seem that its later name of "maiden's bower" had come into use certainly by the end of the sixteenth century, though still used interchangeably with "Maiden Castle." The substitution would be natural when the real meaning of the old word maiden was unknown, while the bower of a maiden had become a familiar idea, especially in the poetry of the time.

[1] It thus appears that at this time the parishioners assumed and exercised the right of disposing of the whins on the moor. In 1726 John Tempest, then lord of the manor, in his suit against the parishioners alluded to above (p. 18, note 1), disputed this right, maintaining that the whins were his.

[1] This is the first reference to the custom of calling out the inhabitants once a year to join in "dressing" or "scaling" or "moulding" the moor, to which frequent allusions appear afterwards. Those who "scaled," i.e., scattered the deposits of the cattle, &c., were called the "mouders." They appear to have been summoned by music, and regaled with "drinks." The "pyper" here may have served, not only to summon them, but also to cheer them in their work. Cf., below (A.D. 1674):—"To George Pearson for playing to the mouders," and (A.D. 1695) "For playinge to the mouders when they mouded the moore."

[1] Pellowleases. The enclosed fields on the South of the street, between it and the river, are so designated. These, with others, were called Town fields, being subject to commonage during the winter months :—"Whereas there are within the Manor of Gilligate and Parish of St. Giles certain Town fields or enclosed lands, which are subject to Commonage thereon, calld 'Right of Intercommon,' from 15 Sept. in each year to 31 March in the year following" (Act for Enclosure of Gilligate Moor, 1816). It appears that the fog, as well as the hay, of these fields, till the right of Intercommon began in September, belonged to their "owners," and had to be paid for, if used for pasturage. It will be seen among the "Expenses" of this year that the Grassmen paid the "oweners" 33*s.* 4*d.* for the use of Pellowleases fog, and 30*s.* 6*d.* for that of "Broad Close," which was also apparently a Town field, being on the North side of the Rainton road above the top of the street.

[1] This entry, together with the following reference to "beacons," and repeated inspections of the armour this year and afterwards, seems significant of the political state of things at this time; also, and still more, in 1622 and subsequent years. The projected intervention of England at this period of James's reign in the contest on the Continent between the Protestant States and Spain may account for such military activity.

[2] Were these purveyors for the purpose suggested above in note 1, p. 49? "Purveyance" is defined by Bailey, "Providing of corn, fewel, victuals, &c., for the King's house." Cf. (A.D. 1627), "Purvey money." But sessments for the king's "provision" recur henceforth continually till the Commonwealth, being, we may suppose, for his general requirements for the king's service.

[1] The "Brigland fogge" may possibly have been that of a close at Gillsbridge.

[2] "Harr Kutt." Apparently some part of a soldier's equipment. Can it be meant for "haketoun" (or "Hacqueton"), a word defined in the Glossary to Chaucer's Poetical Works (London, G. Bell, 1888) as "a short-cassock without sleeves"? Cf. "The Tale of Sir Mopas" ("Canterbury Tales"):—

"And next his schert an aketoun,
And over that an haberjoun,
For persying of his hert."

See also Johnson's Dictionary:—"HACQETON. Some piece of armour. 'You may see the very fashion of the Irish horseman in his long hose, riding shoes of costly cordwain, his hacqueton, and his habergeon.'—Spencer's 'State of Ireland.'"

[2] Mr. Elias Smith succeeded Sir John Watson as Curate of St. Giles A.D. 1632. He was also Minor Canon and Precentor of the Cathedral, Head Master of the Grammar School, and at one time Vicar of Bedlington. To him was due the careful preservation of the books of the Cathedral Library, and the vestments belonging to the Church during the Commonwealth. See "Mickleton MSS.," quoted below. It will be seen from the extracts from the Registers of the parish of St. Giles, which are given below, that after 1642 the entries are irregular and few, and for many years there are none; but that in 1667, the seventh year after the Restoration, a new Register book was bought, in which regular entries were made, and that Elias Smith is there specified as still minister of the parish. We may suppose him to have had to relinquish his ministrations during the troublous period. The Bishop, and the Cathedral clergy, with the Dean, Walter Balcanqual, fled from Durham when the Scotch Covenanters, after defeating Lord Conway at Newburn-on-Tyne in 1640, had entered the Bishopric, and seized the tithes and rents of the clergy. Smith, however, may have continued in the locality, viz., at Old Durham, then in the possession of the Tempest family; for there is in the new Register book a copy of a Terrier, said to have been found in the study at Old Durham, and "writ by Mr Elias Smyth" in 1655. The following notices of him appear in the "Mickleton MSS.":—"De Canonicis minoribus [petit Canons].—Elias Smith Clericus A.M., Min. Can. erga finem Ai 1628. Fuit Archididasculus Scholae Gram. infra mentionatae Dec. & Cap. D. post Ric'um Smelt Clericum Archid. Scholae predictae. Fuit Rector de Bedlington. Fuit precentor Eccl. [1] Perhaps meaning "Seven Acres dike," i.e. the dike of the Close or common field so called in Pellow Leases.

[2] It seems probable that such accounts as do follow now, previous to 1661, were not entered till 1660, the year of the Restoration. For they are confused, as well as scanty, as though there had been difficulty in making them out and squaring them. We may observe also the payment of 2*s*., instead of 1*s*. 6*d*. as previously, for "writtinge our accompts," and an additional 1*s*. for "rectyfyinge" them. An illiterate person seems to have been employed. Perhaps none more competent was at that time available. The learned Elias Smith had not returned to his cure. Similar remarks apply to the parish registers of the period. Since 1640, indeed, the scantiness of the accounts had shown signs of the disturbed state of things. It is interesting to note what had since then occurred in Durham. In 1640 the Scots had been there, and again in 1643. In 1644 a great sickness had prevailed throughout the year. In 1646 the King had come to Durham attended by the Scottish Commissioners, and later in the same year the see had been dissolved and the episcopal estates ordered to be sold. In 1649 the Castle was sold to Robert Andrewes, Lord Mayor of London, and the Cathedral left desolate. In 1650 the Scotch prisoners after the battle of Dunbar had been confined therein. At once after the Restoration our books show a return to the old order of things. Parish affairs are again regularly seen to, and regularly recorded, and all seems to have gone on as before the troublous times. We note, further, a cessation of vexatious political imposts, and a characteristic growing tendency to spend the money of the parish in potations and festivity. We may well conceive how welcome to the general population the change would be.

[1] This is the first entry of "tenter-rent," i.e., of payments for bleaching ground on the common or elsewhere. It became common afterwards.

[2] "Leaden Cross." It stood in the middle of the street, at the junction of the parishes of St. Nicholas and St. Giles, and is shown in Speed's map of Durham engraved in Surtees' History of Durham, vol. iv (City of Durham, p. 54). Surtees there says, "Beyond this (i.e., the old city gateway), the street of Claypath stretches Eastward, and, climbing about two-thirds of the first hill, joins Gilesgate at the spot where the Leaden Cross once stood. When Hunter wrote, the pedestal of the cross was still standing in the middle of the street at the top of the Beast-Market." Also, in a note, "In the rentals of the Commones of the Abbey in 1454 an entry occurs, 'De uno tenemento ad Crucem Plumbeam, vis. viiid.'—Hunter."

[1] The expenses here attending the gathering of the stubbed whins on the Moor, with the obtaining of an order from Mr. Heath with regard to them, seems to imply that the lord of the manor had now asserted his claim to them. See above, p. 31, note 1.

[2] "Driving" the Moor, which seems now to have been annual, would be for the purpose of discovering the beasts grazing on it, and detecting interlopers or diseased animals. There is frequent mention afterwards of "scabbed horses," which were eliminated or impounded. Among the Receipts of 1734 we find, "To the scabbd Lane, 8*s*. 6*d*."; and Robert Allison, the present grieve of the manor, speaks of a field below Magdalen Chapel, which is, or was, called "Scabgarth" from scabbed animals having been impounded in it.

[1] This is the first notice, since the mention of "Mr. Smeth" in 1635, of the minister and parish clerk (as afterwards constantly) on the "Bounder Day," implying perhaps the retention of some religious functions. As to the designation "minister," instead of "curate" as previously, and usually "parson" afterwards, due perhaps to puritanical influences, see "Churchwardens' Accounts," Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 98 note 2.

[1] Allusions to "breaking our Entercommons" on St. Cuthbert's day (i.e., 4th Sept., the feast of his Translation, his principal feast being 20th March) occur in 1683 and regularly afterwards. It would seem to mean entering the enclosures called "Town-Fields," in Pellowleases or elsewhere, which were subject to commonage during the Winter months. See above, p. 40, note 2. St. Cuthbert's Day was eleven days previous to September 15th, when, according to the Enclosure Act of 1816, the right of commonage in these fields began.

[2] He was incumbent of the parish till Sept., 1682, when his burial is recorded in the Register. For notice of him see appended list of Curates of St. Giles. His peculiar designation as "Rector" will be found alluded to in the Introduction, under "the Parish Church and Living." Surtees, in his list of incumbents, erroneously calls him Thomas.

the north side of Gilligate opposite the Church is still called "the Vennell." But see two entries above (A.D. 1618), "For dressinge (or scouring) the common vennell in Raynton Loninge," where the sense of gutter seems more likely. Also (A.D. 1684), "scowring the venall on the sand"; and (A.D. 1691) "for mending sands hedge and scouringe y^e^ vennell"; and especially (A.D. 1692)," for scouring the venal water course on the Mour." Where exactly the "Houleway" was is not known. It evidently led into or was near "Mardland (i.e., Magdalen) loning," which was the lane leading out of Gilligate to Magdalen Hospital, where is now the road to the Goods-station; and in a "Draft Appointment of S. M. Magdalen," among the papers left by the Rev. Francis Thompson, "Houleclose" is marked among the fields in that small parish, near the now ruined chapel. Can the name be a corruption of "Holy way"?

[1] The farm-house and farm still so called, between the Rainton road, a little to the west of Belmont Church, and the old lane, further south, to Pittington.

[2] The meaning of this entry is obscure. "Cafels" may mean Cavels, which seem usually to denote allotments on the Moor (see p. 65, note 1). Could it be that certain persons had such allotments assigned them near the "Dike," on condition of their maintaining the latter? Cf. below, A.D. 1691, "For the Cavels of the moore hedge, 5*s.* 10*d.*"

[1] Tinker's (or Tinkler's) Lane is that which leads down from the South side of the street to the river, nearly opposite Bakehouse Lane, and forming the Western boundary of the parish on that side. It now seems to have had gates to it, and to have been let like other lanes. If it was as narrow as now, it could not, one would think, have been of much use to any one. But only 1*s.* per annum was paid for it, under the name in after years of "acknowledgement," which may have been only for right of way, the expression in 1696 being "for y^e^ acknowledgement down Tinker's loan."

[1] I.e., William Tempest, of Old Durham, bapt. 1653 (See "Register"), bur. at St. Giles 1699—1700. He was the son of John, the first possessor. The question before the manorial court seems to have been thus:—Robert Cornforth had a close which was subject to "Entercommon" in the winter months. He had allowed George Wilkinson to make, and fence, a garden at the top of it, rendering that part unavailable as common pasture. He is required by the court to pay an acknowledgement, or break the garden up. It appears below that he elected to pay, for we find in 1689, "Of Robert Cornfourth for his acknowledgment for not breaking his garth above his Cloase, 6*d*." A similar acknowledgement appears in 1704 as paid by "the Shewmakers," for having grown corn at the head of their close. The Mr. John Tempest mentioned below was probably his son, who succeeded him, and who contested his manorial rights in the parish. See below.

an extensive stubbing and sale of whins on the Moor, and, though in 1661 an order seems to have been obtained from the lord of the manor, his claim to payment for them had been ignored. Consequently John Tempest, of Old Durham, now lord of the manor, seized certain whins that had been gathered, and afterwards instituted a suit in the Chancery Court of Durham in vindication of this and other asserted manorial rights. See below (p. 110) for a statement of the case, and the resolution of the parishioners to contest the claim, John Tilly, whose whins had been seized, being one of the defendants.

The following appears in the Records of the Chancery Court of Durham :—

"6th Sept., 1726,

Tempest et al.

Seymour et al.

"Ordered by the worshipful Dormer Parkhurst, Esq., Chancellor of the County Palatine of Durham, that the compt. Tempest shall, if he thinks fit, bring an action of trespass against the deft. Anthony Greivson, a freeholder in Gilligate, for cutting and carrying away whinns of and from the said Gilligate moor, and in which action the said defendant shall answer and plead thereunto soe as to his right of cutting and selling such whinns may be brought into issue and tried at ye next assizes to be held for this County.

"And it is further ordered that the complainants and defendants shall go to another trial at ye next assizes to be held for this County upon a figured wager to try this suit, to wit : whether ye occupyers of freehold houses in Gilligate within the complainant's manor of Gilligate or any or which of them are obliged to bake their bread pyes or other and what things by them used and spent baked in their freehold houses in Gilligate within ye said manor or by them baked for sale and by them or any of them sold, at the complainant's bakehouse in Gilligate, and upon trial of this said issue the said complainants and defendants shall make use of the depositions taken in this cause as by law they may and after trial thereof ye parties may report back to this court when such further order shall be made thereon as shall be just. In both of which actions said complainant shall declare at least three months before the said assizes.

(Signed) Dormer Parkhurst."

Many entries appear below of proceedings and expenses connected with this suit ; viz., in 1725, and in 1726, and afterwards in 1728, 1729, 1730, when the case, having presumably been tried at the Assizes, had apparently come again before the Court of Chancery. The whins continued to be stubbed by the parishioners, the stenters being taxed for the purpose, but there is no mention of money received by the Grassmen for them. On the contrary, in 1798, they themselves pay for young whins and for thorns to one William Tilley, who may have acted for the lord of the manor. (See entries in 1775, 1780, 1788 and 1798). It may be here noted that in the Act for Enclosure of the Moor, A.D. 1816, land amounting to one-sixteenth part of the whole common was assigned to the lady, or lord, of the manor as an equivalent for the soil of Gilligate Moor and other waste lands.

[1] A close on the South side of the road to Sherburn just West of "Gillsbridge." See Tithe Map.

[2] The "Holy Well" remained till recently, and was still so called, a little South East from the Church below the modern cemetery, the parishioners having common access to it. Before its destruction it was protected by upright blocks of stone with another for a roof. We shall find it several times alluded to in subsequent years, as whitewashed from time to time, and in 1755 surmounted by a cross.

[3] This is the first occurrence of the term "waits" for the musicians on Bounder Day.

[1] First occurrence of the term "priest" for the Curate of the Parish. It is now the common designation of the clergy in the Counties of Durham and Northumberland, and has probably always been so, though the scribes of these accounts had not used it.

The Editor has been informed by an old inhabitant of Gilligate that there still exists somewhere in the parish a pewter pot, called the "Jingling pot," which was formerly used on Bounder Day for collecting money in from the "riders" both during the perambulation and at the dinner afterwards at the "Britannia," and that it used also to be placed on the ground for the reception of coins, which were thrown into it from a distance.

GRASSMEN'S ACCOUNTS.—Vol. II.

[The entries in this volume being for the most part of the same character with those of Vol. I, it has not been thought necessary to do more than extract from them such as invite peculiar attention. It may be observed with regard to them that sums, varying in amount according to the circumstances of each case, continue to be received for gates or freedom of the moor, and for cavells annually; that after 1741 there is no more mention of the common lanes as sources of revenue, or of any lane but the blind lane, for which rent is still received; that after 1758 there are no entries of disbursements in detail, but that the receipts for gates are carefully specified, with notice of the ground in each case on which persons were admitted to stint, and the varying sums paid accordingly for the privilege, in accordance with the order of 1701. (See p. 96). The festivities on Bounder Day go on in full swing; the Holy (or Hallow) well still receives attention; and there is no diminution in the number of scabbed horses].

[1] The Bailiff, presumably of the lord of the manor, now appears on the scene, and in this and the two following years has his dinner provided him, but not after 1741. On the contrary, the expenses charged to the parish on the Bounder Day no longer include a general dinner; from which it may perhaps be supposed that the later and modern custom of the lord of the manor providing it had then begun. The Grassmen, however, still provide dinners for the parson, clerk, and drummer, and plenty of drink, with other refreshment for the boys and others, during the day.

[1] See p. 117, note 2.

[2] The Rev. Robert Lambe is supposed to have been a native of Durham. He was an M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, Minor Canon of Durham, and in 1747 was presented by the Dean and Chapter to the Vicarage of Norham, which he retained till his death during a visit to Edinburgh, 7th May, 1795. He wrote a History of Chess (1764), and a ballad called "The Laidley Worm of Spindeston," and edited Weber's Ballad of "Flodden," with a preface and miscellaneous notes, which

Dr. Raine, in his "History of North Durham," describes as "teeming with discursive disquisitions." In them he gave publicity to the late story of St. Cuthbert floating down the Tweed in his stone coffin, of which Sir Walter Scott availed himself in "Marmion." Notices of him will be found in "Men of Mark 'twixt Tyne and Tweed," by Richard Welford (London, 1895), vol. iii, pp. 1—6; and in Raine's "North Durham," in connexion with Norham Church. See also "Archæologia Æliana," vol. viii, pp. 162, 256, 283, 285. One incident in his personal history is curious enough to be mentioned. After going to Norham, he bethought him of one Philadelphia Nelson, the daughter of a carrier between London and Edinburgh, with whom he had become acquainted in Durham, and invited her, by letter, to come to him and be his wife. He undertook to meet her on the pier at Berwick-on-Tweed, and, having retained apparently an imperfect recollection of her features, desired her to carry a tea-caddy under her arm whereby he might recognize her. The article selected suggests to one's mind that, like Dr. Johnson, he may have been a great tea-drinker, and had a tender memory of many cups which Philadelphia had regaled him with at Durham. She went; but he (being perhaps excusable as a scholar) forgot the appointment, and the poor young woman paced the pier for many hours, faithfully carrying her tea-caddy. There was living at Berwick an old naval officer, called Howe, whose habit was to walk to the end of the pier and back regularly three times a day before his meals. Before his dinner, and again before his tea, he had observed her with her tea-caddy, and in his third walk found her sitting on a stone, tired and disconsolate. This time he addressed her, and, having heard her story, said, "Ha! Robin Lamb is a great friend of mine. Just like him, but he'll make you a capital husband." Next morning he took her by coach to Norham, where she and Lamb were married, 11th April, 1755 (Norham Parish Registers). Her burial is recorded in the Giligate Register thus: "Burials 1772. Philadelphia wife of the Revd Mr Lamb, Vicar of Norham in Northumberland. Jany 13th." The story, as above given, is derived from a paper in "Archæologia Æliana," vol. viii, by the late Rev. James Raine, the historian of "North Durham," who says that he had himself got it from the widow of Lambe's successor in the Vicarage of Norham. He says also that it was to occupy his mind after the loss of his wife that Lambe prepared his "Flodden." There are several entries in the Giligate register of the name of Lambe, which go to confirm the belief of the Rev. Robert having

This second volume extends to the year 1790. From its commencement a number of parishioners have appended their signatures on settlement of the accounts each year, and since 1769 with some such note as the following:—"Seen and allowed by the four and twenty present"; or, "We whose names are here under written have perused the above account, and do allow the same"; or, "We the stenters of Gilligate moor present at a meeting in the parish Church of S[t] Giles have perused the within written account and believe the same to be Just."

been a native of Durham, viz.:—"Jane d. of Edward and Elizabeth Lamb, haptized Ap. 7, 1778"; "Elizabeth d. of Henry and Mary Lamb, bapt. Aug. 15, 1773"; "Mary Lamb of S[t] Oswalds, buried June 15, 1728"; "Mary d. of Mr John Lamb a papist was buried March 17th, 170$\frac{3}{4}$." The Rev. Robert Lamb appears to have had or acquired property in Gilligate. The house he was rebuilding in 1780, in right of which he became entitled to gaits on the moor, has not been identified. But ten years later he purchased from John Burdon, of Hardwick, in the County of Durham, for £260, two parcels of freehold land called Bower Banks, containing 6 ac. 1 r. 31 p., which lie to the South of the Church, and include what is now called "Grove House." In the deed of conveyance, dated 7th April, 1790, he is described as "of the Parish of S[t] Giles, in or near the City of Durham." But his having to pay £3 for his six gaits in 1780 shows that he was not entitled to them by birthright, but from having recently come into possession of a house in the "Street," by purchase or inheritance. See "Preface," p. 2.

PARISH REGISTERS.

The Parish Registers of St. Giles date from A.D. 1584. Extracts from the first three volumes are given below, having been selected with regard to the persons and families referred to, or to anything otherwise interesting.

VOL. I. (1584—1666).

It will be observed that the entries, usually in English and sometimes ill-written and ill-spelt, begin in 1630 to be for a time in Latin, written in a clerkly hand, and evidently made by some classical scholar, not without a touch of pedantry. Now about this time "Sir John Watson" was succeeded as Curate of the parish by Mr. Elias Smith. The former is designated ("Mickleton MSS.," No. 32, "De Canonicis Minoribus," p. 52) "Iohannes Watson, alias Sir Iohn Lack-Latin"; the latter is described (Ibid.) as "Archididascalus Scolae Gram. Dunelm post Ricardum Smelt Clericum," having been also a Minor Canon and Precentor of the Cathedral, and Librarian to the Dean and Chapter. To this learned man may perhaps be attributed the Latin entries. For, though they begin some two years before the date assigned by Surtees to his incumbency, he may even so have previously assisted good Sir John Lack-Latin in his parochial duties, including that of keeping the Register. May we not imagine him correcting Sir John as the schoolmaster Holofernes corrected the curate Sir Nathanael?—"Sir Nath.: Laus Deo. Intelligo bone. Holof.: Bone? Bone for bene. Priscian a little scratched: 'Twill serve." ("Love's Labour Lost," Act v, Sc. 1).

BAPTISMS. (Extracted Entries).

THE REGESTER BOOKE OF THE CHRISTNINGES, WEDDINGES AND BURYALLES OF THE PAISHE OF S. GILES IN DURHAM SINCE Y^E^ YERE OF O^R^ LORD 1584 FROM EASTER TO EASTER VIDELYCET.

A.D. 1584. 6. Cuthbert Prentisse sonne of Thomas prentisse was christined y^e^ xxvj^th^ of December.[1]

[1] Entries of the name of Prentice (al. Prentize, Prentise, Prentisse) are included in these extracts because of a Robert Prentice having been a curate of St. Giles. His name occurs as such at Visitations under Bishop Barnes in 1577, 1578, and 1579. He was also Minor Canon of Durham from April, 1571, to 1595, and in 1583 was appointed by Henry Dethick, Prebendary of Durham and Official of the Dean and Chapter, as his Surrogate, in which capacity he presided over the Court of the Officialty. (See Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 22, note 1, and Appendices A. and B.). He is thus shown to have been a man of some mark. He is mentioned in the Will of John Binley (or Byndley), a Minor Canon of Durham, and Vicar of Muggleswick, given in the Surtees Society's Publications (vol. ii, p. 217). It hence appears that he was the eldest son of a Durham man called Prentise, apparently of the tradesman class, who had married Jane, the sister of the said John Binley. The testator, after several legacies, including 6*s*. 8*d*. to "the poure peapele of the parriche of Sanct Giles," leaves his residue to "Robert Prentes, William P., Thomas P., Rychart P., and Isabell P., my sister's children." To Robert, who seems to have been bred a scholar, he leaves appropriately all his books, together with the bed he lies on, and other articles. The rest appear to have occupied no high position. Provision is made for one of them, William, on being apprenticed to "John Chilton of Durham, taler." Thomas, the baptisms of whose children appear here in the Register, was a younger brother of Robert, being the third son, to whom John Bynley, the testator, had left £6 13*s*. 4*d*. and "all my stufe at Muggleswick, &c."

[1] For notice of William Murray see "Grassmen's Accounts," p. 15, note 3.

[2] Thomas Heath was a grandson of the original John Heath of Kepyer, being the second son of the John who was at this time in possession. Far (or East) Grange is what appears on the Ordnance Map as Kepyer Grange, near the present Grange Iron Works, West Grange (elsewhere mentioned) being what is now known as High Grange, nearer to Kepyer, where an old grange barn still remains. Mistress Ann Bonney was no doubt a relative of Dorothy, the wife of the abovesaid Thomas Heath, who was a daughter of Richard Bonney, of Newland, in Yorkshire. This baptism is entered in the register of the parish of Pittington as follows:—"Anno 1604. Iohn Heth sonne of Mr Thomas Heth of Powden grange within St Gyles parishe was xpistened here att Pittington Churche the xxvth of September. Godfathers Mr Iohn Heth of Keepyere the elder and Iohn Heth of Ramside. Godmother Maris An Bunny of Newlands." It thus appears that "Far Grange" was also known as "Powden Grange." The Bunnys of Newland, in the parish of Normanton, were a family of some importance. Their burial-place was the chapel on the South side of the chancel of Normanton Church, where there are brasses dated from 1547 to 1586. ("Banks's Walks in Yorkshire," 1871, pp. 229, 233).

[1] Ramside Grange was close on the Eastern boundary of the Kepyer estate, being where now stands the mansion bearing the modern fancy name of Belmont, from which the new parish of Belmont has been named. The name Ramside is now obsolete; but in Forster's Map of the County, dedicated to Bishop Butler, and to be seen in the Dean and Chapter Library, the place is still so designated. Ramside was devised in the Will of the first John Heth of Kepyer to his youngest son Edward and his heirs male, of whom this John was the son and heir.

[1] The Cole family came into possession of Kepyer as follows. The main estate, exclusive of such parts of it as had been devised to younger sons by the first John Heath, passed after his death to his eldest son John, and from him to a third John, the son of the latter. On the death of Thomas, the only son of this third John, in 1594 (see Register of Burials), it passed to Thomas Heath, of Far Grange, who was brother to the said third John. He, after coming into possession, sold the mansion house and appendages of Kepyer to Ralph Cole, of Gateshead, A.D. 1630. (See Surtees' History of Durham, vol. iv, pt. 2, p. 66). Consequently Kepyer itself became the residence of the Coles, the Heaths being thenceforth described as not of Kepyer, but of Old Durham, which they owned as impropriators of the Rectory of St. Nicholas, of which Old Durham had been glebe. Sir Nicholas and Sir Ralph Cole in the entry before us were the son and the grandson of the Ralph of Gateshead, to whom Kepyer had been sold. Kepyer remained in the possession of the Cole family till about 1674, when Sir Ralph Cole, of Brancepeth, sold it to Sir Christopher Musgrave, of Carlisle, Bart., to whose descendants it now belongs.

[2] This William may have been the son of Mr. Topp Heath of Little Eden whose baptism appears above in 1615.

[1] This was the marriage by which the Tempests came into possession of Old Durham and the Manor of St. Giles. The John Heath, whose heiress his daughter Elizabeth was, had been himself the only son and heir of Thomas Heath, originally of East Grange, who had succeeded his brother, the third John Heath of Kepyer, as possessor of the estates on the death of Thomas, the only son of the latter, in 1594. (See above, p. 128, note 1). It was the said Thomas who, with his wife Dorothy, and John, their son and heir, alienated Kepyer to the Coles.

[2] It is significant of the state of things during the Parliamentary war and the Commonwealth that from 1643 to 1653 inclusive only 14 marriages are recorded, and all these of persons of superior position, described in most cases as armiger, generosus, clericus, musicis professor, &c.; and that from 1653 to the Restoration there are none, the civil marriages that would take place during the Commonwealth not having been recorded in the Parish Register. On a later page in this volume (after the Terrier given below) there are 23 marriages, after the Restoration, in the years 1664-66, with one in 1662 out of place; also one of 1637 "in Ecclesia Sanctae Mariae Magdalenae," and 7 baptisms, 1636-66, in the same parish.

8. The right Worshipfull M^r^ Iohn Hethe of Kepeyere Esquire was buried the xi^th^ day of August in the yere abovesaid. [2]

[1] Old Durham had been glebe of the Rectory of St. Nicholas, which was appropriated to Kepyer Hospital by Bishop Neville A.D. 1443. Ralph Booth, Master of Kepyer, leased it A.D. 1479 on a lease of 99 years to his brother Richard Booth. The lease would expire in 1578, when it reverted to John Heath as the then impropriator. It appears from this entry that the Booths had continued to reside there for some time afterwards.

[2] This was the original John Heath of Kepyer, who had purchased the estates of the dissolved Hospital from John Cockburn, lord of Ormeston, in 1568. There is a recumbent effigy, supposed to be his, in the chancel of St. Giles, in the South East corner within the Altar-rails. It is a painted wooden figure, with head uncovered, resting on a helmet, on which is the crest, a cock's head attached by a wreath. The body is clothed in a complete suit of plate armour; hands in gauntlets, placed with palms together over the breast, as in prayer. Around the neck, appearing from beneath the armour, is a red collar with slits all round, also a small laced frill or linen ruff. The face is represented with a moustache and short pointed beard; the eyes are open. A sheathed sword is slung around the body by a red strap. The breast-plate, of the sixteenth century, extends from the neck to the pubes. Around the lower edge of the breastplate is a gilt edging (or strap?). Many of the joints, pins and fastenings of the armour are gilt. Spurs with rowells are attached by red straps. The feet, which are not crossed, rest upon a support, on which are carved representations of two death's heads. On the upper part of the support, the words "Hodie michi"; below, "cras tibi." The effigy now rests upon a sort of high tomb of oak, substituted in 1894 for a very mean one of painted deal. Below the head is a shield with a guige. This shield, as appeared from a date on its inner surface (seen when it was taken off the deal box in 1894), was put on about 40 years ago, probably when the deal box aforesaid was made. The arms on the shield are:—Party per chev. or and sa., in chief 2 mullets, in base a heath-cock wattled gu., countercharged. Crest on helmet:—On a wreath, a heath-cock's head erased sa., wattled gu

[1] Viz., the second John Heath of Kepyer, son of the original possessor. His own burial is recorded below, A.D. 1617.

[2] In ordinary cases of persons far advanced in life the age is not given, being probably seldom known. They are usually described, as here, as "aged," or, when the entries are in Latin, as "provecta aetate."

[3] Surtees (History of Durham, vol. iv), in his extracts from the Registers of St. Giles, gives erroneously 1632 as the year of Margaret Hall's death, and £30 as her bequest instead of 30s.

Md that the foresaid Margarett hall wedow laite wyf of Edwarde hall deceased did give to this parishe for a standinge stock the some of xxxs and the increase of the same to be bestowed in repairinge of the cawsie from Giles brigge to the cawsie foot[1] betwext the therde daye of Maye and the fower and twentye daye June or itt to returne to the executors.

[2] No doubt Nicholas, second son of the first John Heath of Kepyer, and ancestor of the Heaths of Little Eden. See above. His will, proved at Durham, is dated 28th June, 1627. (Surtees' History of Durham, vol. iv, pt. ii, p. 70).

[3] This was the third John Heath of Kepyer. (See above, p. 132, note 3). His wife, Dorothy, whose burial is here recorded, was a daughter of John Blakiston, of Blakiston, Esq. See Surtees' History of Durham, vol. iv, pt. ii, p. 70, in Heath Pedigree.

[4] The Greek word denotes a sieve-maker, and may be meant as an equivalent for seaver, which occurs elsewhere in the English entries.

[5] Evidently meaning the Greek σχοινοπλόκος, presumably for roper. Cf. above "Edwardus Cornforth, Restio." The Cornforth family seems to have been engaged in the rope-making industry, which has continued in the parish.

1664. Iohn Heath Esq^re^ of ould Durham[3] was buried the 7^th^ of March 1664.

[1] See above, p. 132, note 3. The reason of his burial by night, immediately after his death, does not appear. The cup and cover, intended, as was usual, to serve as a paten, are of the usual Elizabethan shape, without any ornament. The Hall-marks denote the years 1637–1638. Round the base of the cup there is this inscription :— "Remember Iohn Hethe Esqr the third and last of Keepeire (the i altered to y) : 1638." On the foot of the cover, underneath, "Desember the : 25^th^ : 1638."

[2] The Thomas, originally of Far Grange, who succeeded his brother John as possessor of Kepyer, and who (with the concurrence of his wife Dorothy, and his son John) sold Kepyer to the Coles. See above, p. 128, note 1. Thenceforth, as abovesaid, the Heaths were described as of Old Durham.

[3] This was the son of Thomas and Dorothy, referred to in the last note, whose daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, married John Tempest of the Isle. The wife of this John Heath of Old Durham was Margaret, daughter of William Smith, of Durham, Counsellor-at-Law. They were married at St. Mary-le-Bow, 27th October, 1623. She is memorable as having been one of the three "gentlewomen" whom Cosin was accused of having insulted in the Cathedral for not standing up when the Nicene Creed was being sung.

The following account of what took place on that occasion will be found in the Volume for 1868 of the Surtees Society's Publications :—

"Articles to be exhibited by His Majestie's Heigh Commissioners against Mr. John Cosin, &c. - And another tyme you, John Cosin, sayd to some gentlewomen, sitting quietly when the others stood when the Nicene creed is song, you, I say, goinge to theire pue, sayd in the audience of many, 'I pray you stand, I pray you stand'; and catching a gentlewoman by the sleeve, you tare her sleeve, with these reprochfull words, 'Can ye not stand, ye lazie sowes?'

After the last entry of a baptism (1668) in this volume there is inserted the following Terrier :—

Again, from Smart's Common-Place Book :—

"Question.—With whom did Mr. Cosin brawle and fight in the time of divine service for the observation of ceremonies ?

"Answer.—(1) He brawled in the church with the Dean himself about the gentlewomen which would not stand when he bade them ; whose pew he locked up, and afterwards nailed, because they would not stand, &c.

"(2) He called the same gentlewomen lazie sows, and tare their sleaves, because they refused to stand, Mrs. Smith, and her daughter Heath, and her son Mr. Baker's wife of Newcastle."

Mrs. Smith, the mother of Mrs. Heath, was, when married to Smith, the widow of Oswald Baker, of the city of Durham. Thus the three gentlewomen were (1) Mrs. Smith, of Durham, (2) her daughter by her second marriage, who was the wife of John Heath, of Old Durham, (3) the wife of her son by her first marriage, viz., Mrs. Baker, of Newcastle.

[1] Ordered by Edward the Sixth's Injunctions to be set up in some convenient place within each parish church (Strype's "Cranmer," 1848, ii, 447). The first English edition was issued in two volumes by Edw. Whytchurch, 1548. About half-a-dozen English translators were employed upon it; among these, it is said, was the Princess Mary, afterwards Queen. (J. H. Blunt, "Hist. Ref.," ii, 51; Lowndes, and reff. there). Hence we find:—"1549. Una cum empcione diversorum librorum vocatorum paraphracez Erasmi" ("Memorials of Ripon," iii, 41); "1549. For a boke calld ye parafases" ("Leverton Accounts," in Archæologia xli, 358). The Paraphrases occur in several lists of books belonging to churches in Durham and the neighbourhood ("Parish Books," Surtees Society, vol. lxxxiv, Index s.v. Erasmus).

[2] The "Gowrie Conspiracy," alleged by James I to have been one against his own life by John, Earl of Gowrie, and his brother, at Perth, on 5th August A.D. 1600; for an account of which see Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 137, note 3.

[1] These are the extreme dates of the entries in this volume. But there are omissions in some of the later years, which are partially supplied in Vol. III. Thus the Baptisms after 1680, the Burials from 5th July, 1678, to 16th October, 1680, and the Marriages for 1694, are found in Vol. III. The third volume, begun in 1678, appears to have been procured in the first place for the entry of duly attested burials in woollen, in pursuance of the Act 30 Car. II, which will be hereafter referred to, and to have been further utilized for supplying deficiences in Vol. II, and then for continuing the general register.

[1] The reason why Burials at this date began to be entered in a new volume has been shown above (p. 141, note 1). The entries are now signed by the Mayor of Durham, or some person other than the Minister of the parish, with the addition of the names of two witnesses. This, as has already been intimated, was in pursuance of the Act 30 Car. II, which provided that, for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures, no corpse should be buried except in woollen; requiring that within eight days after every burial one of the relations of the party deceased, or other credible person, should bring to the minister or parson an affidavit under the hands and seals of two or more witnesses, and under the hand of the magistrate or officer before whom the same was sworn, that the said person was not put in, wrapt, or wound up in any material but sheeps' wool only; the said affidavit to be made before a Justice of the Peace, or Master in Chancery, Mayor, or other chief officer of the County, borough, Corporation, or market town where the party was buried. Afterwards (32 Car. II, A.D. 1681) it was further provided that in the absence of any Justice of the Peace resident in any parish where a person had been interred the parsons, vicars or curates within the County (except only those of the parish or chapel of ease where the party is interred) might administer the said oaths or affidavits.

Forty-seven similar entries follow, in each case attested by "Mr. Major," "Mr. Hutchison, Mayor," "Mr. Morland," or "Mr. Davison," with the names of two witnesses; the last being—Volume under "Flagging of Churches"). It thence appears that the church of Houghton-le-Spring was flagged for the first time in 1604, that of St. Oswald's, Durham, in 1607-8, and of Pittington in 1634. It may be worth noting that, previously to the last restoration of the church of St. Giles, one of the flags near the west end had the letters of the alphabet cut on it in deep and distinct characters. Were they intended for the instruction of children, or merely to exhibit and advertise the skill of the stone-cutter?

[1] For notice of penance in churches or market-places, cf. "Churchwarden's Accounts" (Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 49, note). The latest instance known to the editor was told him by a native of Pittington, apparently about the year 1770, when a girl had done penance, clothed in a white sheet, in the church of that parish. He was also told many years ago by an old woman of Melsonby in Yorkshire of her own recollection (about the same date) of having seen, as she went into church among the school children, a girl, whom she described as "a bonny lass," standing in the porch in a white sheet, bare-foot and with her hair hanging down, and having seen her in the same plight, crying, when the congregation left the church. The same informant spoke also of a young woman having stood up in church, at Melsonby, before the assembled congregation, to name the father of her child—which was an evidence of paternity formerly accepted as sufficient—and of the two culprits having afterwards repeated a form of words after the minister, standing before the reading-desk, after which the woman had gone up to the altar to be churched.

Sciant praesentes et futuri quod ego Cunstancia filia Walteri Taillour de vico Sancti Egidii in Dunelm. in mea pura virginitate dedi concessi et praesenti carta mea confirmavi Thomae de Kyrkland Taillour unum burgagium jacens in vico Sancti Egidii inter burgagium Johannis Warker ex parte una et domum de Kypier vocatam le Curthous ex alia, quod quidem burgagium michi jure hereditario post decessum Marjoriae sororis meae decendebat, habendum et tenendum predictum burgagium cum omnibus libertatibus et libris consuetudinibus ac omnibus aliis pertinentiis suis prefato Thomae heredibus et assignatis suis libere quiete integre bene et in pace imperpetuum de capitalibus dominis feodi illius per servicia inde debita & de jure consueta. Et ego antedicta Cunstancia et heredes mei totum praedictum burgagium cum pertinentiis suis universis praefato Thomae heredibus et assignatis suis contra omnes gentes warrantizabimus et imperpetuum defendemus. In cujus rei testimonium huic praesenti cartae meae sigillum meum apposui. Hiis testibus, domino Johanne Lambe capellano, Adam Spurcottes, Johanne de Ruston, Hugone Sclacter, Thoma Goldsmyth, Roberto Taillour, Roberto de Corbrygges, et aliis. Datum in vico Sancti Egidii in Dunelm die Lunae prox. post festum Sancti Hilarii Anno Domini millesimo trècentesimo septuagesimo tertio.

[1] This is the confirmation by Bishop Robert Neville in 1445 of the old Charters of Kepyer, which had been destroyed by the fire in 1309, as verified by a commission issued by Bishop Kellaw in 1380. In it previous confirmations by bishops after Kellaw are cited ; the constitution and procedure of Kellaw's commission are described ; the Charters themselves, numbered I—XIX, are recited ; and annexed is the Impropriation by Bishop Neville of the Rectory of St. Nicholas to the Hospital. The same Charters, as exhibited in the Patent Rolls of Richard II, are printed in Dugdale's Monasticon under "Kepyer Hospital." The edition of them here given is from the Close Rolls of Bishop Neville, now preserved in the Record Office, London.

Qui dicunt super Sacramentum suum quod tempore domini Petri de Thoresby nuper Magistri Hospitalis praedicti per incendium in quandam domum infra idem Hospitale subito superveniens die Martis in Crastino Sancti Brandani Abbatis, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^mo^ sexto in qua cartae et quaedam munimenta per dominum Petrum tunc Magistrum dicti Hospitalis fuerunt posita combusta fuerunt. Et dicunt quod iidem Magister & fratres habuerunt cartas et munimenta de terris tenementis et redditibus infrascriptis die combustionis praedicti Hospitalis quae eidem Hospitali a diversis dantur et conceduntur imperpetuum, videlicet carta domini Ranulphi quondam Episcopi Dunolm. in hec verba :—

HOSPITALE DE KYPIER, IN COM. PALAT. DUNELMENSI.

Num. i. [Bishop Flambard's original Foundation].

In nomine sanctae et individuae Trinitatis notum sit omnibus sanctae matris ecclesiae filiis, tam praesentibus quam futuris, quod ego Ranulphus, licet peccator et indignus, tamen Dei gratia Dunelmensis episcopus, hanc ecclesiam in honorem Dei et sancti Egidii feci fieri, quam etiam tertio idus Junii dedicamus, anno ab incarnatione Domini MCXII^o^, qui est tertius decimus annus mei episcopatus ; in qua dedicatione eidem ecclesiae, ad subsidium clerici qui inibi serviturus est, et ad sustentationem pauperum qui ibidem in hospitali domo quam feci conversaturi sunt, res inferius subscriptas in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam dono ; et volo et praecipio, et auctoritate Dei et ista mea donatione, et praesentis cartulae attestatione confirmo, ut firma maneat et perpetua pro salute animae meae, et pro redemptione animarum illorum qui me nutriverunt ; scilicet Willielmi regis qui Angliam conquisivit, et Matildae reginae ; pro anima quoque Willielmi regis qui me in episcopatus honorem sublimavit, et pro salute animae regis Henrici qui me in eodem honore confirmavit ; necnon pro animabus illorum qui aliqua dona vel quamcunque elemosinam Ecclesiae S. Cuthberti contulerunt vel collaturi sunt. Haec autem quae dono, villam meam nomine Caldecotes cum omnibus quae ad eam pertinent, in planis et pascuis, in pratis et sylvis, in aquis, terris cultis et incultis, et exitibus, et omnibus consuetudinibus et libertatibus, tam ecclesiasticis quam saecularibus ; et unum molendinum de Milneburn et duas garbas de meis dominicis de hiis villis ; scilicet de Newbotel, Hoghton, Wermuth, Refhope, Esingtone, Seggefelde, Schireburne, Qwerington, Neutone, Cestre, Wessingtone, Boldone, Clyvedone, Qwicham, et Ryton : quae omnia quieta et libera ab omnibus consuetudinibus praedictae ecclesiae Sancti Egidii et hospitali ad opus pauperum Christi dono. Quicunque autem ex hiis minuere inquietare vel auferre, vel ablata retinere, vel aliquibus vexationibus fatigare temere praesumpserit, noverit se illud Christo et Sancto Egidio auferre, et idcirco divino judicio cum sacrilegiis reus existere, atque districtae ultioni in extremo examine subjacere, et cum damnatis aeternaliter perire.

Et dicunt quod magister et fratres habent unam garbam de decimis dominicis, et de alia garba penitus ignorant.

Item cartam domini Hugonis quondam Dunelmensis episcopi in haec verba :—

Num ii. [Bishop Pudsey's first Charter].

Carta Hugonis Dunelmensis Episcopi.

Hugo Dei gratia episcopus Dunelm. omnibus Christi fidelibus praesentem cartam inspecturis salutem in Domino. Notum facimus universitati vestrae nos dedisse, et hac carta nostra confirmasse, omnes donationes quae Ranulphus bonae memoriae praedecessor noster hospitali S. Egidii de Kypier dedit et confirmavit. Concedimus etiam eisdem magistro et fratribus liberum burgagium, et omnibus hominibus eorum quibus illi concesserunt libertatem in vico S. Egidii Dunelmo : et quieti erunt de exercitu et omnibus auxiliis, et in-tol et u-tol, et operationibus et consuetudinibus et vexationibus et exactionibus. Concedimus etiam eisdem pasturam ad averia sua infra hayam et extra ; focale et maeremium et clausturam ubi eis sit magis ad aisiamentum habebunt sine vasto ; et quieti erunt per totam forestam nostram de pannagio. Damus etiam eisdem quandam partem de peterio nostro de Neutone per illas divisas quibus Willielmus de Howedone et Philippus Forestarius eis seisivit ex parte nostra. Damus etiam eisdem et confirmamus unum toftum in qualibet villa ubi habent decimas de dominico nostro ; viz., in Hoghtone, Refhope, Esingtone, Derlyngtone, Seggefelde, Boldon, et Qwickham. Quare volo et firmiter praecipio ne aliquis ministrorum nostrorum nec clericus nec laicus namium fratrum accipiat, nec infra burgum nec extra, nisi in curia eorundem jure deficiant, et tunc per licentiam nostram vel justiciariorum nostrorum. Haec omnia damus eisdem in puram et perpetuam elemosinam.

Item cartam dicti Hugonis in haec verba :—

Num. iii. [Bishop Pudsey's second Charter].

Alia carta dicti Hugonis.

Hugo Dei gratia, ut supra. Notum facimus vobis nos dedisse et concessisse dictis magistro et fratribus S. Egidii, ad suscipiendos et sustentandos pauperes ibidem, villam de Clyftone, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, in terris, aquis, molendinis, et piscariis, et omnibus quae ad eam pertinere noscuntur, cum omnibus consuetudinibus et libertatibus tam ecclesiasticis quam secularibus ad ipsam pertinentibus in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam. Dedimus etiam eisdem de unaquaque caruca de dominicis nostris in episcopatu nostro unam travam bladi sicut datur hospitali S. Petri in Eboracshire. Damus etiam eisdem decimas de omnibus novalibus nostris; id est de terris quae ante tempora nostra cultae non erant, quas de paludibus, et de frutectis in terram arabilem traximus, tam in Eborum provincia quam in nostra dioecesi, et in parochia de Hovedene; ipsam quoque ecclesiam S. Egidii volumus et auctoritate Dei et nostra decrevimus liberam et quietam existere imperpetuum a synodabilus et omnibus aliis consuetudinibus quae per archidiaconum, sive per decanum, sive per aliquem officiarium eorum exigi solent. Haec omnia eisdem in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam, cum travis quae barones et alii nostrae dioecesis eis concesserunt et Deo auctore concedent, concedimus et praesenti carta confirmamus.[1]

[1] The following Ordinatio of Bishop Pudsey for the regulation of the hospital, not included among the verified Charters, has been taken from "Collectanea," by Allan and Hutchinson, which will be found in the Durham University Library (Routh Collection, LVI, c. 1, p. 574) :—

"Ordinatio Hospitalis de Kypier.—PROVISUM est per Venerabilem Dominum HUGONEM Episcopum Dunelmensis Ecclesiae, quod sint in Domo de Kepyer tresdecim Conversi, qui Professionem faciant Domui et Priori Domus more consueto, et tenebuntur ad Castitatem et ad renunciationem Proprietatis, et ad obedientiam Magistri quem Dominus Episcopus praeposuerit; et erunt de numero Fratrum sex Capellani celebrantes pro animabus ejusdem Hugonis Episcopi, et venerabilis memoriae Domini Ranulphi Episcopi Dunelmensis primi Fundatoris de Kypier. Qui quidem Capellani ministrabunt in Capella in eadem, et unus eorundem Capellanorum quem Magister Hospitalis Priorem voluerit assignari una cum consensu Fratrum audiet Confessiones Fratrum Conversorum et Infirmorum infra Cunam [cuvam = crypt-chapel ?] et faciet Correctiones de ordine. Septimus Conversus erit Dispensator et Lardarius. Octavus erit Custos Tannariae. Nonus erit Pistor Hospitalis. Decimus erit Custos Molendini. Undecimus erit Graunger et Custos Carucarum. Duodecimus erit Custos Instauri in

Item carta Radulphi de Epplingden in haec verba :—

Num. iv. Carta Radulphi de Epplyndone.

Sciant praesentes et futuri quod ego Radulphus de Epplyndone dedi concessi et hac praesenti carta mea confirmavi magistro et fratribus S. Egidii de Kypier ad feodi fermam unam carucatam terrae cum suis pertinentiis in Epplyndone, cujus singulae bovatae sunt quindecem acrarum terrae, cum incremento xx bovatarum terrae de dominico meo, cum duobus toftis quae fuerunt Radulphi de Ponte et Normanni filii Sprowe ; quam quidem carucatam et viginti acras terrae cum toftis et aliis pertinentiis Robertus de Clivedon aliquando de me tenuit, et postea mihi reddidit in plena curia Dunelmi, et per chartam quietam mihi clamavit. Tenendum et habendum cum omnibus aysiamentis in pratis pascuis aquis stagnis et molendinis cum liberis introitibus et exitibus in viis et semitis in moris et mariscis et omnibus rebus et locis libertatibus et consuetudinibus infra villam de Epplyngdon et extra pertinentibus. Reddendo inde annuatim domino feodi illius quatuor solidos. Concedo etiam quod averia praedictorum magistri et fratrum pascantur ubique cum averiis meis et haeredum meorum, et habebunt duodecies viginti oves et xx porcos, ubi oves meae et porci mei vadunt in pastura ejusdem villae. Et praedicti magister et fratres capient omnimoda focalia ubique ubi ego et haeredes mei capiemus vel capere debemus in communi pastura diversis locis ubicunque habent Instaurum. Tertius decimus erit Receptor et Generalis Procurator omnium Negotiorum Hospitalis interius et exterius, quem Magister cum assensu Prioris et Fratrum ad hoc praeficere voluerit. Et sciendum quod licebit Magistro Hospitalis per consensum Prioris illius loci et fratrum singulos istorum successive in officiis suis mutare secundum quod providerit utililati Domus magis expedire. Si autem plures Fratres fuerint in eadem Domo quam supra dicti tresdecem, variis officiis ejusdem Domus pro dispositione Magistri, Prioris, et Fratrum intendant. Fratribus autem numerum tresdecem excedentibus successive decedentibus, in loco illorum alios substituere nullus praesumat nisi Magister cum consensu Prioris et Fratrum ejusdem loci.

"Si aliquis conversus ceciderit in languorem continuum, erit in Infirmitorio, et habebit necessaria in Victualibus sicut unus Frater percepit in Aula. Et sicut Magister habebit mensam suam in Aula nisi fuerit infirmus vel minutus, ita et Conversi mensam suam in eadem Aula habeant, nisi Magister pro necessitate Hospitum vel alia causa honesta aliquo tempore aliter judicaverit de necessitate faciendum. Et omnes Conversi simul jacebunt in Dormitorio, et omnes Fratres erunt vestiti decenti habitu et honesto, sicut decet Religiosos semel in anno. Et erunt calciati Fratres Capellani cum Botis bis in anno ; caeteri Conversi qui plus laborant quotiens necesse fuerit per annum Socularibus cum Coreis ligatis. Caetera autem necessaria, scilicet de Staminis Pannis lineis, et de Pannis ad Lectos Fratrum pertinentibus de Custuma Domus per visum Prioris illius Domus quotiens necesse fuerit sine contradictione aliqua obtinebunt."

ejusdem villae. Praedicti vero magister et fratres dabunt multuram ad vicesimum vasculum quando et quamdiu ad molendinum meum molere voluerint et molent proximiores post me et haeredes meos. Et ego Radulphus et haeredes mei praedictam terram cum omnibus pertinentiis suis ut praedicitur praedictis magistro et fratribus per praedictum servicium contra omnes homines warrantizabimus et defendemus imperpetuum &c.

Item cartam Gilberti Haunsard in haec verba :—

Num. v. Carta Gilberti de Haunsard.

Universis Christi fidelibus ad quos praesens scriptum pervenerit Gilbertus de Haunsard Salutem. Noverit universitas vestra me concessisse et hac praesenti mea carta confirmasse Deo et sanctae Mariae et hospitali S. Egidii extra Dunelmum quod vocatur Kypier totam terram meam de Aymuneston cum pertinentiis suis in villa et extra, et redditum x sol. quos mihi reddidit Willielmus de Boultone in eadem villa annuatim, et quinque bovatas terrae in villa de Hurtheworth, scil. illas quas bovatas terrae quas tenuit Edwardus de Clevedon cum toftis croftis ad quatuor praedictas bovatas terrae pertinentibus, et quintam bovatam terrae de dominico meo in tribus partibus, sicut jacet per campos, cum omnibus aisiamentis et libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus, in liberam puram et perpetuam elemosinam, ad sustentationem unius capellani qui in perpetuum in dicto Hospitali divina celebrabit pro anima mea, patris, et matris meae, et omnium parentum meorum. Habenda et tenenda de me et haeredibus meis imperpetuum ita libere et quiete sicut aliqua elemosina liberius et quietius habetur et tenetur in episcopatu Dunelmense. Et ego vero Gilbertus et heredes mei praedictas terras et dictum redditum contra omnes homines imperpetuum warrantizabimus. Hiis testibus, &c.

Item cartam Walteri de Witton in haec verba :—

Num. vi. Carta Walteri de Witton.

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos praesens scriptum pervenerit Walterus de Witton miles salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et praesenti carta mea confirmasse Deo et Hospitali S. Egidii de Dunelmo et magistro et fratribus ibidem Deo servientibus pro salute animae meae et haeredum meorum in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam totam terram meam de Frosterley sine aliquo retenemento cum omnibus pertinentiis et libertatibus in pratis et pascuis molendinis et aquis et omnibus escaetis quae jure contingunt vel imperpetuum contingere poterunt. Hanc terram concedo praedicto hospitali magistro et fratribus quietam et solutam de me et heredibus meis imperpetuum. Reddendo michi et heredibus meis unam libram cimini ad festum sancti Cuthberti in Septembre et faciendo domino episcopo debitum servicium quod ad dictam terram pertinet pro omni alio servicio. Et ego Walterus et heredes mei praedictam terram cum omnibus pertinenciis suis praedicto hospitali magistro et fratribus contra omnes homines imperpetuum warantizabimus. Hiis testibus, &c. Et istas donacionem et concessionem quas praedictus Walterus de Witton fecit deo et Hospitali S. Egidii et Magistro et fratribus ibidem deo servientibus de tota terra de Frosterley Nicholaus quondam Episcopus Dunelmensis confirmavit in omnibus sicut carta praedicta testatur.

Item cartam Hugonis quondam Episcopi Dunelmensis in haec verba :—

Num. vii. [Bishop Pudsey's third Charter].

Alia carta Hugonis Episcopi Dunelmensis.

Hugo Dei gratia Dunelm. episcopus priori et conventu S. Cuthberti et archidiaconis et omnibus sanctae matris Ecclesiae filiis salutem. Notum facimus universitati vestrae nos dedisse et praesenti carta nostra confirmasse Deo et hospitali S. Egidii de Dunelmo Quitteleys et Swyneleys per istas divisas, a sursa Knokedenburne usque ad sursam de Ayelshopburne ; Deinde recta linia usque ad Darewent, quae est divisa inter eos et archiepisc. Ebor. et Walterum de Bollebec, sicut Derewent decurrit usque dum Ayelshopburne descendit in eam, et quicquid continetur infra istas divisas sit imperpetuum ad suscipiendum et sustentandum pauperes Christi. Minerum quoque plumbae ad cooperiendum ecclesiae S. Mariae et Omnium Sanctorum et infirmatorium hospitalis praedicti ; et minerum ferri infra Rokehope ad carucas et alias necessitates faciendas : Et pasturam ad omnimoda averia sua habebunt undique in eadem. Et pedes canum eorum non sint ibi, neque ad wacheriam de Werdale truncati ; set pastores ducant eos ligatos pro feris ad averia sua servanda pro lupis. Et unum toftum quod dedimus eis per procurationem fratris Ranulphi ad opus dicti hospitalis ; scilicet praedictum toftum de la Laundene. Pasturam etiam in foresta nostra ad averia sua habebunt. Damus etiam praedicto hospitali et confirmamus decimam de tota terra quae pertinet ad Bradewode, et totam decimam de Besankelde usque ad Witheles, et unam travam bladi de unaquaque caruca de Werdale. Decimas quoque de omnibus novalibus nostris ; id est de terris quae ante tempora nostra cultae non erant, quas de paludibus et de frutectis in terram arabilem traximus per nummos nostros vel per kirsete.[1] Omnia ista praedicta praedicto hospitali damus damus concedimus et confirmamus in puram et quietam liberam et perpetuam elemosinam existere, &c.

Item cartam Johannis de Romeseye in haec verba :—

Num. viii. Carta Johannis de Romeseye.

Sciant praesentes et futuri quod ego Johannes de Romesheye dedi concessi et hac praesenti carta mea confirmavi Deo et S. Egidio et custodi hospitalis de Kypier et fratribus ejusdem loci ibidem Deo servientibus et in perpetuum servituris, in subsidium sustentationis pauperum ibidem confluentium, redditum sexaginta et quinque solidorum, quem Leonius filius Willielmi de Herz et Gregorius de Levingthorth Waltero de Monasteriis reddere consueverunt, et homagia et servicia, relevia, wardas, et escaetas de tota medietate villae de Claxtone, quam de me tenuit : Et quicquid juris habui vel habere potui in eadam medietate villae praedictae sine aliquo retenemento affectu pietatis ; petens quod fiat in singulis missis celebrandis in capella de Kypier per unam collectam commemoratio, et in canone missae pro anima piae recordationis Ricardi Dunelmensis episcopi secundi, et pro anima venerabilis patris et domini mei Nicholai Dunelmensis episcopi ; habenda et tenenda praedictis magistro et fratribus et eorum successoribus de Willielmo de Monasteriis capitali domino dictae medietatis villae, et heredibus suis, in liberam et perpetuam elemosinam imperpetuum. Reddendo eidem Willielmo et heredibus suis xij*d.* per annum ; scilicet sex denarios ad festum Pentecostes et sex denarios ad festum S. Martini, et faciendo forinsecum servicium debitum, sicut continetur in carta Walteri de Monasteriis patris praedicti Willielmi de Monasteriis inde confecta et dictis custodi et fratribus liberata. Nicholaus quondam episcopus Dunelmensis donationem et concessionem praedictam sicut in praedicta carta continetur confirmavit.

[1] Meaning apparently the same as Kirkscot, or Church-Scot, thus defined in Jacob's Law Dictionary, 1762 :—"Customary oblations paid to the Parish Priest ; from which duty the Religious sometimes purchased an exemption for themselves and their tenants."

Item cartam Roberti de Corbech et Sibillae filiae ejus in haec verba :—

Num. ix. Carta Roberti Corbech et Sibillae filiae ejus de villa de Hunstanworth.

Notum sit omnibus tam praesentibus quam futuris quod ego Robertus Corbech et Sibilla filia mea et omnes heredes nostri dedimus et concessimus et fide praestita quietum clamavimus domui S. Egidii de Dunelmo villam de Hunstanworth et omnem terram ad eam pertinentem, divisis apertis divisam, de Boltisburne usque Boltislawe, et de Boltislawe usque ad Evelshopheved, et Evelshopheved usque ad Derewentam, et de Derewenta usque ad Boltisburne pro amore et fraternitate domus, et propter decem marcas quas magister de Argentaneo et fratres praenotatae domus nobis in caritate dederunt, honorifice et pacifice possidendam cum omnibus libertatibus ad illam terram pertinentibus, quas libertates carta domini Hugonis episcopi memoratur et confirmat ; Faciendo episcopo Dunelm. servicium duodecimae partis cujusdam militis, de omnibus aliis serviciis pacificam et quietam. Quam conventionem ut ipsa rata permaneat ego Robertus assensu filiae meae Sibillae et omnium heredum meorum sigilli mei munimine roboravi.

Item cartam Roberti de Corbech et Sibillae filiae ejus in haec verba :—

Num. x. Alia carta ejusdem Roberti.

Robertus Corbech omnibus videntibus vel audientibus istas literas salutem. Sciatis me calumpniam quam habui de terra illa quae est inter Knokendenburne et Derewentam quietam clamasse, et communem pasturam in Hunstanworth dedisse et hac praesenti carta mea confirmasse Deo et hospitali S. Egidii de Dunelmo et fratribus ibidem Deo servientibus, pro salute mea et uxoris meae et heredum et parentum meorum, et pro anima mea et antecessorum meorum, &c.

Item cartam Roberti quondam episcopi Dunelm. in haec verba :—

Num. xi. Carta Roberti Dunelmensis Episcopi.

Universis sanctae matris Ecclesiae filiis ad quos praesens scriptura pervenerit Robertus Dei gratia Dunelm. episcopus salutem in Domino. Noveritis nos divinae miserationis intuitu dedisse concessisse et hac praesenti carta nostra confirmasse Deo et ecclesiae S. Egidii de Kypier, magistro et fratribus ibidem Deo servientibus et servituris totum tenementum nostrum cum suis pertinentiis quae habuimus in villa de Crawcrok ; quod quidem tenementum habuimus de dono Thomae de Holynside et Isoldae uxoris ejus, cum molendino et tota secta ejusdem villae sicut nos liberius tenuimus ; et redditum Daniel et Johannis Loty cum terra sua et cum tota sequela sua. Et terram quam Adam de Rytone quondam tenuit ; et quendam boscum qui vocatur le Frith cum toto alio bosco ad dominicum pertinente ; et totum Altunside a molendino descendendo usque le Frith ; et omnes operationes ejusdem villae cum piscaria aquae de Tyne, una cum tofto, tenemento, et suis pertinentiis quod habuimus de dono Laurentii de Lyntz in eadem villa de Crawcrok. Dedimus etiam Deo et dictis ecclesiae S. Egidii magistro et fratribus ibidem Deo servientibus totam villam de Inestan cum suis pertinentiis, quam quidem villam habuimus de dono Jacobi Birun sicut plenius testatur in cartis dictorum Thomae Isoldae Laurentii et Jacobi : habenda et tenenda dictae ecclesiae S. Item cartam decimae de Clifton in haec verba :—

Num. xvi. Compositio inter Pr. et Conv. Dunelmensis Ecclesiae et Procuratorem dicti Hospitalis.[1]

Anno ab incarnatione dominicae MCXCVII.[2] septimo kal. Augusti, scilicet in crastino Beati Jacobi, Pontificatus domini Hugonis Dunelmensis episcopi anno tricesimo sexto, facta est haec compositio inter Germanum priorem et coventum Dunelmi ecclesiae, et Adam canonicum procuratorem hospitalis S. Egidii, et fratres ejusdem hospitalis, ex voluntate et consensu domini Hugonis Dunelmi episcopi ; scilicet quod prior et monachi quietam clamaverunt imperpetuum decimam bladi di Cliftone domui S. Oswaldi de Elveta ; ita quod fratres dicti hospitalis nullo unquam tempore aliquam decimam de praedicta terra reddent ; sed tota decima bladi terrae illius, sicut aliae obventiones, sine omni diminutione et retractione praefato hospitali quieta remanebit imperpetuum. Fratres autem dicti hospitalis, in recompensationem singulis annis in perpetuum reddent super altare S. Oswaldi de Elveta in die ejusdem Sancti unum bisantium vel duos solidos. Et insuper duas garbas de decima dominii de Newtone quietas clamaverunt imperpetuum praedictae ecclesiae S. Oswaldi quae a tempore Ranulphi episcopi, sicut in ejusdem cartâ continetur, usque ad illud tempus reddi solebant praefato hospitali ; ita quod nullo unquam tempore aliquam decimam occasione cartarum suarum vel privilegiorum exigent infra divisas villae de Newtone, set tota decima bladi infra divisas ejusdem villae, sicut et aliae obventiones, sine omni diminutione et retractione quieta remanebunt imperpetuum ecclesiae S. Oswaldi de Elveta ; et, ne alterutra pars ab hac compositione resilere possit, in praesentia domini Hugonis

[1] This Composition, together with Bishop Pudsey's confirmation of it, still exists in the Durham Treasury (4ª, 16, Spec., No. 45). From the copy of the Composition there preserved, Kellaw's Commissioners may be supposed to have verified it.

[2] Apparently an error for MCLXXXIX, as it is in the original document preserved in the Durham Treasury. This, and not 1197, was the 36th year of Hugh Pudsey's pontificate.

Episcopi huic inde in verbo veritatis promiserunt se etiam bona fide imperpetuum servituros, et ipse Episcopus eam carta sua confirmavit imperpetuum et confirmandam statuit, &c.

Item cartam Henrici Lyghfot in haec verba :—

Num. xvii. Carta Henrici Lyghfot.

Omnibus hoc scriptum visuris vel audituris Henricus Lyghfot salutem. Noveritis me dedisse concessisse et hac presenti carta mea confirmasse in puram et perpetuam elemosinam magistro et fratribus domus de Kypier in subsidium sustentationis elemosinae ibidem faciendae totam terram meam quam habui apud Dernecrok, tam terram quam habui ex emptione quam terram quam tenui de domino episcopo Dunelm., quietam et solutam de me et haeredibus meis imperpetuum tenendam et habendam de dominis feodi illius cum omnibus libertatibus liberis consuetudinibus et aisiamentis dictis terris pertinentibus faciendo servicium debitum in cartis feodacionis meae contentum libere, &c. Quam quidem donationem Robertus quondam episcopus Dunelmensis in omnibus confirmavit et concessit dictis Magistro et fratribus et successoribus suis hanc clausulam. Nos autem eisdem concedimus housbote et haybote in boscis nostris et successorum nostrorum, per visum et liberationem forestariorum nostrorum, et quieti erunt de sectis curiarum nostrarum et molendinorum et de pannagio porcorum, videlicet de porcis propriis, &c.

Item cartam de Bedlyngtonshire in haec verba :—

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos praesens scriptum pervenerit Willielmus Halchor, Robertus Cnowald, Willielmus Birilot, Thomas filius Rogeri de Bedlyngton, Walterus et Robertus filii Roberti de Nedderton, Adam et Elyas frater ejus de Chapyngton, Thomas et Johannes de Slyburne, Alanus, Adam et Walterus Caritas de Camhuse, Edmundus filius Rogeri, et Laurentius filius Odardi, et Adam Serviens, et Ranulphus filius Petri, Robertus filius Henrici, et Robertus Palnure de parva Slykburne, salutem in Domino. Cum antiqua constitutione venerabilium patrum et dominorum nostrorum Dunelm. episcoporum constitueretur ut de singulis carucis omnium dominiorum eorum daretur una trava bladi hospitali S. Egidii extra Dunelmum caritatis intuitu ad sustentationem pauperum et peregrinorum ibidem undecunque confluentium, Nos eorum constitutionem approbantes et devote acceptantes dedimus et concessimus et hac praesenti carta nostra confirmavimus, pro salute animarum nostrarum patrum et matrum et omnium parentum nostrorum, Deo et dicto hospitali S. [Durham Treasury, 2228, 4ª 16ᵐᵃᵉ Specialium, No. 45].

Hugo Dei gracia Dunelmen. Episcopus Priori Dunelmen. et Archidiaconis et universo clero totius Episcopatus sui salutem. Sciatis nos concessisse et hac praesenti carta confirmasse composicionem illam quae inter Germanum Priorem Dunelmen. et Conventum et Adam Canonicum procuratorem hospitalis Sancti Egidii et fratres ejusdem hospitalis ex voluntate nostra et consensu factam, scilicet quod Prior et monachi quietam clamaverunt in perpetuum decimam bladi de Cliftona Domui Sancti Egidii, quae usque ad illud tempus reddi solebat ecclesiae Sancti Oswaldi de Elueta ; Ita quod fratres Hospitalis nullo unquam tempore aliquam decimam de praedicta terra reddent. Sed tota decima bladi illius terrae sicut aliae obventiones sine omni diminutione et retractatione praefato hospitali quieta remanebit in perpetuum. Fratres autem hospitalis in recompensationem reddent singulis annis in perpetuum super altare ecclesiae Sancti Oswaldi de Elueta in die ejusdem Sancti unum bisantium vel duos solidos, et insuper duas garbas de decima dominii de Neutona quietas clamaverunt in perpetuum ecclesiae Sancti Oswaldi, quae a tempore Ranulfi Episcopi sicut in ejus carta continetur usque ad illud tempus reddi solebant praedicto Hospitali ;

Ita quod nullo unquam tempore aliquam decimam occasione cartarum suarum vel privelegiorum exigent infra divisas villae de Neutona. Sed tota decima bladi infra divisas ejusdem villae sicut et aliae obventiones sine omni diminutione et retractatione quieta remanebit ecclesiae Sancti Oswaldi de Elueta in perpetuum. Et ne alterutra pars ab hac compositione resilire posset, in praesentia nostra hinc inde in verbo veritatis promiserunt se eam bona fide in perpetuum servaturos. Hanc quidem composicionem cartis nostris, quarum unam praedicto Priori et alteram memorato canonico tradidimus, corroboravimus et in perpetuum conservandam statuimus. Hiis testibus, Burchardo et Willelmo Archidiaconis, Simone camerario, Magistro Ricardo de Coldingham, Magistro Willelmo Blesensi, Magistro Stephano Lincolnensi, Willelmo de Houeden, Rad. dapifero, Ricardo et Germano notariis domini episcopi, et aliis multis.

APPENDIX B.

DOCUMENTS RELATING TO S. MARY MAGDALEN HOSPITAL.

I. Composition between the Convent of Durham and Kepyer Hospital.[1]

[Durham Treasury, 6ta 4tae Elemos., No. 12].

Hospitale S. Mariae Magd. juxta Kipyer.

Radulfus de Elvet monacus procurator hospitalis Sancti Egidii de Kipyer et fratres ejusdem loci omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos praesens scriptum pervenerit aeternam in Domino salutem. Noverit universitas vestra quod cum aliqua esset contencio inter Priorem et Conventum Dunelmensis ecclesiae et nos de terra nostra de Aymundestun et de Hurtheworthe quam Gilbertus Haunsard nobis dedit ad sustentacionem unius capellani qui pro defunctis imperpetuum divina celebraret in excambium medietatis villae de Chyrtun in Nortumbria quae quondam fuit Johannis de Hameldun et quam idem Johannes cum quibusdam aliis terris dedit Priori et Conventui Dunelmensis ecclesiae ad sustentacionem trium sacerdotum qui divina celebrarent imperpetuum, Ita tamen quod Henricus et Walterus fratres ejus et eorum heredes dictarum terrarum firmarii essent feudarii et dictis Priori et Conventui Dunelmensis Ecclesiae redderent novem marcas annuas inde ad dictum servicium faciendum, et idem Prior et Conventus Dunelmensis ecclesiae illud servicium recusarent faciendum, et sic ad nos verteretur excambium medietatis villae de Chyrton, scilicet terra de Aymundeston et de Hurtheworthe per Radulfum de Elvet monacum procuratorem nostrum. [Illico autem ?] per G. Haunsard et Walterum de Hameldun tandem inter nos amicabilis intervenit composicio in hunc modum, scilicet quod nos unanimi voluntate et consensu concessimus et dedimus Priori et Conventui Dunelmensis ecclesiae redditum annuum trium marcarum convertendum in pios usus per manum elemosinarii sui pro anima dicti

[1] The purport of this document, with its importance as throwing light on the origin of S. Mary Magdalen Hospital, has been noted in the Introduction under "Hospital of S. Mary Magdalen." Its date (not given) appears to have been before the middle of the thirteenth century.

Johannis de Hameldun et omnium defunctorum in certo loco. Unde eisdem concessimus et dedimus et in saysinam posuimus de terra nostra de Hurthewurthe quae reddit annuatim xxiiij solidos et de xij acris terrae in crofto nostro australi [1] sub vico Sancti Egidii versus Wer a sole remotioribus scilicet versus occidentem pro xvj solidis annuis ; Salva burgensibus nostris firma sua perpetua de eadem terra. Sed, si burgenses illas xii acras tenentes a solucione firmae cessaverint, liceat dictis Priori et Conventui dictarum xii acrarum possessionem ingredi et illas tam diu tenere donec eis plenarie satisfiat de firma. Dictas autem terras saepe dicto Priori et Conventui Dunelmensis ecclesiae concessimus et dedimus habendas et tenendas in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, sicut eas tenuimus, de nobis et successoribus nostris. Ita tamen quod ocasione hujus concessionis nichil a nobis aut a terris nostris aut hominibus nostris exigant praeter firmam dictarum xij acrarum, vel xij acras si dicti firmarii a dictae firmae solucione cessaverint, et has dictas terras de Hurthewurthe et de crofto Australi dictis Priori et Conventui warrantizabimus secundum quod G. Haunsard et heredes sui nobis warrantizaverunt terram de Aymundestun. Et ut haec nostra composicio concessio et donacio rata stabilis et firma futuris temporibus permaneat praesens scriptum sigillo Sancti Egidii et nostro roboravimus. Hiis testibus, Willelmo et Alano capellanis nostris in capitulo nostro, Waltero Blunde, Ric. Fabro, Helya de Kazop, Radulfo Forestario, Waltero de Fonte, et curia nostra.

Endorsed : Compositio inter Priorem et Conventum et domum de Kypyare in qua conceduntur xij acrae terrae elemosinario juxta hospitale Sanctae Mariae Magdalenae.

Endorsed : Querela de Elemos. pro Hospitali de Mawdelayns sed sciendum quod ista querela non continet veritatem pro majori parte. Jacet 6a quartae.

The above may be rendered in English and explained as follows :—

It is a certain thing that a knight, by name Sir John le Fitz Alisaundre, founded Magdalen Hospital in Durham, and made a chapel and several other buildings in this Hospital, in perpetual alms, for the souls of all Christians, out of his lands and of his demesne rents ; in which hospital he established for ever a chaplain and xiij brethren and sisters, that is to say, men and women who had been good people and in good case in their youth, and whose goods had failed ; such people were to be received in this Hospital without giving anything for their entry.

And for having certain sustenance for a chaplain and for the xiij brethren and sisters above-mentioned for ever assigned, he gave lands which lie near this hospital and before the gate of Sherburn ; and for having certain sustenance for ever he gave to the Almonry of Durham the vill of Rilley together with the mill and all the mayte [1] of the mill of Chilton in order to have certain sustenance every year to this hospital with the assent of the Prior and of the Convent of Durham, the which was granted and confirmed for ever ; to wit for the chaplain abiding there the livere [2] of a monk every day, and every year a garnement [3] of the price of one mark ; and for the xiij brethren and sisters every week xxiij loaves, and the half-part [thereof] of white bread de mayne,[4] and on three days

[1] Probably the right of the tenants of the estate to grind their corn at the mill. Mais or mait means a sort of coffer into which the flour falls as the corn is ground. See Ducange, sub voce MAITA.

[2] I.e., a monk's usual daily sustenance ; probably from Low Latin liverare, or liberare, meaning to deliver, or remit. See Ducange. In Old French, livraison means something given or delivered in kind.

[3] A long coat, or kind of mantle.

[4] The word mayne should come from Low Latin maina, a mansion, or house. It may have been the usual term for such bread as was used in good households—household-bread.

in the week pulment [1]—to wit, on each day two gallons and a half; and every year to each brother and sister for themselves three ells of russet and three others of canvas and iiij*d.* for shoes. And of such sustenances and livere this hospital was seized by years and days until the time of a monk, dan John of Bulford, Almoner of Durham, who begged by fraud of one Thomas de Heworth (one of the brethren who acted as guardian) that he would lend him the loaves of one week for workmen that he had at Witton; and he (i.e., Thomas de Heworth) granted them to him, and also others for other three weeks next ensuing, for that the house was at that time in good case; and then went this Thomas and asked for the loaves, which were ready, and given up to him at his request. And in order to get sight of the muniments which were in the keeping of the said Thomas, the said dan John gave the said Thomas a surcoat furee de Ray [2] which had belonged to one William, his sergeant, who was dead; and the said Thomas received this surcoat, and brought him all their muniments to keep; and the said dan John took them, and they were by him detained, and are so still,[3] together with their loaves, and their clothes [draps], and their money, and their pulment. Wherefore, Sir, all Christian souls pray you for remedy and amendment.

Endorsed on the part of the Prior and Convent after they had received the document:—

Complaint concerning alms for the Magdalen Hospital. But be it known that this complaint does not contain truth for the most part.

[1] Pulmentum.—Vox veteribus cognita, sed sequiori aetati maxime in regulis monasticis usurpata, ubi pro quovis obsonio accipitur.—D'Arnis.

[2] Furee for fourrée, i.e., furred. Ray may be the English word that occurs in Ray-cloth, meaning "cloth that was never coloured or dyed." (Bailey).

[3] Uncorsunt in the original seems to be meant for encore sont.

Interesting extracts made by the late Rev. Francis Thompson from the Almoner's Rolls in the Durham Treasury, relating to the rebuilding of the Church of the Hospital under the authority of Bishop Nevill, and repairs both of the old and the new one in successive years, with notes about the present remains, will be found in "Transactions of Architectural and Archaeological Society of Durham and Northumberland, MDCCCLXIX—MDCCCLXXV." To these may here be added the following account of repairs as late as A.D. 1554 :—

APPENDIX C.

RELATING TO THE PARISH CHURCH AND GUILD OF ST. GILES.

The following information and extracts have been supplied to the Editor by Mr Henry Grove, of London, after search in the Record Office.

Grant of the Rectory of St. Giles, Durham.

By letters Patent dated 23rd May in the 7th year of Edward VI (1553) the King sold to Lord Ormeston, with other property, the Rectory and Church of St. Giles, Durham, part of the possessions of the late Hospital of Kepyer, to which it had been appropriated. The grant includes all tithes, oblations, obventions, pastures, rents, pensions, and portions of tithes, Court Lets, frankpledges, commodies, emoluments, and hereditaments spiritual and temporal.

There is no special mention of the right to the advowson of the Vicarage; but it doubtless passed with the tithes under the words "Rectory and Church" of St. Giles.[1]

The Grant is enrolled on the Patent Roll of 6th Edw. VI, Part 7, No. 24.

The Guylde of Seynt Giles in the parishe churche of Seynt Gyles in the Citie of Durham.

[1] This is the remark of Mr. Grove. The more probable explanation is that there was no endowment of a Vicarage, the brethren of Kepyer, being an ecclesiastical Corporation, having served the church themselves. See "Introduction," under "The Parish Church and Living."

The said Guylde was founded to fynde A priest for ever for the mayntenance of Goddis servyce by the devocion of good people inhabytyng in the Citie of Durham by Reporte, but there is no Dede of any Foundacion therof to be shewed. [1] There is a Grant of this Obit in the 6th of James to Morrice and Phelips, together with a free Chapel in Kingsgate, valued at 8*s.* But there is nothing to show that this Chapel belonged to either the Guild or to the Obit in St. Giles' Church. The grant is enrolled on the Patent of 6 James part 30, M. 8.

Grants of the Property of the Guild.

The houses that were comprised in the leases were all subsequently granted in fee by James I. The first Grantees were Ward & Morgan in the 6th year of James, of several houses named in the leases. The second Grant was to Morris & Phelips in the 7th of James, which comprised the residue of the houses.

Beyond stating that the houses were once the property of the Guild of St. Giles in the city of Durham, the Grants do not give any particulars of interest. One is enrolled on the Patent of 6 James, part 21, & the other on the 6th James, part 30.

APPENDIX D.

I.—MASTERS OF KEPYER HOSPITAL.

The following list with annotations and references, with the exception of the names printed in italics, is what is given in the "Mickleton MSS.," No. 32. The meaning of some of the abbreviated references has not been discovered by the present Editor. The names in italics have been supplied, as will appear, from other authentic sources. Further notices of what is known of the successive rulers are given in the foot-notes. In documents referring to them their official title varies, "Magister sive Custos" being the most usual expression, and the word "Gubernator" being sometimes used. But in Bishop Pudsey's original "ordinatio" of the Hospital the title "Magister" alone occurs. It is obvious that their position was one of dignity, and often occupied in conjunction with other honourable and important offices. The bishops, having the appointment in their hands, appear to have usually conferred it on men whom they delighted to honour, and whom they continued to employ in other ways.

[1] There seems to be nothing to show positively that this Adam was Master of the Hospital. All that appears is that he acted as proctor for the house, being also designated "Canonicus" in its Composition in the year 1189 with Germanus the Prior and the Convent of Durham with regard to the tithes of Clifton (See above, p. 204).

[2] In a Composition between the Convent and the Hospital in the earlier part of the thirteenth century Radulfus de Elvet, there described as monacus, acts as procurator for the Hospital (See Appendix B, I). In another document of the time of Prior Kernech (1219—1233) we find also R. rectorem nostrum (presumably the same Radulfus) among the procuratores for the Hospital (See Appendix B, II).

[1] His name occurs in the form of "De Argentaneo" in No. IX of the Verified Charters (See above, p. 201), in which Robert and Sibilla Corbech quit-claim to the Hospital certain lands at Hunstanworth in return for ten marks, "quas Magister de Argentaneo et fratres praenotatae domus nobis in caritate dederunt."

[2] His name is omitted altogether in the Mickleton MSS. In the list of Masters given in the Hunter MSS. he comes first, thus :—"1254—Johan. de London." He is said by Surtees to have been Chaplain to Bishop Walter de Kirkham (1249—1260). He was commissioned with W. de Meru by Bishop Kirkham to receive the resignation of Bertram, Prior of Durham, A.D. 1258 ("Tres Scriptores," cap. vi, p. 43), but he is not there designated as Master of Kepyer.

[3] Omitted in the Hunter MSS., and ignored by Hutchinson and Surtees. But see "Registrum III Prioris et Convent. Dunelm." in the Durham Treasury, fo. 83 v., where in a pronouncement of contumacy by the Bishop (Anthony Bek) against the Prior and Convent (13 Kal. Jun., 1300), "dominus Pet. de Tyleynsby Magr Hospitalis de Kepeyere" is among the witnesses. Other witnesses are the Master of Sherburn and the Rector of Brancepeth.

[4] Thus, according to the Mickleton MSS., he was Master of the Hospital at least as early as 1306, when the Scots burnt the muniment room. In 1311 he was cited as "Custos de Kepiyere" in a visitation to be held by the Bishop (Ric. Kellaw) concerning his acts of dilapidation at Kepyer (Kellaw's "Reg. Palat.," Rolls Edition, vol. i, p. 34). In 1312 (4 Kal. Nov.) he was witness, with his "capellanis," to a confirmation of a grant to the Chapel of St. James on New Bridge at Durham (Ibid., vol. ii, p. 1176). In the same year (7 Id. Mar.) he was witness to royal confirmation of grants made by Bishop Bek to Roger de Esse ; and (4 Id. Nov.) to Inspeximus of the same. In 1315 his name occurs as having been one of the receivers of Bishop Bek, in a King's writ in favour of the executors of that bishop (Ibid., vol. ii, p. 1097).

The following previous notices of him are also found in the same "Registrum Palatinum" of Bishop Kellaw :—

A.D. 1295.—There is the record of a fine levied in the Bishop's Court at Durham (23 Edw. I: 12 Ant. Bek.) "coram Guychardo de Charron et Petro de Thoresby, justiciariis assignatis" (vol. iii, p. 69). In the same volume, p. 236, there is also the copy of a grant by Anthony, Bishop of Durham (not dated), in which "dominus Petrus de Thoresby" is one of the witnesses.

A.D. 1305.—It is recorded that Bishop Bek, having seized the Priorate of Durham, "custodes et ballivos suos in eadem prioratu apponit, scilicet Petrum de Thoresby," &c. (vol. iv, p. 17). In the same year the deprived Prior "nunciavit Petro de Thoresby custodi prioratus tunc quod pax inter dominum Episcopum et ipsum coram domino Rege pacta fuit, et idem Petrus custos in hoc gavisus," &c. (Ibid., p. 47).

It was probably he who assisted in rescuing the Archbishop of York (Tho. Grimston) from the mob, when the latter, A.D. 1283, had visited Durham, sede vacante, had been refused entrance into the Cathedral, and had proceeded to the Church of St. Nicholas, where he was about to excommunicate the Prior and Convent, when a tumult arose, and he had to escape by the waterside to Kepyer, having had one of his palfrey's ears cut off, and might have been killed, "si Wycardus de Charrons et Petrus de Thorsbi non impedissent" ("Tres Scriptores," 65). It will be observed that we have found him associated with the same "Guychardo de Charron" in the record of 1295 above referred to, both being there described as "justiciarii."

[1] He had been among the monks of Durham excommunicated, A.D. 1308, by Bishop Anthony Bec for not receiving Henry de Luceby as Prior in place of Richard Hotoun, and, when the latter had been dragged out of his stall by one of the monks, and imprisoned by the Bishop, Hugo Montalto, with another monk, John de Castro, had been imprisoned with him ("Tres Scriptores," cap. xxiii, and Appendix lxxxv). He is named also, with other monks of Durham, in a letter of Pope Clement V with reference to this excommunication (Ibid., p. ciii, No. lxxxv). He was also the entertainer of Isabella, Queen of Edward II, when on the 21st of April, 1311–12, she was lodged at Kepyer, the Master being paid £18 17s. 9d. for her expenses. — "Item domino Hugoni de Monte Alto per unam literam, vj*l.* ij*s.* viij*d.*—Item in solucione facta pro expensis Reginae apud Kypyer xxj die mensis Aprilis xviij*l.* xvij*s.* ix*d.* Item in liberacione facta Domino Roberto de Dunelm. in partem debiti in quo Dominus ei tenetur, viij*l.* x*s.* iiij*d.* per dominum H. de Monte Alto" ("Tres Scriptores," Appendix lxxxvi, pp. cv, cvi). His name occurs as Master of Kepyer in a grant by the Hospital to Robert de Epplynden, A.D. 1311. See "Introduction," p. xxiv. It was during his incumbency (A.D. 1311) that Bishop Kellaw issued his commission for verifying the Charters of the Hospital, which had been destroyed by the fire of 1306 (See above, Appendix A, p. 192). It was during his incumbency too (A.D. 1315) that Kellow established a fourteenth prebend, to be attached to the Mastership of Kepyer, in the Collegiate Church of St. Andrew Auckland ("Registr. Palat.," ii, p. 1272). In 1312 the Prior of Durham, having been summoned to a Parliament to be holden at Lincoln, sent two proctors to represent him, one of whom was Hugo de Monte Alto ("Tres Scriptores," p. cx). He had previously (A.D. 1306), while still a monk of Durham, been appointed by the Prior, along with William De l'Escheker, to transact his business in any court of England (Ibid., p. cii). In 1317, during his incumbency, a pension was granted by the Hospital to one Symon de Wycot, which was confirmed by the Prior (Galfrid) and the Convent, 1st Feb., 1319 (Durham Treasury, Reg. ii, fo. 67 v.). He is named as Master of Kepyer in Bishop Beaumont's licence with respect to the advowson of Hunstanworth (See Appendix A, V).

[1] In 1341 he granted a lease of a toft in Crossgate to Emma, relict of John de Todhowe (See Appendix A, XII). In 1343 he occurs as Archdeacon of Northumberland. In 1345, during his incumbency, Bishop Hatfield confirmed the evidences of the Hospital. In his time, too, was probably built the gateway of the Hospital which still remains, and on which are two shields, one of which bears three crowns, and the other a bend between what may have been crosses crosslet fitchy, much defaced by weather. The latter correspond with the arms of Howard, which are :— Gu., a bend between 6 crosses crosslet fitchy arg. The three crowns on the other shield were borne by the Abbey of Bury St. Edmund's, and by Tynemouth Priory. Why they appear on the gateway has not been discovered. Richard de Bury was the contemporary bishop ; but he is not known to have adopted these arms.

Robertus Wycliff, ob. 1423 (Hunter MSS.).[3]

[1] What is said in the Mickleton MSS. shows him to have been Master as early as 1350. He is mentioned by name as Master in a document of 1352 (See Appendix A, VIII). He was Bishop Hatfield's Spiritual Chancellor in 1351 ("Reg. Hatf.," fo. 2 v.; also fo. 3, fo. 3 v.). In 1353 he was Rector of Brancepeth ("Reg. Hatf.," fo. 13).

[2] This name occurs in none of the lists of Masters. But we find in Bishop Hatfield's Register, A.D. 1362, mention of the induction as Master of "dominus Ricardus Rot'" (Roter or Rutter?) ("Reg. Hatf.," fo. 57).

[3] It is curious that this notable personage should have been omitted from the list of Masters in the Mickleton MSS. The following notices of him, before and during his incumbency, are from notes on the Masters of Kepyer left by the late Rev. Francis Thompson :—

"In 1399 the Archdeacon of Durham issued a mandate (in the absence of Bishop Skirlawe) to the Prior of Durham and others (of whom Robert Wycliffe was one) for a general array of the county, which seems to have taken place on the 24th of March, 1400, on Gilesgatemoor. At this time Wycliffe was constable of Durham" (See "Tres Scriptores," clxxxiii, clxxxv).

In a note, p. 66, on the "Durham Wills" of the Surtees Society, it is said that this Robert Wycliffe was of the family of Wycliffe of Wycliffe, and a near relation, probably a nephew, of Wycliffe the reformer. Rector of Wycliffe, 1362, res. 1363. Rector of Hutton Rudby in Cleveland from 1377 to his death. Rector of Kirby Ravensworth in 1379, res. 1382. Rector of St. Crux in York, res. 1391. Appointed by the King as guardian of the heir of Lord Fitz-Hugh, res. 1391. Master of Kepyer before 1405. Temporal Chancellor and Receiver General of the Bishopric, and Constable of Durham Castle from 1390 to 1405. One of the executors of Bishop Skirlawe. One of the executors of Sir Philip D'Arcy in 1399. One of the executors of Margery, widow of William de Aldeburgh, once wife of Peter de Mauley, 1391. His armorial bearings (arg., a chevron sable between 3 cross crosslets gules) occur in the cloister of Durham begun by Bishop Skirlawe. In his will he leaves "cuilibet capellano et cuilibet fratri Hospitalis de Kepier vjs. viij*d*. Item lego cuilibet pauperi scholari sedenti ad skepham infra aulam praedicti Hospitali ijs." His will dated at Kepyer 8th Sept., 1423. It is in the Durham series, and contains the following clause, "corpusque meum sepeliendum ubi contigerit me decedere ab hac vita, vel ubi executores mei disposuerint illud sepeliri." His inventory is in the York series (Test. Ebor. I, 403), and contains, "Item datur Hospitali de Kepier ciphus coopertus cum nodo aliquantulum perforato. Item datur j duodena coclearium Hospitali de Kepier.—Legata lectorum apud Kepier; Datur Roberto Toppyng j lectus rubeus cum certis (sertis) intextis; Datur Willielmo Semar j coopertorium rubeum cum armis Walteri nuper Episcopi. Legata librorum; Datur Hospitali de Kepier liber dictus Catholicon; Dantur eidem Hospitali j liber Evangelii & j Psalterium. Datur Johanni de Midelton" (one of the executors) "parvum portiphorium & j missale pro tempore vitae, et post vitam ejus redditur ad praedictum Hospitale de Kepier. Item datur Alano de Shirborn & Roberto Toppyng j magnum Portiphorium cum claspis argenti." In 1398 a hundred shillings were lent to the Priory of Finchale by Robert Wycliff. An indulgence was granted by Bishop Langley, 5th April, 1414, for the repair of the Church of St. Giles.

No record of this alleged indulgence has been discovered by the present editor.

[1] He appears to have succeeded Wycliff in 1423, having been also Rector of St. Nicholas in Durham. So in Mickleton MSS., and so described in Bishop Langley's Will, dated 1436, proved 1439. In 1435 Bishop Langley gave licence to him and others to form the Guild of Corpus Christi in the Church of St. Nicholas. It was not, it may be remembered, till 1443 that the Rectory was appropriated by Bishop Nevill to the Hospital (Appendix A, p. 208). It will be seen in Appendix A, XIV, how in 1437 Bishop Langley visited the Hospital by commission; how in the same year, after such visitation, he acquitted Bukley of maladministration, and confirmed him in his office; how in 1439 Bishop Nevill did the same, but afterwards in the same year accepted his resignation on the ground of age and infirmity, assigning him a pension of 40 marks a year.

Henricus Gillowe[1] (Hunter MSS.).

[1] Not mentioned in the Mickleton MSS., but placed in the Hunter MSS. and by Hutchinson and Surtees between Lounde and Booth. Surtees says that he resigned the Mastership in 1479, without giving his reason for saying so. Certainly in that year Ralph Booth, and not he, was Master, as will appear below. The late Rev. F. Thompson, in his notes above referred to on the Masters of Kepyer, doubts his having been Master at all, giving as a reason that Lounde was living and Chancellor in 1464, and that Bishop Laurence Booth (consecrated in 1457 and translated to York in 1476) seems to have given everything he could to his relative Ralph Booth, and was likely to have given him the Hospital. This, however, is but a weak argument: and Henry Gillow, who had followed the bishop out of Lancashire, seems to have been no less a recipient of his favours. He held the following preferments. He was (according to Surtees) Temporal Chancellor to Bishop Booth. Between 1470 and his death he was Rector of Houghton-le-Spring. On July 24th, 1476, he was installed prebendary of Tockerington at York on the presentation of the Archbishop Laurence Booth (Reg. Capit. Ebor.). He exchanged this for Fridaythorpe, to which he was collated on June 11th, 1479 (Reg. Laur. Booth, 7 a b). On March 5th, 1477 8, he was installed Sub-dean of York (Regs. Capit. et Laur. Booth, 5 a, &c.). This he held till his death, together with the Rectory of Gilling, in which he was installed July 18th, 1480 (Reg. sede vacante, 495 a). See Canon Raine's note on p. 281 of "Testamenta Eboracensia," Surtees Society, vol. xlv. In 1467 8, and in 1468 9, the house of Finchale paid him rent for certain lands at Coken (near Finchale across the river): for we find in the Compotus domini Will. Byrden Prioris de Fyncall, in those years, "Et solvit magistro Henrico Gillowe pro terris in Coken quondam Willielmi Redforth xxxiijs. iiij*d*." ("Finchale Priory," Surtees Society, pp. cccvi, cccx). Further, in 1475 he had a suit with the house of Finchale in the Consistory Court of Durham with respect to rights in coal mines "at Fynchale and Raynton." In letters relating to this dispute he is designated "Mr. Henry Gillowe parson of Hoghton," but not as Master of Kepyer (Ibid., pp. 37, 38, 39). In his will (dated Feb. 8th, 1482–3, and proved April 29th, 1483), in which he describes himself as Sub-dean of York, prebendary of Fridaithorp, and rector of Gilling and of Hoghton, he directs himself to be buried at Houghton near his mother; provides for the erection of a chapel over his body, and the foundation of a chantry in honour of the Blessed Virgin and St. Katherine with an endowment of 8 marks a year; leaves two silver thuribles and two silver candlesticks to the Church of Houghton, and several other legacies ("York Wills," Surtees Society, iii, 281).

[1] Master certainly in 1479, on the 12th of November in which year he leased Old Durham (which then belonged to Kepyer as glebe of the impropriated Rectory of St. Nicholas) to his relative Richard Booth for 99 years at a rent of £10. He was himself a relative of Bishop Laurence Booth, who was translated to York in 1476, and by whom he was made Archdeacon of York in 1477. He was afterwards, as is said in the Mickleton MSS., Temporal Chancellor to Bishop Sherwood and also to Bishop Fox. Hutchinson, in his list of Archdeacons of Durham, says that he was a prebendary of Norton, and occurs as Archdeacon in 1463. He was certainly Archdeacon of Durham in 1494, being so described in a commission to him and Prior Auckland for declaring the articles of the greater excommunication ("Tres Scriptores," ccclxxx). Also in 1496, as appears from an Appendix to "Tres Scriptores" to the following effect:—That on the 5th February in that year Thomas Swallwell, B.D., monk of Durham, offered at the shrine of St. Cuthbert, according to custom, the silver seals of the late Bishop Sherwood (who had died at Rome, July 12th, 1494) in the name and at the request of Ralph Booth, Archdeacon of Durham, who had been Chancellor of Bishop Sherwood during his life, and who was then on his deathbed at Kepeyre, Booth having further requested that at the time of the offering "quinque Pater noster cum salutatione Angelica" might be offered for the bishop and himself ("Tres Scriptores," ccclxxxvii). It is stated in the notices left by the Rev. Francis Thompson that in 1494 the bishop of Bath (Richard Fox, translated to Durham in that year) sent through him a licence for the election of a new Prior of Durham, that in 1495 Richard Booth and Ralph Booth were both witnesses to persons taking sanctuary in the church of Durham, and that Ralph Booth was named in a commission to pay Bishop Sherwood's debts out of the bishopric, sede vacante.

[1] Appointed by Bishop Fox in 1497. See Appendix A, XX. Omitted in Mickleton MSS., but inserted in Hunter MSS. Surtees says of him, "per m. Booth. Nephew to Bishop Fox; Archdeacon of Durham."

[2] Omitted in both Mickleton and Hunter MSS. Surtees includes him in his list as follows:—"1501. Roger Layborn, Rector of Stanhope and afterwards of Sedgefield. Archdeacon of Durham. Master of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge. Consecrated Bishop of Carlisle, 1503. Ob. 1509."

[3] "Thomas Wytton is mentioned as Master in a book of copied wills and instruments which I found J. Raine, jun., making extracts from in the D. and C. Library, Aug. 27, 1850" (Notices of Masters of Kepyer left by the late Rev. Francis Thompson).

[4] He was a Genoese clerk, Archdeacon of Durham from 1504 to 1515. In the list of Archdeacons given in Sanderson's "Antiquities of the Abbey of Durham" he occurs thus:—"Jo. Boerius Clericus Genuensis, who resigned in 1515." In a MS. list, written by Randall, in the Thorp Collection, vol. 49, p. 85, he is thus described:—"John Boerius, a Genoese clerk, intruded by the Pope . . . 1504. He res. . . . 1515, reserving to himself a pension of £50 p. a. during life."

One John Baptista Boerius, a Genoese, was eminent as a physician to Henry VII and Henry VIII for many years. There is frequent mention of him in "Domestic Letters and Papers of Henry VIII" (Rolls Series). Erasmus, as there appears, was well acquainted with him and corresponded with him during his stay in England (1510 to 1514), and at one time had a young son of his under his care as a pupil. There is a letter (No. 635) dated Rome, 28th June, 1515, from Julius Cardinal de Medicis to Wolsey, in which he promises to promote the cause of "John Baptista, the physician," and another (No. 634) of the same date from the same Julius to Henry VIII, adverting to one received from the King commending Bernard Boerius, son of John Baptista. It thus appears that solicitation had been made at Rome from high quarters in favour of the family of Boerius, so as to account sufficiently for the intrusion, as alleged, of some member of it into the Archdeaconry of Durham by the Pope; and it may have been under like influence that the same John Boerius got also the Mastership of Kepyer.

II.—INCUMBENTS OF ST. GILES.

The following list down to A.D. 1828, with the exception of the names printed in italics, is as given by Hutchinson and Surtees, the differences between them being noted. Unfortunately neither of them gives his authority. What has been ascertained from other sources will be found in the notes. The additional notices in the text enclosed by square brackets with F.T. after them are from a list left among the papers of the late Rev. Francis Thompson, Incumbent of St. Giles, who was a careful and competent investigator of the antiquities of his parish.

Before the dissolution of religious houses the Master and brethren of Kepyer Hospital, being an ecclesiastical corporation, would no doubt serve the cure themselves, perhaps appointing usually one of their own body as parochial chaplain. Hutchinson and Surtees mention the following three during this period as supposed to have held this office, of whom, however, one only is authenticated, as will be shown in the notes.

MELDREDUS,[1] 1131.

DOM. THOMAS WHITE,[2] } 1501.
DOM. W. DE EDEN, }

After the surrender of the Hospital, there being no separate endowment for a vicar, the lay impropriator would be responsible for the cure. At first it is probable that the priest of the guild in the church, Richard Middleton, fulfilled the duties. See "Introduction" under "Parish Church and Living." After him (according to Hutchinson and Surtees) :—

JOHN KIRMAN, occ. 6 July, 1559.

DOM. GEO. COOKE, occ. 10 July, 1564.

DOM. OLIVER ESHE,[3] occ. 16 Oct., 1565.

[1] The only supposed evidence seems to be that a Charter of Agreement between Rad. de Nevill and the Convent for Staindrop (Cartuar. II, fo. 1866) is witnessed by "Meldredo p'sbit'o de S'c'o Egidio" among others. See Surtees' "History of Durham," vol. iv, pt. i, p. 149. But there seems to be nothing to connect him of necessity with the church of St. Giles which was attached to Kepyer.

[2] His name occurs as parochial chaplain of the Church of St. Giles in a Visitation of the city and diocese of Durham, A.D. 1501, by Thomas Savage, Archbishop of York, during the vacancy of the see after the translation of Bishop Fox to Winchester, thus :—"Ecclesia Sancti Egidii Dunelm. appropriata Hospitali de Kepyer. . . . . Dominus Thomas White capellanus parochialis, D. Willielmus Eden, praestiterunt," &c. See Surtees Society's Publications, vol. xxii, p. xiii). It does not thus appear that Sir William Eden was also a parochial chaplain, though assumed by Hutchinson and Surtees to have been so.

[3] This Oliver Eshe (or Ashe) was proceeded against after the "Rebellion of the Earls" in 1569 for compliance with it. See "Depositions and Ecclesiastical Proceedings" (Surtees Society's Publications, 1845, p. 137). He then confessed to having been in the Cathedral on some Sunday or Holiday in December, to having spoken to "Mr. Hoomes about sainge of service in the churche of St. Giells, who answered hym, that, for so moch as this examinate had bein a religious man, he coulde not absolve hym, sainge that he, this deponent, was excommunicat, and so shulde be for hym, the said Holmes, unto he had further auctoritie. And, at this examinate comming to the said Cathedral Church, the said Holmes was at the hynder end of his sermond, but he could not well hear or understande hym; and, after that, the said Holmes went to masse, and when the sacringe bell range this examinate loked towerd the priest, but he could not decern the elevacion; whereupon he loked up to Mr. Bromley" (John Brymley, the organist), "then in the loft over the queir door, and smiled at hym." Further he confessed that last Easter he had "ministred the bread and wyn to dyvers his parishioners, in their mowthes, and not in their hands, bycause they wold not take yt into their hands" ("Book of Depositions," 1565 73).

[Oliver Eshe was curate of St. Helen's Auckland in 1553 and to 1561.—F.T.]

CHRISTOPHER GREENE,[1] d. 1574.

ROBERT PRENTICE,[2] occ. 22 Jul., 1578.

[Rob[t] Prentisse was Curate of Whitworth in 1583, and Rector of Dinsdale in 1588–98.—F.T.]

JACOB HOBSON, cur., occ. 23 Jul., 1578.

[Jacob Hobson was Curate of Hamsterley in 1578–80.—F.T.]

JAMES PINCKNEY, cur., occ. 20 June, 1583.

WILLIAM MORROW,[3] 4 Feb., 1584.

JOHN WATSON,[4] occ. in Par. Reg., 1604 and 1621.

It appears from the above that Oliver Eshe had been a "religious man," i.e., belonging to some religious order, before the Dissolution. He is described as being forty-one years of age at the time of his examination. Probably he clung in his heart all along to the old order of things, as his parishioners of St. Giles seem also to have done. For the Churchwardens of the parish, with other parishioners, were accused also and confessed to the charge of having set up altars in the Church, and that they "did burne teare and utterly destroy the Holy Bible, the Apology, Homilees, Booke of Praier, &c., in despite of God, the Quene Majestie' lawes, and damnation of their own soules." Robert Corneforth of Gilligait, tanner, aged 46, also deposed that "he had heard it reported that Sir Oliver maid holly water and holly bread, but whether he had Latten service he cannot depose" (Ibid.).

[1] Christopher Greene appears at Visitations in the years 1577, 1578, 1579, as curate of St. Nicholas and of St. Mary Magdalen Chapel in Gilligate, but not as curate of St. Giles. In 1577, and at a visitation of the Dean and Chapter by Bishop Barnes in 1580, he is further described as under-master (subpedagogus) of the Cathedral Grammar School (See "Ecclesiastical Proceedings of Bishop Barnes," Surtees Society's Publications, vol. xxii, pp. 46, 47, 73, 96, 103).

[2] Alias Prentize or Prentisse. For some account of him see "Parish Registers," p. 123, n. 1. He appears at Visitations as Curate of St. Giles in 1577, 1578, and 1579. On the first of these occasions there is appended to his name "No Licence." At Bishop Barnes' Visitation of the Dean and Chapter in 1580 he appears as seventh Minor Canon (Surtees Society's Publications, vol. xxii, pp. 46, 73, 96, 103).

[3] Alias Murrey or Murray. For an account of him see "Grassmen's Accounts," p. 15, note 4. It may be further noted here that his uncle, Robert Murrey, Vicar of Pittington, whom he succeeded in that living, left him in his will (dated 6th November, 1593) all his books except his Geneva Bible and "Chemmius de Examinatione Tridentini Concilii." The latter he had bequeathed to the Cathedral Library. The Bible was probably reserved for his widow, Agnes Murrey, to whom he left his residue. (See Surtees' "History of Durham," vol. i, p. 117). If the dates of his birth and burial are given correctly in the Mickleton MSS. (quoted in the note above referred to), he would be 103 years old when he died.

[4] Known as Sir John Lack-Latin. For notice of him see "Grassmen's Accounts," p. 19, note 2, and "Parish Registers," p. 123. His son Robert was christened in December, 1621, and his daughter Elizabeth buried, having died of the plague, in September, 1604. See "Parish Registers," pp. 126, 133.

ELIAS SMITH,[1] 18 Apr., 1632.

[Elias Smith, A.M., Minor Canon of the Cathedral; Preacher of the Word of God; Vicar of Bedlington, 4 Sept., 1643; ob. 1676; Master of the Grammar School. He was librarian to the Dean and Chapter.—F.T.]

HENRY SMITH,[2] A.B., 1665.

[p. res. of his father Elias Smith.—F.T.]

William CAM[3] [1678.—F.T.], bur. 2 Sept., 1682.

Thomas Teasdale.

Charles Maddison.[4]

RICHARD BEEL,[5] 1682 per m. Cam. (Surtees), 1685 (Hutchinson).

Pexall Forster, A.M.[6]

[1] For notice of this notable person see "Introduction," p. 3, and "Grassmen's Accounts," p. 62, note 2.

[2] Henry Smith was the only son of the above Elias Smith. Cf. Mickleton MSS., No. 32. "Henricus Smith cl'icus Min. Can. 25 Martii Ao 1673 filius fuit unicus Elie Smith. Fuit Sacrista pro aliquo tempore, et Rector eccl. B. Marie in Ball. Australi." He is not there spoken of as having been curate of St. Giles.

[3] Surtees gives his name erroneously as Thomas Cam. He is mentioned next after Elias Smith in the Mickleton MSS., No. 30, p. 72. A Bond preserved in the Vestry is attested, 11th December, 1678, by "Wm. Cam, Clerk." In the "Grassmen's Accounts," A.D. 1680 (p. 83), he signs a parochial document as "William Cam, Rector." In the Registers we find "Richard, son of William Cam Rector of this Parish was Baptiz'd the 18th of March in the yeare of our Lord God 1680–1" (p. 148). His burial, 26th September, 1682, is also recorded in the Register (p. 146), where he is described as "Mr. Cam, Rector of Gyllegate." Maria, widow of Wm. Cam, Clerk, took a house of the Lord of the Manor, 26th April, 1683 (Papers left by Rev. Francis Thompson). Why he was designated Rector has not been made apparent. See "Introduction," under "Parish Church and Living."

[4] These two names (not included in the lists of Hutchinson and Surtees) are given in the Mickleton MSS. as succeeding Cam thus:—"Thomas Teasdale Clericus A.M. Qui etiam unus Min. Can. Cath. Eccl. D."

"Carolus Maddison, Clericus A.M. Qui ab ista ecclesia ivit ad ecclesiam de Chester in le Street."

[5] Surtees has got his date of 1682 from that of the death of Cam, on the supposition that Beel (or Bell) had succeeded him; but erroneously, if Teasdale and Maddison intervened. Beel is not mentioned as Curate of St. Giles in the Mickleton MSS., but otherwise referred to thus:—"Ric'us Bell Clericus, Min. Can. 1682 filius fuit Ric'di Bell de Shinkliff prope D. textoris. Ob. Londini." But that he was minister of St. Giles is proved by the following entry in the Parish Register:—"Mr. Richard Bell minister of St. Gyles was buried at London May ye 12, 1685."

[6] "Pexallus Forster A.M. Min. Can. 1686. Qui etiam minister S. Egidii, ac postea Vicarius S. Oswaldi post deprivationem Johannis Cock" (Mickleton MSS.). The deprivation of John Cock was in 1690. It thus appears that Pexall Forster, having succeeded Beel, who died in 1685, was, on his transference to St. Oswald's, succeeded by Dunn (or Done), whose entry in 1691 is recorded in the Register, as will be seen below. Hutchinson, though he omits Pexall Forster, has given the date of Dunn's entry correctly. Surtees, supposing the latter to have succeeded Beel, has altered it erroneously to 1685.

William Dunn,[1] 1685 p. mortem Beel (Surtees), 1691 (Hutchinson).

John Perkin,[2] A.B., occ. 1706 and 1708.

[Curate of St. Nicholas, Vicar of Sockburn, 1722.—F.T.]

Henry Porter, M.A.

[Curate and Lecturer of St. Nicholas, 1710; Vicar of Coniscliffe, 1718.—F.T.]

William Forster,[3] A.M., 24 June, 1723.

[Curate of St. Margaret's, Crossgate, from 27 Oct., 1719, to 1722; Vicar of Aycliffe and Curate of St. Giles, 1723 to 1725, both which he resigned for St. Oswald's, where he died, 1765.—F.T.]

Robert Pigot, A.M., 1725, per res. Forster.

[Pigot was Rud's successor as Librarian to the Dean and Chapter, 1725.—F.T.]

Chilton Wilson, A.M., 1739, p. res. Pigot.

[Vicar of Heighington, 1727, where he died, 1749; Curate of St. Giles, 1730 (from 1726 to 1745). Res. —F.T.]

---

[1] Alias Done; his name is spelt both ways in the Parish Register, in which are the following, among other notices of him:—"Michaelmas 1691, Mr. William Dunn, Minister of this parish" (p. 146).

"Memorandum that Mr. Wm. Done (the name altered to Dunn), Curate of St. Gyles, entered at Michaelmass 1691.

Thomas Gelson, } Churchwardens" (p. 156).
Walter Hair, }

"Mr. Wm. Done, Minister of St. Gyles, and Mrs. Elizabeth Davies of West Chester were married July ye seventeenth Anno D'ni 1692" (p. 142).

"Burials in the year 1693, Wm. Done Curate."

"Baptismata in Anno 1693, Gulielmo Dunneo S'ti Ægidii Curato." So also (or "Gulielmo Done") A.D. 1694 and A.D. 1695. A Memorandum, Easter, 1696, is signed Wm. Dunn, "Wm. Done Curate" being found in the following paragraph (p. 154).

"1704. Frances ye daughter of Wm. Dunn Minister of this Parish was buryed on good friday ye 14th day of April. She was his second of that name" (p. 159).

A Memorandum dated April 2nd, 1705, is signed, "Test. Wm. Dunn Curate" (p. 156). Finally, "William Done, Curate of this Parish, was Buried Octobr 20th 1706" (p. 160).

[2] His name occurs in the Parish Register as Minister of St. Giles in 1709:—"Mem. that Walter Haire was discharged from officiating as parish clark on Candlemas day 1709, & Richard Martin had orders to officiate from John Perkin, Minister of St. Gyles Durham" (p. 155).

[3] In Vol. iv of the Registers (1695–1749) there is—"Memorandum That I find there has been a scandalous neglect of registring Births, Burials & Marriages from the year 1711 to midsummer 1723, when the Curacy of St. Giles was entered upon by me, W. Forster."

ROBERT DAVISON,[1] A.M. (1749, see note).

[Curate of Croxdale, 19 Oct., 1742, Occ. Cur. of St. Giles, 1754.—F.T.]

RALPH GELSON,[2] A.B., 18 Feb., 1768, Bp. by lapse.

[Collated to St. Giles by Bp. Trevor by lapse ; Vicar of Merrington, 1760 ; died there, 1775.—F.T.]

JOHN ROBSON,[2] A.M., 22 Oct., 1768. RANDALL MSS. (Hutchinson).

The same, Linc. Coll., Oxon., 1775 ; p. m. Gelson (Surtees).

[Presented by John Tempest, Esq. ; Vicar of Sockburn, 1759 ; Curate of St. Nicholas, 1783 ; died 1802.—F.T.]

JOSEPH WATKINS,[3] M.A., 1802, p. m. Robson.

St. John's Coll., Camb., Sept. 25, 1802 (Surtees).

[Presented by Sir A. V. Tempest, Bart. ; successively Vicar of Merrington (?) and Norham ; died 1828.—F.T.]

Here end the lists given by Hutchinson and Surtees. What follows, down to his own date, is from the list left by the Rev. Francis Thompson.

W. R. WYATT,[4] M.A., 1828.

Minor Canon of St. Asaph in 1836, and Perpetual Curate of Dyserth, Flints.

---

[1] On the back of the cover of the Volume of Registers for 1749–1789, is written :—"Robert Davison was nominated 8th Dec., 1749."

[2] Here, as in some previous instances, Surtees has corrected Hutchinson's date erroneously. The correctness of the date of Robson's accession as given by Hutchinson is proved by a note on the cover of the Parish Register for 1749 to 1789, viz. :—"John Robson, nominated 13th October, licensed 22nd, 1768." He appears to have had charge of the parish before his incumbency, the Registers being signed by him in 1760, and afterwards till 1789. Davison, who had become incumbent in 1749, probably retained Croxdale, and was non-resident at St. Giles.

[3] The date of his accession, as correctly given by Surtees, appears on the cover of the Register for 1749 to 1789, viz.:—"Joseph Watkins, nominated 21st Sept., licensed 25th Sept., 1802." "Parson Blackett," mentioned in the "Preface to Grassmen's Accounts" p. 3, as being remembered to have read prayers on "Whinny Hill" on Bounder Day, seems to have had charge of the parish during part of this incumbency, Watkins, who held other preferment, being probably non-resident. Blackett signs the registers in 1813. From 1820 to 1831, John Owen, Sub-Curate, signs every entry.

[4] In the Register Wyatt (28 Dec., 1830) signs the appointment of Thomas Tilly as parish clerk in succession to Richard Tilly, whose appointment by John Robson in 1801 to succeed John Tilly is also recorded. Successive generations of the Tilly family thus appear to have been parish clerks.

James Carr.[1]
Perpetual Curate of South Shields in 1831.

Samuel A. Fyler, M.A., 1831.
Perpetual Curate of Cornhill in 1834.

The Hon. and Rev. Robert Liddell, M.A.[2]
Vicar of Barking in Essex, 1836.

Charles Balston,[3] M.A., Fellow of Corpus Christi Coll., Oxford.
Licence of non-residence dated 26 July, 1836.

William Cassidi, B.A., Trin. Coll., Dublin, Oct., 1837.[4]
Vicar of Grindon, 5 April, 1841.

Francis Thompson, M.A., Univ. Coll., Durham, 1841.

John George Norton, M.A., D.D., Trin. Coll., Dublin, 1872; Rector of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, 1884; Canon of Montreal, 1893.

Robert John Pearce, M.A., D.C.L., late Fellow of Caius Coll., Cambridge, 1884; Professor of Mathematics in the University of Durham; Vicar of Bedlington, 1895.

Ponsonby Augustus Moore Sullivan, M.A., Keble Coll., Oxford, 1891.

[1] He signs the Register as "J. Carr, Curate," May 15th, 1831. But in the same year, Dec. 28th, he signs the baptism of his child as "Perpet. Curate of South Shields."

[2] He signs entries in the Register as Perpetual Curate from Jan. 25th, 1835, to May 5th, 1836. He became Incumbent of St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, and St. Barnabas, Pimlico, after the resignation of the Rev. W. J. E. Bennett.

[3] His Curate, in charge of the parish, was H. R. Bramwell, who signs the Registers to Aug., 1837.

[4] This name (though wrongly spelt "Cassidy") and those which follow have been supplied by the Deputy Registrar from the Diocesan Registry, where no record of any previous incumbents appears to have been preserved. Entries in the Parish Register confirm the list.

DESCRIPTION OF SEALS.

No. 1. In green wax; see p. 213. Insc. ✠ SIGILLVM : SANCTI : EGIDII.

No. 2. In white wax; see p. 213. Insc. ✠ SIGILLV SANCTI EGIDII DVNELMIE.

No. 3. In white wax, appended to a quit claim from Peter the master and the brethren of Kepier to Will. de Wetlawe and his heirs of an annual rent of 3s. 4d., etc. Kepier, 3 Non. Jun. 1291. Durham Treasury, 4ta 14mæ Specialium, k. 1, No. 10. The seal is much damaged, especially round the edge; the hind looking up to St. Giles is much better seen on the seal than in the plate: the saint is habited as a monk, and holds a crosier and a book. The inscription appears to have been SIGILLVM SANCTI EGIDII DE KYPIER. On the back of the seal is a small secretum consisting of an antique gem, the impression of which is now too indistinct to be made out or photographed, with the words FRANGE LEGE TEGE round the margin.

No. 4. In green wax, appended to the following document:—

"Omnibus hoc scriptum visuris uel audituris. Radulfus rector et fratres hospitalis domus Sancti Egidii de Kippeyer, æternam in Domino salutem. Nouerit uniuersitas uestra nos concessisse et quietum clamasse fratri Radulfo sacristæ domus Sancti Cuthberti, et omnibus successoribus suis qui pro tempore fuerint, toftum et croftum quæ habuimus in Landa Dei[1] cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, in perpetuum, in excambium vnius mesuagii quod emit ad opus nostrum in balliuo de Dunelmo, scilicet illius quod Astinus Brachur et Annais filia Ede Tanai tenuerunt de Willelmo Croere ad feudalem firmam. Et, ut hæc nostra concessio et quieta clamacio futuris temporibus robur optineat, præsens scriptum sigilli nostri appositione roborauimus. Teste Capitulo Nostro."—Durham Treasury, 2da 3ciæ Sacr., No. 1.

St. Giles in monastic habit holding a crosier? or an arrow? in his left hand, and a book in his right; the hind, as in No. 3, is partly behind him, and looking up to him. The inscription is SIGILL[VM SAN]CTI EGIDII : DE KIPPEYERE.

[1] Now Landieu, in the parish of Wolsingham. It is thus mentioned in "Le Convent" (Feodarium, Surtees Society, p. 216), "Locus autem qui vocatur Landa Dei, cum omnibus pertinenciis suis, concedimus et confirmamus in perpetuum Sacristariæ Dunelmensi, sicut illum locum habuit et tenuit frater Ranulfus, de dono Hugonis quondam Dunelmensis Episcopi." See above, p. 199.

No. 5. In black wax; see p. 220. St. Giles in mass vestments, with crosier, book, and the hind. Insc. SIGILLVM SANCTI EGIDII DE KIPPIER.

The Conventual Seal of Durham mentioned on p. 220 is that which is figured and described in Raine's St. Cuthbert, p. 211, but more accurately figured, together with the reverse, in Surtees's History of Durham, Seals, Plate 6 (1). The seal is circular, and bears a cross a little expanded at the ends, with four short points in the angles. The inscription is ✠ SIGILLVM CVDBERHTI PRESVLIS SC̄I. About 1200 was added the reverse, consisting of an antique gem, with a beautifully cut head of Jupiter Tonans, let into a circular plate of metal bearing the legend ✠ CAPVT SANCTI OSWALDI REGIS. See above, p. xiii.

The Seals of the bishops mentioned, pp. 214, 217, and 222, are engraved in Surtees's Plates of Seals (Hist. Durh., vol. i).

GLOSSARY.

ASSARTS (Lat., Assarta, or Assartum), forest land recently brought into cultivation.

AVERIDGE, apparently the same as Averagium, carriage, leading.

BANDELIER (or Bandoleer), a small wooden case covered with leather, carried by soldiers, containing charges for muskets.

BANNES, bands, strap-like plates of iron attached to gates for hinges. Usually associated with crooks.

BISANTIUS (Eng., Bezant, or Besant), a gold coin, said to be from Byzantium, where a gold piece, hence called Byzantius, was coined under the Emperors. The bezant was current in Europe; in England it was superseded by the noble in the time of Edward III.

BICK, a wooden bottle or cask for carrying liquor in. "A wooden bottle or cask in which beer is carried to the hayfield. Norf."—(Halliwell).

BIGG, Barley, or a kind of barley.

BOON-DAYS (precariæ), days on which tenants, under feudal tenure, were bound to work for the lord of the manor in reaping his harvest, or other services.

BOUNDER-DAY, the day of perambulation of the boundaries of parishes or manors in Rogation week.

BOWE (for a bull), perhaps a wooden hoop put over his neck to tie him up by. See also Saile.

BOWER, originally a house, or chamber; later, an Arbour. See also Maiden.

BRANDED, Brinded, or Brindled. "Of a mixed red and brown colour with some black hairs among the red and brown" (Cleveland Glossary). Cf., "thrice the brinded cat hath mewed" ("Macbeth," Act iv, Sc. 1).

BREARDING (for bearding) the dyke. "Beard—a hedge made by setting branches of thorns upright in the ground. Making hedges of this kind is called bearding" (Peacock's Lincolnshire Glossary).

CAP, or Capp (for a gate), a piece of wood placed over the top rail or post of a gate to protect it.

CARR, a pool in marshy ground. See p. 11, n. 2.

CASTING of dykes, pools, or trenches. Forming or clearing them by throwing out the earth. Cf., "Thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee" (Luke xix, 43).

——— (for water at priers stabel, p. 103). Either digging for it, or possibly using some means for finding it, as, for instance, by the divining rod.

CAUSEY (Lat., Calcetum, Calcea), "a way raised and paved above the rest of the ground" (Johnson). Probably derived from late Latin Calciare, to tread.

CAVEING; see p. 116, n. 2.

CAVELL, a lot or share; see p. 65, n. 1.

CAYLIES, or Keyles (= Kyloes), a kind of cattle.

CHALLANWEAVER, a weaver of Shalloon, a kind of woollen stuff.

CHARE, a narrow passage. Cf., "the Castle Chare," in Durham, and "chares" in other places in the North.

COTTRELLS, "small iron wedges or pins for securing holts" (Brockett).
CUVA; see p. 196, n. 1.

DALE, a deal board.
DIGHTING (the armour), dressing, furbishing, or repairing.
DIKE (or Dyke), a bank or mound for fencing. Also a ditch.
DIKER, one who makes dikes.
DISTRINGAS, a writ for distraint.
DRAWING (Straw). See p. 33*n*.
——— (the moor), the same as Driving (?).
DRIVING (the moor), driving together the animals upon the moor for any purpose.

ENTERCOMMON (Intercommon), a common right of pasturage.
——— Closes (called also Town Closes), enclosed fields, in which there was a right of entercommon only during the winter months. See p. 40, n. 1.
——— Breaking, entering on such closes at the prescribed time. See p. 83, n. 1.

FARMARY, Infirmary. See p. 242.
FLAGS, rushes used for thatching. "Sedge, a sort of rush" (Bailey). "A water plant with a bladed leaf and yellow flower" (Johnson). "Small pieces of coarse grass in meadows" (Halliwell). Cf., "She laid it in the flags by the river's brink" (Exodus ii, 3).
FOREHEAD (of a gate), a piece of wood used in the construction of a gate. Perhaps the same as Head-piece, which see.
FOOTING (the stoops), probably in some way strengthening or supporting them at the foot.
FOOTSTONE, probably the stone under the hartree of a gate, in which it turns. See Harr Tree.
FOG, the after-math or second growth of grass after mowing.
FOUMART (foul marten), a polecat.

GAIT (or Gate), a run on a common or pasture-field for one head of cattle, as "a cow gait," a "horse gait."
GARLING, garland.
GARNEMENT; see p. 237, n. 3.
GAVELL, gable.
GOODS (p. 106*n*.), cattle.
GOSPEL OAK; see p. 3, n. 1; p. 8, n. 1.

GUTT (p. 87), a wide ditch or watercourse.

HACQUETON; see p. 55, n. 2.
HAINEING, hedging.
HANTING (the bull to the common), accustoming him to it; getting him to feed quietly on it. "To hant is to practise or accustom to anything" (Jamieson).
HARNESS, Armour.
HAR, "the hole in a stone or the hinge on which a gate turns, the har-tree being the head of the gate in which the spindle is fixed" (Halliwell). In Mid-Eng., Herre. Cf., "As a door is turned on his herre, so a slow man in his bedde" (Prov. xxvi, 14, in Wickliffe's Bible).

Harr Kutt ; see p. 55, n. 2.

Harr Tree (or Hartre), the upright piece of timber at the back of a gate, on which it turns.

Haybote, an allowance of thorns for the tenants' hedges. (From Hay= Hedge).

Head, or Headpiece, the upright piece of timber in front of a gate, by which it is fastened when shut.

Hearth-money ; see p. 155, n. 1.

Heast, probably in error for Hesp, or Hasp, viz., the loop which passes over the staple for fastening a gate.

Hecke, a manger or rack for cattle.

Hollow Thursday ; see p. 107.

Houleway ; see p. 84, n. 3.

Housebote, an allowance of timber from the lord's woods for support or repair of tenants' houses.

Howsling (for Housling) people, people capable of receiving the Holy Communion.

Hurd, a herdsman.

Husband, a husbandman.

Hupe or Houpe (for hoop), for a gate (p. 91), probably an iron band round the top or bottom of a post to keep it from splitting.

Intercommon ; see Entercommon.

Intol, a toll levied on imports ; see U-tol.

Jingle Pot ; see p. 117, n. 2.

Jug ; see p. 79, n. 1.

Kavel ; see Cavell.

Keyles ; see Caylies.

Lairstall, a grave within a church.

Lattbrodes, nails for laths.

Letch, "a small watercourse, ditch, or gutter" (Halliwell).

Purvey Money ; see p. 51, n. 2.

Rise (or Ryse), Brushwood.

Rooge-money (Rogue-money), a charge on parishes for the maintenance of gaols and the like.

Rounges (e.g., "a burden of rounges for the gate"), apparently sticks or rods.

Sagerston or Seggerston, a sacristan, or sexton.

Saile ("to the bull") ; "Angl. Sax. Sál : a tie, band, rope, &c. A wooden hoop to put round the neck to tie an ox or cow in the stall" (Bosworth, Angl. Sax. Dictionary). N.B.—The occurrence of a "saile and band," p. 75, suggests the second of these two meanings. Cf. supra (Bowe).

Saltpetre-man ; see p. 22, n. 2.

Scaling, scattering the deposits of cattle or other manure, etc., over land. E.g., "scaling the moor" ; "scaling manure" ; "scaling ashes." See p. 36, n. 1. Cf., Mouder.

Seaver or Siever (Cf., κοσκινοποιὸς, p. 135, n. 4). A sieve-maker. "William Siveyer was born at Shinkley in this Bishoprick, where his father was a Siveyer or Sive-maker ; and I commend his humility in retaining his Father's Trade for his Surname to mind him of his mean extraction. . . . England neither before nor since saw two sive-makers sons advanced . . . this William in the Church, Sir Richard Empson in the Commonwealth" (Fuller's Worthies, Ed. 1811, I, 332).

Sheath or Sheth, pp. 91, 114. Not explained.

Shelme, or Selme ; "A gate rail, North." (Halliwell).

Sherobalave, Sheriff's bailiff.

Soldier-money, a charge on parishes for soldiers. (See Surtees Society's Publications, vol. lxxxiv, p. 19*n.*)

Spartes; "Spart: the dwarf rush; North." (Halliwell).

Spikings, large nails.

Stent, or Stint (also stinter, Stinting). See p. 1.

Stie, a stile with steps. N.B.—In the North a ladder is called a stee.

Stobb (Stoup, Stoop, Stope), a post or stake driven into the ground.

Strass, Distress; see p. 63.

Swall, p. 12. Not explained.

Swerd, Sweard, Sword (also Sword-tree), a piece of wood used in the construction of a gate, placed across it transversely. A word still in use.

Tenter-rent, a payment for bleaching ground.

Theking (or Thicking), thatching.

Thornynge the wicke, protecting a new quickset hedge with thorns.

Thrave, twenty-four sheaves, though some counties reckoned only twelve sheaves to the thrave.—Jacob, Law Dictionary.

Tranck (p. 86), not satisfactorily explained. The word is unknown, but possibly denotes here an excavated bit of level ground at some point in a narrow cart-road on the moor, for the carts to turn in. Cf. supra, Casting.

Troueke (p. 80), not explained.

U-tol, a toll levied on exports. Cf. Intol. Intoll and Uttol are mentioned in a charter granted by Henry I to the Church of St. Peter, at York. Mon. Angl. in Blount's Law Dictionary, 1691, under Toll.

Vayge; see p. 66, n. 1.

Vennel, a gutter, or a narrow passage. See p. 84, n. 3.

Wacheria: "Vacheria, ut Vaccaria, Ager seu prædium vaccarum numero alendo proprium. Vaccarium, Stabulum vaccarum" (D'Arnis).

Wafe mear, a stray mare (?).

Weyscale, a weighing scale.
